Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

The mighty figure of Mars, the Roman god of war for which the month of March was named after raised his head on Sunday, morning the first day of March Getting ready to blow his high strong winds our way, we hope this noisy, blustering month of March will not bring any more snow and cold weather. As the old saying goes, "If March comes in like a lion it will go out like a lamb."

This month of winds brings the beginning of spring and opens the blossoms of daffodils and jonquils It is also a time to be getting ready to plan a summer garden. Many folks plant potatoes, onions, and lettuce the last of March. But it is best not to plant seeds too early in this area because of the late frosts, in the month of May.

As we go back into history, centuries ago the Romans thought that the god of war was more than a mere fighter. They thought he could do almost anything he was so strong. They prayed to him for rain and consulted him in their private affairs. Mars was associated in their minds with thurder and lightening, and yet they believed that a woodpecker tapping the trunk of a tree was the answer of this noisy god to their prayers.

But whether the month of March begins with high winds or low, we know that it is the wind of God and as the soft breeze kisses our cheek we know it will soon be God's spring-time and it sings to us of His creative power...

March 3, was the Mardi Gras Shrove Tuesday, in some cities it is a day of carnival and celebration When we think of the Mardi Gras it brings to mind that New Oreleans, La., is a city where the festival celebrations are still held every year, and many people participate in the celebrations.

Ash Wednesday falls on March 4th this year. It is the first day of Lent which is the spring period of fasting in preparation for Easter. In the Western Church, a penitential period from Ash Wednesday to Easter. The days of Lent are observed in some Churches.

Easter Sunday will be late this year as listed on the calendar it will be on April 19.

Are you guilty of impulse buying? We all probably are, at one time or another. It's hard to resist impulses, especially since supermarkets are arranged to encourage them. Being aware of the methods used to promote impulse buying can help you resist.

Supermarkets display an average of 8,000 items. Long aisles allow shoppers to pass 317 items a minute. The more you see, the more you are likely to buy.

Expensive things like in-store bakery goods, wines, and fancy fruits are placed near store entrances. You are more likely to pick them up when your cart is nearly empty.

Large displays at the ends of the aisles imply a bargain. To see if they really are, check the prices of the same items with those on the shelves. And check other sizes, brands, and forms of the same food to get your best buy.

At the checkout counter you are exposed to candy, magazines, cigarettes, and other "last minute" impulse items.

Your best weapon against impulse buying is a shopping list. Follow it exactly unless you can make substitutions that save money or unless you find genuine bargains in foods that your family likes.

Shop alone, if possible. Babysitting and food shopping rarely mix successfully. And shop at a time when the store isn't crowded. You'll have more time to select purchases carefully.

Pay attention to grocery ads for "specials" but remember, specials are not a bargain to you if they are not something your family likes or needs.

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service programs, activities, and employment opportunities are available to all people regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, handicap, or political affiliation. An Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer.

Woman's Club Meets

The Jonesville Junior Woman's Club held their monthly meeting on February 16th at Mrs. Carlene Sanders' home with Ms. Sammie Mullins serving as co-hostess.

Mr. Robert Estes and Mr. James Parsons of the Jonesville Fire Department were our guest speakers. They talked about wood burning stoves and the importance of home fire drills.

The annual arts and crafts contest was held at this time. Several of our members won ribbons on their crafts. All first place winners will be allowed to compete in the district contest.

Plans are being made for the annual Read-a-thon. All elementary children are encouraged to participate. All funds raised from this project will go to the Easter Seals Society.

Sheriff R.V. Chadwell briefs Robert L. Herring, 37, of Albany, Ga., from the Lee County Jail where he will await trial for the contract killing of David Hill, a Georgia business man. Hill's body was found in an isolated section of Keokee in December 1977. Herring has been indicted by a Lee County Grand Jury for allegedly hiring Bernard Webb, St. Charles, also imprisoned in the local jail, to kill Hill. Herring is scheduled to appear before the Circuit court judge on March 23 at which time he will be assigned counsel. Sheriff Chadwell said Special Investigator Charles Janeway and Sgt. Bud Rouse brought Herring to the Lee County facility Monday from the Memphis Federal Correctional Center, Memphis, Tennessee. The sheriff briefed Herring on what he could expect during his stay in the Lee County jail and what would be expected of him.

The petition requests the Circuit Court Judge to call for a general referendum, which would give the qualified voters an opportunity to vote "Yes" or "No" on the question of changing the present form of government to what is termed the "conventional" form of government.

It is understood that the names of those signing the petition will be checked to see that they are all qualified voters

The petition has been circulated over the county for the past several months

Local Citizens Tell Board 'Time For Everybody To Pay'

It seemed like most of Lee County turned out for the March 4 meeting of the Lee County Board of Supervisors.

The regular supervisors' board room was filled to overflowing as local citizens spilled out into the hall and down the steps of the courthouse. Most were patient in waiting their turn to speak, most were mannerly ... and all had one thing on their minds, the recent tax reassessment.

After quickly handling the routine housekeeping chores, supervisors relocated in the general district courtroom to better accomodate the many who turned out

Supervisor Sam Massingill explained to local citizens that contrary to some rumors, the recent tax reassessment had been mandated by the Virginia General Assembly requiring all real estate assessments to be 100 per cent of fair market value by July 1, 1981

Had Lee County failed to meet this deadline, state funds and reimbursements from Richmond would have been jeopardized including ABC monies, public utility funds and revenue sharing.

A state certified appraiser, Carl Stallard, of Pennington Gap, was hired by the supervisors, "and that," Massingill said, "was the extent of the Board's participation in the reassessment." Likewise, he pointed out that Board members have no influence on Board of Equalization members. Pat Fortner, Carl Evans or Walter Jenkins.

The Board of Equalization, as has been explained before, will sit for a designated period to hear complaints from citizens who have made an appoint ment and find that their assessment is unfair or out of line in comparison with a neighbor's of equal property holding

As Massingill fielded questions from Lee County citizens, the overwhelming response of a majority of the people seemed to be "it is time for the tax burden

Fuel Assistance Coffers Empty

Local social services administrators have received the official word that the state is out of money for further fuel assistance in Virginia.

According to Lucy McNiel, Lee County Social Services director, no further applications for fuel assistance will be taken -- March 6, 1981, designated as the cutoff date. However, Lee County will, as other localities in the state, have access to a specified amount of emergency funding, with no individual request to exceed $150.

As of March 3, roughly 1,663 applications for fuel assistance were taken locally according to Ms. McNiel, resulting in 995 credit authorizations by the state.

"We kept the people in Lee County warm," she said, although her overall assessment of the state mangement of the fuel assistance program this year was not at all favorable

Her primary criticism was the erratic, snail's pace at which administrators on the state level worked to get the money to the local providers.

Rather than a continual, predictable payment of funds to providers money would come in slow dribbles -- a complaint of more than one locality

Ms McNiel said that she would rather see the program, if continued next year, managed in a different fashion with the localities getting X amount of dollars to dispense on a continuing basis. This would be much more efficient than waiting until November to be instructed and taking applications after December 1.

She was also critical of

Sheriff's Officials Arrest Four Making Moonshine

Lee County sheriff's officials have arrested four local citizens for operating a moonshine in the Rock lick section of Keokee.

Arrested were Larry Crider, 26, St. Charles, Bobby Martin, 45, Keokee, Greg Clark, 18, Keokee; and Mary Ann Clark, 39, Keokee.

According to the report filed by investigating officer, Charlie Elkins, he noticed smoke coming from an abandoned house after following up a complaint concerning some vandals cutting down telephone poles on state route 742 in the Rocklick section

Upon closer observation, Elkins saw three men running up the hill and nearby was a 55-gallon moonshine still with the fire still burning under it.

Elkins was assisted in the March 9 investigation by Deputy Bobby Parsons and ABC Board representative, Emmet Salley

Lee County sheriff's officials also found a $10,000 posting machine off state route 758 in the Phoebe's Butt section of the County Monday. A metal plate on the machine traces its ownership to the Hamilton National Bank in Knoxville HikaNation Comes To Lee Co.

By Diane Herndon

They're a lot like turtles, you know ... carrying their homes on their backs, determined to reach a final destination and always on a steady course.

Just like turtles, some times they take the long, hard way around, but in the end they'll get there

From San Francisco, Ca., to Washington, D.C., their route is laid out and for some 54 members of the American Hiking Society, the journey will be one long remembered

It all started back in April of 1980 when this group of hikers commenced their transcontinental hike, approximately nicknamed HikaNation, to call attention to the need for more hiking trails in the U.S

The gorup has minimal funding by the Postum Division of General Foods, but the bulk of financing rests on each individual hiker

The membership of HikaNation is constantly in a state of flux as some hikers drop out along the way and others pick up the trail, but the group size generally averages right around 55, according to Monty Montgomery, coordinator

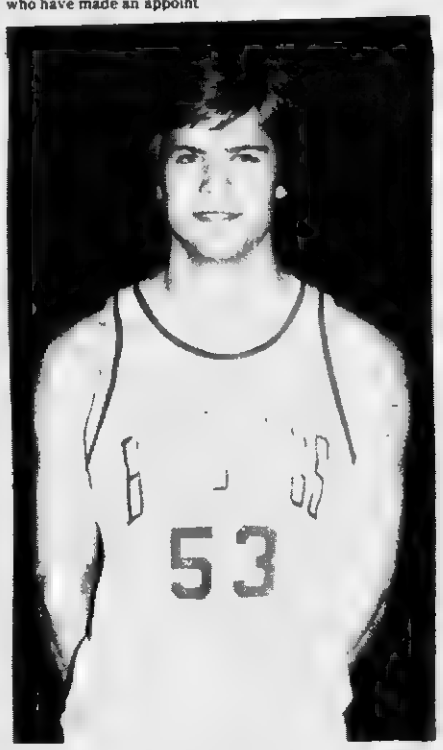
Sticking primarily to the back roads ("we'd rather follow a gravel road than a hardtop," Montgomery said) the hikers have weaved their way on foot through California, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and now Virginia

Sunday, March 8 found them setting up camp on the Flatwoods farm of Pete Chance with their immediate destination Damascus by March 17.

Hikers, fitted with sturdy shoes, a 50-pound backpack and in many cases, a trusty walking stick, average about 13 miles a day Montgomery said. For the most part, it's a freedom adventure as

Turn to page two

With the sun at their backs, these three HikaNation participants, Butch Hensley, Bruce Ohlson and Mary Oswald have made all the way to Lee County from San Francisco on foot ... and they're determined to reach Washington, D.C. by May.



Charlie Fugate

Fugate Joins 1,000 Point Club

Charlie Fugate, the Jonesville Bulldogs 6 ft. 3 in. basketball star, joined an elite group last week when he went over the 1,000 point scoring mark, with just four minutes to go in his final high school game.

The 1,000th point was made on a free throw. He went on to end his high school career with 1005 points.

The total for this young athlete would have, no doubt, be much higher had he not been benched during his freshman and junior years with injuries for at least a portion of each season.

During his senior year he scored an average of 17 points per game. He was the leading rebounder with eight per game.

He was out of play the first half of his junior year because of a football injury, but averaged 22 points per game in his junior year, leading the Cumberland District.

During his sophomore year he averaged 10 points per game.

In his freshman year a broken ankle kept him off the team for one-half of the season.

Charlie joins the Jonesville Bulldog 1,000 point club which is made up of George Flanary ('75) - 1,133 points; Tim Speaks ('78) - 1,112 as a three-year starter and Fugate with 1,005 points in 1981.

Charlie Fugate is the son of Judge and Mrs. William C. Fugate.

hikers are only given two pices of information daily -- the official route and the final destination. How they choose to go and at what pace is up to them, the HikaNation coordinator explained." Many hikes with new found friends, but others choose to hike independently, he added.

Likewise, there are no restrictions on who can become a part of the group hikers range in age from 69 to 14 from varying backgrounds and professions.

The primary motivation for most participating in this hike seemed to be the opportunity to do something that one had always wanted to try. Hiking allows one to see first hand his country and meet its citizens. Each hiker has distinct impressions of this land he has so doggedly maneuvered.

The generosity and hospitality of so many encountered has given the hikers a greater appreciation of this country's peoples and cultural habits. Communities have fed them, treated them special Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners, roasted a pig in their honor and offered them friendship.

In turn, the hikers have bolstered, in a small way, the local economies of villages they might pass through by purchasing food and supplies. They look forward to the small town cafes and restaurants when they can "pig out" on such luxuries as pie and ice cream.

Having walked nearly a year, the rugged, tanned individuals have trudged through rain, snow, temperatures of 110 degrees in Utah and contended with 25 degree wind chill factor in Kentucky. All the while they're carrying a backpack which contains a tent, ground pad, sleeping bag, stove, fuel bottle, food for five days, water, clothes and inclement weather gear.

Montgomery drives an Airstream trailer which holds extra supplies for the hikers -- about one cubic foot of space per individual.

What are the primary topics of conservation among the hikers? Food and what the next hike will be was the consensus answer.

When asked what she though about while hiking 16 miles without a rest in the cold, driving rain, one hiker hailing from Hawaii said she often thought about the pioneers and the Indians and how her forefathers survived it all.

And after walking over 3,000 miles, who should know more about surviving?

Girl Scouts Observe "Their" Week

This is Girl Scout Week. March 8-14 is the week when the Girl Scouts and their leaders like to call particular attention to their goals and activities.

In Lee County there are five Girl Scout troops, with others now in the making.

Right now the Girl Scouts are in the midst of their cookie sales campaign. This is one method they use to raise money for their various activities. If you have the opportunity support this worthwhile cause by purchasing several boxes of these delicious cookies.

One of the greatest needs of the Girl Scouts is more adult leaders. Today the following people are giving of their time and talents: Jennifer Daugherty and Kathy Hudson Troop 402, Pennington. Susan Scott Troop 409, Pennington; Joyce Martin Troop 412, Pennington; Hazel Edens Troop 410, Jonesville, Cindy Thomas and Sue Hobson, Woodway.

Upcoming activities include the Camporee to be held May 16, 18.

Girls interested in joining the Girl Scouts may contact any of the leaders listed above. Those who may be interested in assisting with program may also contact these people.

Lee County Memorial Post 10298 will celebrate their 8th anniversary with a dinner and awards day on Sunday, March 15. Dinner served 1:00 p.m. and awards ceremony to follow. All members urged to attend, all ladies please bring a covered dish.

the fuel assistance hotline because she said in several instances callers were given misinformation and staffers on the local level had to take the brunt of public's distress and hostility.

Supervisors

in Lee County to be shared by everyone."

Many, seemingly conscientious citizens, admitted that they're tired of being good citizens by paying their taxes when so many others refuse to pay and are never punished for their negligence.

These same citizens appear to now be turning to their elected leaders for some solution to the tax dilemma in Lee County. "We want you (supervisors) to take action to see that everybody pays their taxes," was the repeated plea from the crowd of nearly 150.

Supervisor Massingill reported accordingly that as of February 1, only 42 percent of the county's 1980 personal property taxes had been collected or $188,381 out of $423,244 levied. He also estimated that had all citizens within recent years paid their taxes as assessed, both real estate and personal property, "we would be looking at a 55 cent tax rate right now instead of $2.03 per $100 of assessed value."

Once again the vehicle license sticker surfaced as a means of collecting personal property taxes as several residents who previously lived in other parts of Virginia or the U.S. explained that such a sticker ordinance was commonplace if you wanted to drive a vehicle.

Board members, on the whole, seemed more receptive to the wheel sticker suggestion and a quick poll of those in attendance, likewise, brought a strong show of support.

The most common complaint with the recent reassessment by those present was the appraiser's apparent lack of first-hand observation of the properties he was assessing. More than once an irate citizen wanted to know how a man could assess a piece of property without even laying eyes on it? Again Massingill stressed for these citizens to make an appointment with the Board of Equalization to air any legitimate gripes.

With the completion of the recent reassessment, the local tax rate will be adjusted accordingly once county officials have determined to the coming fiscal year's budget needs.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR PARTIAL EXEMPTION

Take notice that Old Dominion Power Company (ODP), on March 4, 1981, filed an application for partial exemption from certain requirements of Part 290 of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's regulations concerning collection and reporting of cost of service information under Section 133 of the Public Utility Regulatory Policies Act (PURPA), Order 48 (44 Fed Reg 58687, October 11, 1979) Exemption is sought from the requirement to file, on or before June 30, 1982, and on or before June 30 of each even numbered year hereafter, information on the actual costs of providing electric service as specified in Section 290.404 (a) of the Commission's regulations.

In its application for exemption, ODP states that it should not be required to file the specified data for the following reasons Section 290.404 (g) (1) requires ODP to develop load data for its large rate classes for the June, 1982, filing and for all subsequent PURPA filings on a sample metering basis ODP proposes to submit estimated load research data in lieu of data gathered on a sample metering basis for three of its four large rate classes ODP would derive estimated data principally from data gathered on a sample metering basis by ODP's parent company, Kentucky Utilities Company (KU). The data which would be borrowed from KU would be data for KU's mountain region which is contiguous to ODP's service territory For part of its June, 1982, filing, ODP would derive estimated data from data borrowed from companies other than KU. ODP supports its application on the following grounds: (a) the substantial savings the Company's retail ratepayers would realize as a result of using borrowed load data; (b) the reliability of the data to be obtained from KU; and (c) the similarity between the usage patterns within Old Dominion's service territory and KU's mountain region

Copies of the application for exemption are on file with the Commission and are available for public inspection. The Commission's regulations require that ODP also supply to any State regulatory authority having jurisdiction over it to have a summary of the application published in the official State publication, if any, in which electric rate change applications are usually noticed; and that the utility publish a summary of the application in newspapers of general circulation in the affected jurisdiction

Any person desiring to present written views, arguments, or other comments on the application for exemption must file such information with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, 825 North Capitol Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. 20426, on or before 45 days following the date this notice is published in the Federal Register. Within that 45-day period, such person must also serve a copy of such comments on Old Dominion Power Company, One Quality Street, Lexington, Kentucky 40507

Coeburn Blue Knights Upend Twin Springs

In the regional tournament action at Thomas Walker this past Friday night, saw the Cumberland district hopeful Twin Springs eliminated from the playoffs. Coeburn, from the Lonesome Pine district are now the ones who can say they put a mark on the Titans record, in the loss column. Thats something that nobody else has done all year long. But still, the Blue Knights had to go to overtime before finally upending the Titans.

Coeburn took a 13 12 first quarter lead behind the shooting of Jeff Livingston. Then in the second quarter, the Blue Knights burned the nets for 31 points, and managed to hold Twin Springs to 20 points to make the halftime score 44 32. This second quarter outburst by Coeburn proved to be the killer as the Titans took the third quarter 21 11 to cut the lead to 55 53 going into the final period. The Titans managed to take the last quarter of regulation play by a 19 17 margin to send it to overtime

With the score tied at 72 all and four seconds left to play in regulation, the Titans had the ball. Kevin Short was controlling the ball and worked his way in close to the goal Short was called for pushing off as the clock went off, sending it to overtime Kevin didn't even get his shot off, when called for the offensive foul

Jeff Livingston got the first bucket in overtime to give Coeburn a 74 72 lead But Gary Wolf came back with a basket to knot the score at 74 all. This was the only two points that Wolf scored in the game. Then the Titans got the ball back with some eight seconds to go, and the score still tied. But then Kevin Short was called for walking with the ball. On this turnover, Coeburn called on Livingston to take a shot from long range. The shot bounced off the rim, but Glenn Meade of Coeburn got the rebound and layed it back in as the game ended.

Coeburn now 21 and 4 on the year, was led by Jeff Livingston's game high of 36 points. John Hall was next with 14, and Frank Mooney and Glenn Meade had 10 points each. The Blue Knights hit 14 of 20 free throws for 70%. They were guilty of 21 fouls in the game. They lost Frank Mooney via the foul route

Twin Springs closes out the season with a 21-1 won loss record. The Titans got 27 points from Kevin Short and 22 from Tony Rudder. Mike Penley added nine points before he fouled out. The Titans hit 26 of 31 free throws for just under 84%. The Titans were outscored by 14 points from the field. And even though they shot a good percentage from the charity stripe, they could have still managed to win if only they could have hit three more of their foul shots. But that is or was a mighty big if

Pocahontas Indians Waltz By Jonesville

In the opening game of the regional tournament at Thomas Walker last Thursday night, saw the Jonesville Bulldogs get eliminated. The Bulldogs, who were the Cumberland district tournament runner-up, played the Pocahontas Indians, who were runner-up in the Black Diamond district tournament. The Indians proved to be just too much for the Bulldogs, as they scored at will in winning by a final score of 70 53.

Pocahontas took a quick 18-8 first quarter lead. To make things worse for the Bulldogs, this was only the beginning as the Indians then took the second quarter 21-8 to enjoy a commanding 39 16 halftime lead Ronnie Kennedy did most of the damage in the first half as he displayed some fine ball handling. Kennedy, who stands 6'1" and is a senior guard is going to make some college team a great little point guard. He has already been voted the player of the year in the Black Diamond District, and a host of major colleges are already after his services. The Texas Longhorns are one of the many

After the first half, the Indians outscored the Bulldogs 15 12 in the third quarter, to take a 26 point bulge into the final frame Jonesville then managed to take the final quarter by a 25 16 margin. But the 26 point lead of the Indians was simply too much for the Bulldogs to overcome.

Leading the winning charge was Montell Bowman with 21 points. Ronnie Kennedy scored 17, Bobby Dillon added 10 points. This trio of players gave the Bulldogs trouble all night. The win upped Pocahontas' won loss record to 15-7.

Jonesville, by losing, closes out their season with a 13-10 record. They were led by Charlie Fugate with 21 points. Joey Chadwell also hit double digits with 14 points. Fugate closes out his high school career with the Bulldogs, with a good performance which, in the game with the Indians, he joined the 1000 point club. He finished with 1004 points. The Bulldogs had two players up from the junior varsity squad for this game. They were Oaks and Rosenbaum. They each scored two points in the loss. Both will see a lot of varsity action next year. Both were leaders in leading the baby Bulldogs to a undefeated season.

The Blue Knights regained their eight point bulge by outscoring Whitewood by four in quarter number three After Whitewood cut the Coeburn lead to one point late in the last quarter, Jeff Livingston took charge, and was the main man in holding off the surge.

Livingston scored 29 points which was game high John Hall added 15 points. Coeburn hit 10 of 17 free throws for just under 59%.

Whitewood finishes the season at 16 5. They were led by Tim Dotson's 24 points. Ronnie Ward, who was the one to cut Coeburn lead to one point late in the final quarter, added 10 points Whitewood as a team hit 3 of 6 free throws for 50%

Pocahontas Defeats Wise — Advances To Finals

The Pocahontas Indians who eliminated the Jonesville Bulldogs in the opening game of the tournament, came back to Thomas Walker High School this past Friday night to take on the Wise Indians, who was a surprise tournament winner from the Lonesome Pine district, in the semi finals and won again! This time in a low scoring game

Both teams scored 12 points in the opening quarter Wise tallied 13 in the second stanza while Pocahontas matched their first quarter score of 12 Things really got slow, and the fans were wanting a more offensive burst from both teams, but in the third quarter Wise only got two points, while the Indians got only four themselves

Pocahontas took a 28 27 lead into the final quarter, only to see another host of Indians, the Wise ones, break loose and take a 38 30 lead with 2:40 showing on the clock Then here came Pocahontas on a long run to outscore Wise 7 0 in a span of only sixty one seconds to trail only by one And then the winners got two free throws from Ronnie Kennedy to take a 39 38 lead. With time running out, the eventual winning Indians added three more free throws to make the final 42 38. Wise was outscored 12 0, after taking a 38 30 lead

Wise was led in defeat by Johnson with 14 points while Brian Kirk added 10 Wise was called for 11 fouls in the game They hit 6 of 12 free throws for 50%. The loss closes out the Wise Indians season at 14-10 overall.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Johnny Lyttle, March 1979.

So many times we needed you. So many times we cried. If love along could have saved you, you never would have died. It broke our hearts to lose you. But you didn't go alone, for part of us went with you, the day God called you home.

Sadly missed by Mother, Sisters and Brother

Tobacco Notices To Be Issued March 16

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, has announced that county farmers will be mailed their 1981 quota notices on March 16. The notices will reflect a 7.5 percent increase in the basic quotas for the 1981 crop year.

Once the notice is received, farmers may begin to lease quota either to or away from their farms. Leasing both ways is prohibited during a crop year. The only exception is that after October 1 a lease may be approved for a farm that previously received leased quota for the current crop year provided the farm operator certifies and the county committee determines the following. (1) The acreage of tobacco planted on the farm was equal to at least 80 percent of the acreage determined by dividing the effective farm quota by the current farm yield; (2) The production of tobacco was limited to less than the effective farm marketing quota because of conditions beyond the control of the farm operator.

ASCS regulations also provide for a limitation on the amount of quota a farm may lease in during a crop year. A farm may in-lease the smaller of the following: (1) 15,000 pounds; (2) pounds determined by multiplying the farm yield by 50 percent of the cropland on the farm, minus the basic farm marketing quota.

Jonesville Senior Citizens

Something for today

I write my column for those of you who are the average people.

Not for the ones who occupy the top of learning's steeple.

My words are sent straight from my heart, into the hearts of those

Who tread upon a bumpy road in search of sweet repose

To those whose faith is wandering, I send a ray of cheer.

To those afraid I try to show the uselessness of fear.

For aged hearts I try to paint the future with a smile:

To youth I send this declaration: life is so worthwhile.

This is the mission I perform, I hope that you can see

Why I write of all these things, for average folks like me.

—Rev. Jeff Callahan, pastor of the Campground Methodist Circuit, was the guest minister at the Senior Center, Monday. He read from Hebrews 11, the Faith chapter in the Bible. His definition of faith was found in the first verse of Hebrew 11, "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." I would like to tell of all the things he said about faith, but read the chapter and you will find for yourself what faith means.

Jeff brought his lovely wife Becky, and his little daughter Stacie. We are always happy to have them visit us at the Center. They joined in with the senior citizens for the covered dish luncheon.

—Vesta Muncey, president of the senior citizens, held a regular business meeting Monday afternoon. Only a few items were under discussion.

—The WMU Night and Day Organizations of Jonesville First Baptist Church met at the church Monday for the first day of the Annie Armstrong Week of Prayer for Home Missions. Mrs. Nell Bush, Mission Support of the Day Organization, led in the study of Go Forward! Being the Church. There were fifteen ladies attending this study.

—Members of Rose Hill Rebekah Lodge No. 88, Powell Valley Rebekah Lodge No. 50, and Lee Valley Rebekah Lodge No. 33, met at St. Charles, Monday night, with the members of Jessie Rebekah Lodge No. 104, at their regular meeting. One item of business was the nomination and election of a District Deputy President. Mrs. Opal Burden, Powell Valley No. 50, was elected by a majority of the vote.

Joe Bartley of Jonesville and Hobert Johnson of Pennington are patients in Lee County Community Hospital and need your prayers.

—Mrs. Barbara Edwards, Activity Director at Green Hill Rest Home, took some of the residents on an outing Monday. She brought them to the Cumberland Bowl Park, Jonesville, where they got their exercise in walking around the Bowl. It was a cool day but they were bundled up and really enjoyed their outing.

—Nine Jonesville senior citizens enjoyed an afternoon of bowling at Sunny Acres Alley, Tuesday. They were Florence and Marvin James, Ezra Sexton, Vesta Muncey, Sarah Smith, Pearl Ross, Ica Stewart, Lorene Terry, and Golden Lipps.

—The Jonesville Lions Club held their regular meeting at the Center Tuesday night.

—Lee Valley Rebekah Lodge No. 33, held their regular meeting at their Hall in Jonesville, Tuesday night, with Grace Spencer as Noble Grand and Linda Cody as Vice Grand. Bonnie Surber and Maureen Cole were guests from Rose Hill Rebekah Lodge No. 88. Refreshments were served.

—Mrs. Sallie Woliver, her nieces, Mrs. Treva Snodgrass and Mrs. Marie Lyttle, her nephew W.J. Quinley, were in Tazewell, Tn., Sunday afternoon, visiting their sister and aunt Mrs. Carson (Lou Ann) Vannoy, in Tazewell, Nursing Home.

—The WMU Day Organization of Jonesville First Baptist Church met Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons, in the church, for the Week of Prayer for Home Missions. The WMU Night Organization held their meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Murble Edwards, Thursday night at the home of Mrs. Viola James, and Friday night at the home of Mrs. Mae Davis. Wednesday night, the Day and Night Organizations met at the church with the Baptist Young Women in charge of the service.

—I forgot to write this in last week's column, so I'm just a little late in wishing "Happy Birthday" to my husband, Carl Baumgardner, who celebrated his birthday March 6, and my sister Lorene Terry, March 5. Also, Mrs. Etta Farmer of Ben Hur, Happy Birthday to you.

—Randy Wyatt and Debbie Livesay, Wise, Va., were guests of Debbie's grandmother, Mrs. Kate Livesay, Saturday.

—Some folks we know who are ill in Lee County Community Hospital are Faye Chance, Wilma Graham, Charles Dizney, Hobert Johnson, Joe Bartley, Hugh Williams, Bertha Blanton, Cora Tye, Gene Collins, John Gillis, Les Ledford, Carrie Peters, Beatrice Roop, Sadie Morgan, and Martha Wynn. These folks need the prayers of everyone, as do all other patients in the hospital and in their homes.

—Happy birthday to Edna Matthews, March 2, and Golden Sanders, March 5. They will not tell their age, but they are senior citizens.

By George

We recently discussed the foolish and dangerous habit of burning refuse in the springtime.

At that time we suggested that gardners dispose of their leaves, weeds and other waste material by making a compost pile where the materials may be allowed to decompose. Then they can be used to enrich the soil.

Following are complete and detailed instructions on how to go about making and using compost. This won't take much more time than "burning off" the garden. It poses no danger to your neighbor's fence or house and you won't have to call out the fire department to halp you do this simple job. And, when it is done, you'll find that you will be really proud of your accomplishment.

Here are the directions straight from Virginia Polytechnic Institute –

Compost Pile

The addition of organic matter is the most beneficial treatment to improve and maintain soil.

It loosens and improved the drainage and aeration of heavy clay soils while increasing the moisture-holding ability of very light, sandy soils. Organically-rich soils warm up earlier in the spring and hold moisture longer in hot-dry weather.

Many home vegetable gardeners want to use organic material when preparing the soil for their gardens, so they also keep a compost pile to hasten the disintegration of materials which will be usable in the garden.

The compost pile hastens the decomposition of such organic material as leaves, grass clippings and table scraps by bacteria and fungi organisms. It considerably reduces the bulk of the materials.

There is usually no objectionable odor during the process when layers of soil are added to the compost pile. When thoroughly decayed, there is little possibility of disease or insect problems from using compost, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf.

Those who make compost regularly, usually construct a bin of planks or concrete blocks about four feet wide, four feet high and as long as desired. Sometimes two bins are constructed – one to accumulate refuse while composting is taking place in the other.

But just a place in the open will be sufficient, she said, a bin is not necessary.

Start the compost pile with a six-inch layer of leaves, straw, weeds or other plant material. Coarse weeds and corn stalks should be cut into pieces about eight inches long.

Those who prefer organic fertilizer should then scatter five pints of dried manure on each layer of organic material. If an alkaline compost is desired, add one pint of ground limestone per square yard of surface area.

Conventional gardeners should sprinkle one cupful of 5-10-5 or 5-10-10 fertilizer per square yard on top of the plant material.

Add a layer of soil about one inch thick to supply the fungi and bacterial organisms needed to cause the composting to occur.

Repeat the layering of plant material, fertilizer and soil as many times as needed to use the available leaves or plant refuse. The top should be lower in the center to cause water to move into the pile rather than to run off.

"There is no need to use compost activator compounds," said the specialist, who is a member of Virginia Tech's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty.

Water the pile as often as necessary to maintain a relatively high moisture content, she advised. This promotes decomposition.

The pile should be forked or mixed after about three months.

The plant materials should decompose into good compost in about four or five months in warm weather, but may take longer under cool or dry conditions.

Dear Mr. Lee:

Your editorial comments on "Arson in the Springtime" are most appropriate for Lee County. Each year Lee County is at or near the top for the largest number of fires per county in Virginia

Sad but true, many of these fires are started by indescriminate, unneces sary, and harmful burning. The points you made in your column stress this and I hope that through education a trend of a reduced fire occurrance will develop in Lee County.

Diane Herndon's write-up of the interview with Harold Jerrell and the 4 p.m. Law notice certainly added additional re-enforcement to what you had already said.

Thanks again for your personal efforts and the use of the newspaper to help promote the protec tion of one of our most valuable natural resources.

Sincerely,
Randall Parris
Asst. District Forester

Dear Editor:

I am writing to you with the hope that you will publish my letter in your newspaper. I am unable to pay printing fees because I'm a prisoner.

I was born in Dryden, Va. in 1956. In 1960 my parents and I moved to Georgia. My parents were divorced later and I lived with my mother until she was killed in an automobile accident. Then I was plac ed in a foster home until I turned 17. Now I'm in prison. I feel that some of my relatives still live around Dryden, and I want you to publish my letter in hopes that some of my relatives, or someone who knows them may write to me. I have never felt so much alone in my life. I am a white male, age 24. But loneliness picks no color or age to fall upon. My mother's name was Margie Pittman.

If anyone writes to me, please enclose a stamp. I am unable to get them

Sincerely Written

Grandparents Proud Of Talented Twins

Claude and Margaret Williams of Jonesville are quite proud of their twin granddaughters, Donna and Debbie, and rightly so. Both girls, outstanding seniors at Woodson High School, Fairfax, have excelled in their chosen interests.

Both are members of the National Honor Society and are active in both school and community events and have been the recipients of many honors and awards.

Debbie has quite an impressive record in diving competition having been the state diving champion for several years as well as a district and regional champion.

Co-captain of the diving team, she is currently part of the reigning state champion swimming and diving team.

Debbie is also active in varsity track and field hockey and was selected for the school's home coming court. She has also been selected to be listed in Who's Who Among American High School students.

Donna, on the other hand, has concentrated much of her energies on cheerleading and gymnastics, serving as co-captain of the reigning state champion gymnastic team at Woodson. She has been a varsity cheerleader for three years and she, also, enjoys diving.

Donna was one of six finalists in the Northern Virginia Junior Miss Pageant in which she won the title segment and was later featured on local television with her gymnastic routine.

She also was selected to be included in Who's Who Among American High School students.

daughter, Melanie at Dryden, Va.

Pictures were made of the couple and family members. The Horners have eleven children, twenty-seven grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

"Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Horner on their anniversary and we hope they have many more happy years together."

Surprise Birthday Party

A surprise birthday party was given in honor of Mrs. Bonnie Pennington of Keokee by her daughters and sons on March 4, at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Pennington in Big Stone Gap.

Virginia Tech "Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

Shoplifters steal 10 million dollars' worth of retail merchandise a day -- and you pick up the tab.

To operate a business at a profitable level, a retailer needs to compensate for losses that occur, so if shoplifting increases, there is acomparable increase in price to account for it. Shoplifting increased 250 percent between 1960 and 1975.

Most shoplifters are amateurs who steal for convenience or out of immediate necessity. However, the 5 percent of shoplifters who are classified as professionals account for more than half the total shoplifting dollar loss.

And while 55 to 60 percent of amateur shoplifters are teenagers, the merchandise teenagers steal is worth only a fraction of that lifted by adults. In one study, 621 of 1,129 shoplifters arrested in one year were juveniles; they accounted, however, for only $6,741 of the more than $30,000 worth of merchandise stolen.

In supermarkets, where shoplifting is a very serious problem, nonfood items are the primary target of shoplifters, making up 36 percent of all the stolen goods. Meat accounts for 10 percent of the items stolen in food stores; deli products 8 percent, cigarettes 4 percent, liquor 5 percent, and vitamins 1 percent; other food items make up 19 percent of the total.

Shoplifting is only part of what retailers call "shrink" -- loss of merchandise or receipts; employees theft, bookkeeping errors, and spoilage also contribute to this problem.

While shoplifting is not the largest contributor to shrink, it carries with it serious "social costs" not associated with internal theft, spoilage, or bookkeeping errors. Money spent on protection services -- on security policemen and on electronics surveillance devices -- is really a social cost.

Protection against shoplifting is obviously necessary, but the money spent on it could otherwise be spent to help the consumer.

Thought for the Day

'Tis No Sin Not To Be Irish — Just A Terrible, Terrible Shame

Of all religious feast days observed by ethnic groups, the feast of St. Patrick, patron saint of the Irish, seems to be the one most universally celebrated by people of differing ethnic backgrounds.

While March 17th is often marked wth parties and parades involving once-a-year Irishmen, the feast of St. Patrick is still a day of deep religious significance to millions of Irish Catholics throughout the world.

"The true seriousness of the day to the Irish is reflected in the fact that the majority of our St. Patrick's Day cards have a religious, rather than humorous, theme to them," said Richard Connor, senior vice president for creative and merchandising at Cleveland-based American Greetings Corp.

Connor explained that industry sales of St. Patrick's Day cards this year will be about 20 million, with at least 60 percent of these bearing cute, traditional, sentimental or religious messages. He added that studies conducted over the years show that nearly 70 percent of all St. Patrick's Day cards are purchased by Irishmen.

"Some people send out more St. Patrick's Day cards than Christmas cards," Connor said

The most popular St Patrick's Day cards are those which express sentiment about the Irish homeland, the Blarney stone or the joys of being Irish. One American Greetings offering, written several years ago by an Irishman on "What Is It To Be Irish," concludes by saying, " 'Tis no sin not to be Irish, just a terrible, terrible shame "

The religious cards recount the exploits of St Patrick, who was born in England and at age 16 was carried off by a band of Irish marauders. During his six-year bondage, he had religious visions which led him to escape.

Following his escape, St. Patrick took religious training and was eventually ordained a deacon of the Church. In the fifth century he returned to Ireland to convert the Irish to Christianity. Legend has it that he used the three-leaf shamrock to demonstrate the idea of the Trinity to the Irish.

Conner said that other ethnic groups get in on the St. Patrick's celebration just for the fun of it, and for many people the revelry is a way of celebrating the end of winter and the coming of spring. It's a welcome break during the solemn period of Lent for Irish Catholics.

"Even the fairly recent upheavals in Northern Ireland have not diminished the celebration of St. Patrick's Day," he added.

"In fact, we expect sales for the holiday to show over a 15% increase this year. Especially popular designs include Himself, the Elf, an exclusive American Greetings character who typifies the leprechaun concept, and the universally popular Ziggy," Connor said.

He added that both the Irish and those who wish they were are the big buyers of the light-humor and studio cards. Also popular is the line of accessories in the new Blarney Boutique, which includes green derby hats, garters, pins, ties and desk signs that proclaim "Irish is Beautiful."

Black - Long Vows Exchanged

Barbara P. Black of Luray and Robert H. Long of Timberville were married Sunday, December 28, at the Main Street Baptist Church in Luray, Va.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald W. Black of Luray and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Long of Timberville.

The Rev. J. Randy Elrod, assisted by Father Charles Ryan, performed the 7 p.m. double-ring candlelight ceremony, amid altar decorations of white Christmas poinsettias, gladioli, white roses and ivy, candelabra, palms and the Chrismon tree. White kneelers, pew and window candles completed the setting.

A selection of Christmas music was played by Carole Baird. Paul Baird sang Gregorian chant selections, "Oh Come, Emmanuel," and "O Holy Night" prior to the ceremony. The processional was "Trumpets Voluntary" by Purcell.

The bride, escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, wore a gown designed by Jerry Long, brother of the groom, and fashioned by the bride's mother. The empire waist underdress of candlelight crepe satin featured a V neck, bell sleeves and was trimmed in ivory lace. The cuffs and skirt were embroidered in gold thread by the bride. The overdress of ivory velveteen and lace had slashed bishop sleeves and was laced up the sides in gold cord in a Renaissance fashion.

The full length veil of ivory illusion bordered in lace hung from a lace headpiece which was worn by the bride's mother in her wedding. The bride wore her maternal great grandmother's gold wedding locket and her maternal grandmother's wedding garter.

She carried a cascade bouquet of cymbidium orchids, white roses and ivy, accented by ivory lace ribbons. The groom carried in his vest pocket an antique handmade lace handkerchief which has been in the bride's family for several generations.

Ann Clark Fisher of Luray was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Nancy Leigh Black and Rebecca Ennis Black, sisters in law of the bride. The attendants wore empire waisted full-length gowns of burgundy velvet, featuring scooped neck lines and bell sleeves, trimmed in ivory lace. Their headpieces were matching Juliet caps. They carried Brandy snifters containing lighted candles surrounded by holly leaves and accented with a burgundy velvet bow and streamers.

During the wedding Paul Baird sang "Ave Maria" and "The Lord's Prayer". While the bride and groom were lighting their unity candle, Jerry Long sang "The Sabbath Prayer" from "Fiddler on the Roof." The candle was the groom's baptism confirmation candle.

Best man was DeLee Stearn of Lacy Springs. Groomsmen were Preston Hale of Gordonsville, brother in law of the groom, and Jerry Long, brother of the groom. Ushers were Charles Shepherd Black, Paul Nicholas Black and Richard McDowell Black, brothers of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Black wore an ivory blouse and full length jumper of forest green velvet with gold accessories. Her corsage was a cymbidium orchid with gold ribbons. The groom's mother wore a long skirt and overblouse, fashioned by Jerry Long, fashioned of black velveteen, plum velour and ivory lace, complemented by antique black lace gloves. Her wrist corsage was of white carnations and lace.

Wedding director was Mrs. Paul Clark of Luray.

The recessional was the "Toccata Movement" from Widor's "Fifth Organ Symphony."

Reception decorations for the church social hall were done by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Paul Black. Kathleen McInnis of Milwaukee, Wis. was the reception hostess. Miss McInnis and Mrs. Scott Walker of Fredericksburg served the wedding cake. Punch was served by Mrs. Preston Hale of Gordonsville, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Brent Long of Timbersville, sister-in-law of the groom. Mrs. John Linaberg was in charge of the refreshment table. The groom's cake, a surprise gift to the groom from Mrs. Paul Black, was served by Mrs. William Bruce Black, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. James Knox Van Arsdale Willson III of Baltimore, Md., cousin of the bride.

The couple's wedding trip included a visit to Colonial Williamsburg which was highlighted by a candlelight concert in the Ballroom of the Governor's Palace.

The bride graduated from Mary Washington College with a B.A. in French. She received an M.A. in French from Middlebury College in Vermont and an M.A. and Ph.D. in medieval French language and literature from Tulane University. Coeburn Outpoints Pocahontas For Region D Crown

The Coeburn Blue Knights are now headed for Charlottesville, site of the group A state championship. Coeburn earned the trip with a tough 56-51 win over the Pocahontas Indians this past Saturday night at Ewing, Virginia.

The Blue Knights only had a 11-10 first quarter lead, but managed to stretch it to a margin of three at halftime, 25 22.

Both teams scored 16 points in the third stanza, setting the stage for a fourth quarter with both teams playing on fairly even grounds.

With around sixteen seconds left in the game, Coeburn was leading, but only by two points at 53-51. Pocahontas, at this point, fouled Frank Mooney. Mooney, then went to the charity stripe for a 1 and 1 situation and a chance to seal the win. He hit the front end but missed the bonus shot to put Coeburn ahead 54 51. The Blue Knights really put the lock on the game moments later with a bucket to make the final 56-51. The Indians only lead came in the first quarter. Even though they never could retain the lead again, they stayed within striking distance, nearly the whole game.

Leading the winners was John Hall who scored 16 points. Jeff Livingston who averages around 31 points a game was held to 15 points. Frank Mooney who hit the free throw to assure the win, tossed in nine points.

Pocahontas was led by playmaker Ronnie Kennedy with 17 points. He is a fine ball player, and will definitely make some college team a good player. Montell Bowman was next with 14 points. The Indians played six different players in the game, and all of them got in the scoring column.

Pocahontas, who has represented the Black Diamond District well in the tournament, closes out their season at 14 wins and 8 losses. They shot 60% from the free throw circle, hitting 3 of 5 shots. They were guilty of 21 fouls in the game. They beat Coeburn 48-46 from the field, but didn't shoot many free throws. This is where the game was probably lost.

Coeburn now 22-4 on the year is the only team left in Southwest Virginia to continue to compete for the state honors, so all area fans from all districts should get behind the Blue Knights and pull hard for them. There will undoubtfully be a host of area fans following Coeburn to Charlotteaville.

The Blue Knights only committed nine fouls against Pocahontas, and four of them were on one player. So Blue Knights, when you get to Charlottesville, keep your mistkaes to a minimum and you shall go far!! Take it to them Blue Knights!

Score By Quarters:

Coeburn	11	14	16	15	56
P	10	12	16	13	51

Individual Scoring:

Coeburn [56] Hall 16, Livingston 15, Mooney 9, Sanders 8, Gibson 5, Meade 3.

Pocahontas [51] Kennedy 17, Bowman 14, Dillon 6, Asbury 6, White 4, Collins 4.

Bledsoe - Kiser Vows Exchanged In January

Agnes Dianne Bledsoe and Gary Allen Kiser were married January 10, 1981, at 2:00 P.M., at the First Baptist Church of Gate City. The Reverend Paul Blessing officiated at the double-ring, candlelight ceremony.

The Bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley T. Bledsoe of Jonesville, Virginia. The Bridegroom is the son of Mr. Jack Kiser of Willoughby, Ohio.

A program of wedding music was provided by Mrs. Catherine Clouse.

Given in marriage by her father, the Bride chose a formal white satin gown which featured a yoke bodice of alencon lace with matching lace ruffle and satin buttons. The long bell sleeves and empire waist were accented with matching lace. The A-line skirt fell into a chapel length train.

The veil and blusher were edged with lace and attached to a pearled lace bridal cap. She carried a bouquet of red roses with long red and white streamers tied in love knots.

Sharon Bledsoe, Sister of the Bride, served as Maid of Honor. She wore a long pink dress with a matching flowered chiffon cape which featured a low gathered neckline with narrow straps and an A-line skirt. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Sue Hash, Aunt of the Bride, served as Bridesmaid. She wore a long dusty rose dress styled in the same fashion as that of the Maid of Honor, and carried a long stemmed pink mum.

Mitchell Bledsoe served the groom as Best Man and Jeffrey Neal served as Usher.

After a short trip to Gatlinburg, the couple will reside in Jonesville.

Mountain Road

By Rossie M. Robbins

Theres an old Country Road back in the hills.
Far away, its winding by the trails.
Where the pines and cedars grow.
By the Mountain streams that flow.
Back in that little valley I once lived.
Just an old Mountain road I see today.
Living in my heart in Memories.
Where the laurel and ivy bloom.
In the hills I call home.
Back in that little valley I'll always love.

Down that old Mountain road I'll always go,
as I travel through the hills that I know.
In fond memories that linger on.
And I hum this old song.
Going back to my childhood mountain home.

Down that Lee County line I love so well, where I go each year in the hills.
Among the cedars and the pines.
On the trail of the Lonesome Pine.
Going back to that little valley where I grew up.

Back in the hills where I was born.
Theres an old Country road I traveled on.
Where the weeping willows grow.
By the Mountain streams that flow.
Many years, now have passed since I've been gone.

Down that Lee County line I love best.
Where the birds sing in spring and build their nest.
over the Cumberland Mountain top where the road winds and drops.
Going back to that little valley that I love.

Down that Lee County line among the pines.
Down that old Mountain road that winds and winds,
Where the wild flowers bloom in spring.
Where old folks live and dream.
Back in that little valley I call home.

ANOTHER FIRE - The scene pictured is a prime illustration of the time and effort required to put out fires set by those who feel the urge to burn, come springtime! The efforts to extinguish this fire brought out a large number of the members of the Pennington Gap Fire Department last Wednesday. They did quickly bring the fire under control. It had spread into a wooded area; "jumped" across a street, posing a threat to nearby homes.

"You Are The Key To Cancer Control"

This April the American Cancer Society's annual educational and fund raising Crusade is saying to everyone, "You are the Key to Cancer Control."

"Each individual, young and old, male and female, has a part to play in the continuing fight to control cancer," said Mr. Joe P. Lyle, newly appointed chairman of the Lee County Cancer Crusade.

Lee County's Crusade will begin Monday, April 6, and continue throughout the week.

"We'll be asking not only friends, neighbors, and relatives, but absolute strangers to consult their doctors about cancer related checkups. In addition, our volunteers will ask people to help support the American Cancer Society's programs to facilitate the prevention, detection, treatment and ultimate elimination of cancer as a threat to public health," Mr. Lyle said.

"We have an army of more than 2,000,000 dedicated volunteers everywhere in the country which is urging all people to learn about the Society's life-saving information and share their knowledge with others," the crusade leader said.

"Support of research is one way to fight cancer," he said, "but I wonder how many people realize that we could save many more lives from cancer right now with just the knowledge we already have – if only everyone understood how important it is to detect cancer in its early and most curable stage."

"The entire emphasis of the 1981 Crusade is on the individual," Mr. Lyle said. "We're out to tell people that it's what they don't know about cancer that can hurt. We want to enlist each one in some phase of our cancer control programs. That is why our theme this year is, 'You Are The Key to Cancer Control.'"

School Board Hears More About HELP

Lee County School Board members were urged by Superintendent Bob McCoy to either "re affirm, change or take some sort of stance to spur local supervisors into action" with regard to a local school improvement program

Inadequate, over-crowded and out-moded facilities, particularly at Jonesville Elementary, have been the target of a concerned parents' group, HELP.

Representing the HELP organization at the March 10 regular meeting of the School Board were Mrs. Janet Hays and Mrs. Pat Fortner

HELP members, seeking an immediate solution to the problems with facilities at Jonesville Elementary would like to see a consolidation of sorts that would relocate Jonesville Elementary students at Flatwoods and move Flatwoods High School students to Jonesville High.

The feasibility of such a project would further depend on the construction of at least 10 rooms at Flatwoods to accomodate the larger numbers

Board member Terry Estep questioned if there were any cost figures on the HELP proposal and was told that the School Board had never made any recommendations to pursue the concept.

Superintendent McCoy did point out that unofficially the "601" Farmers Home Administration funding for a high school in eastern Lee County would likely be a reality by May

School Board members were advised to be closely aware of recent developments concerning HELP and its requests, but at the same time, to stick to what it deems most feasible and Hope High For Contract Agreement ...

Hope for the United Mine Workers and the soft coal industry to reach a tentative contract agreement was brighter yesterday as the talks went on into the night and past the original Monday negotiating deadline.

The present three-year contract does not expire for another ten days, but the union's policy that it needs ten days to complete ratification by its bargaining council and the approximately 160,000 rank-and-file members ecould result in the UMW no contract, no work policy going into effect

The UMW struck the coal industry for two days earlier this month in a move that was designed to protest what the miners saw as the administration's efforts to change the

Carrying Concealed Weapon Legally

The U.S. Constitution guarantees citizens of this country the right to bear firearms

That right, however, is further clarified in Virginia's statute, Code Section 18.2-308 which forbids any person to carry a concealed weapon on his person such as a pistol, knife, switchblade, etc., without first obtaining permission of the circuit court.

This particular statute is the basis for gun permit control excluding from its jurisdiction local law enforcement officials, rural mail carriers or "any person while in his own place of abode."

It is perfectly lawful and legal to keep a weapon or firearm in your own home or place of business, but you must obtain a certified gun permit to conceal such a weapon on your person.

The procedure for licensing a weapon is fairly simple – the permit being effective for only one year from the date of issuance.

The first step in gun control licensing involves the services of an attorney who must be hired to petition the circuit court for the permit

On this petition, which is also signed by the sheriff and the local commonwealth attorney, the attorney states why John Q Public needs to be able to carry a concealed weapon and further confirms the validity of such a request by stating that the individual in question is of good character based on the evidence as presented

A quick perusal of gun permits on file in the county clerk's office, which are a matter of public record, indicate by far the most common reason cited for carrying a concealed weapon is the frequent transportation of money or valuables from one location to another in the course of an ordinary business day

Many persons, whom you'd least suspect, have permits to carry concealed weapons: dentists, doctors, coal operators, bookkeepers, ministers, night watchmen, retired persons, farmers, teachers and lawyers, just to name a few and, of course, former deputies

Several petitioners for a gun permit cited the need to carry a concealed weapon due to recent threatening phone calls or break-ins of an individual's home

In another case, the petitioner explained that his only means of transportation was walking and that sometimes his feet carried him through places of peril where a firearm was necessary for personal protection

Other gun permit applications show that some petitioners fear for their personal safety due to being made possible employers in their respective lines of work

Several members of volunteer service organizations such as fire departments or rescue squads are compelled to legally carry a concealed weapon having to make calls at hours of the night or assist in

Lee, Wise GOP To Host Reception For J. Marshall Coleman

The Wise and Lee County Republican Parties will host a reception for the Honorable J. Marshall Coleman, Attorney General and Republican candidate for Governor of the Commonwealth of Virginia on Marsh 26, 1981 from 6:30 until 9:00 in the evening at The Coach House in Big Stone Gap.

Coleman, Virginia's 38-year-old energetic Attorney General, according to Bobby Joe Dotson and Ronnie Montgomery, Republican Party Chairmen, is superbly qualified for the Office of Governor. "His years of experience in the Virginia legislature as both a Delegate and a Senator, as the Commonwealth's number one legal officer, his strong record of conservative positions on important policy matters, and his personal appeal will all be brought to Southwest Virginia," said the officials

It was Coleman who requested state lawmakers to cut his personal office budget. It was Coleman who said the parole system made prisoners into actors, who advocated repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act, and who pledged to fight the intrusion of belingual education in Virginia Schools. He began legal preceedings against repressive federal surface mining laws, defended the Commonwealth's worker safety program against federal interference, and filed suit to avoid adoption of a dues checkoff policy for organized employees with the City of Richmond.

Recently, members of the joint legislative caucus of the General Assembly sent letters to Coleman, praising him for his performance as Attorney General.

In a message Virginia's Attorney has been sounding for years, J. Marshall Coleman remains faithful to the principals that serve as the bedrock of his convictions. "There is a new mandate," he says. "We want the federal government to stop interfering in our lives."

The three Republican candidates for Lieutenant Governor have been invited to the reception. They are State Senator Herbert H. Bateman, former Delegate Guy Farley, and State Senator Nathan Miller

Bateman, 52, has represented the Second District in the Virginia State Senate since 1968. Since being elected to the Senate, Bateman has served on numerous panels and has been deeply in-

DOING HER SHARE - Mrs. Emma Woodyard is shown with one of "her boys," Carlos Stapleton, as she works at completing another colorful afghan. Carlos, a member of the Junior Rescue Squad, displays a beautiful afghan similar to the one Mrs. Woodyard made for that organization. It will be used as a fund raising project. The organization, just recently activated, is in great need of equipment and supplies.

Mrs. Woodyard, now 74 years of age, is a member of the Mountain Empire Senior Citizens organization. She has been crocheting for the past 65 years. She has crocheted approximately 50 afghans, many of which have won blue ribbons at the Lee County Fair. She has no record of the number she has given to her friends.

Mrs. Woodyard, despite a recent illness that left her somewhat handicapped, stays busy with her crocheting and visiting with her friends. Her jolly, outgoing personality and her desire to be of service to all of her friends sets an excellent example for those who may be younger and perhaps stronger physically. Thanks to Mrs. Woodyard, the Junior Rescue Squad will be able to buy at least some of the equipment and materials they so urgently need.

Cost Of Operating Public Schools Up 12% In '78-'79

The average expenditure per pupil for the operation of public schools in Virginia rose by 12 percent in 197 80, marking the second straight year that expenditures reflected the effects of double digit inflation

A statistical report released today by the Department of Education shows that the total per pupil expenditures of local, state, and federal funds rose from $1,669 in 1978 79 to $1,869 the following year. Between 1977 78 and 1978 79, the increase was 13 percent

The publication referred to above reveals the following information concerning Lee County: Average Daily Membership 5,597. Per Pupil Expenditures Local Funds $353. From State Sales Tax $168. State Funds $742; Federal Funds $330. Total Per Pupil Expenditure $1,594

For the purpose of comparison it is interesting to note the total per pupil expenditures from other counties. Wise $1,562; Scott $1,411. The highest total per pupil expenditure noted in the report was Arlington-$3,572. The lowest classified as a city Poquoson $1,205

A breakdown of the 1979 80 total shows an average of $1186 per pupil coming from federal funds, $536 from basic state aid and categorical funds $190 from state sales tax revenue returned to localities for the schools and $841 from local funds not including capital outlay and debt service State expenditures also included $12 per pupil for the operation of the Department of Education and $104 per pupil for employee benefits (social security, retirement group life insurance) fair to all school children of Lee County in the long run.

In other business, the Superintendent reported that in the face of inflation, a reduction of USDA commodities, rising food prices, higher minimum wages and a cutback in reimbursements, 90 per cent of the schools in the County are facing a cost dilemma in the cafeteria program.

McCoy noted that of the 5,645 students in Lee County, 68.5 percent are eligible for reduced or free lunches while approximately 31.6 percent pay the full price.

"The natural inclination," he said, "to meet costs is to hike the price of lunches, but since only one third are paying full price, it wouldn't really help the situation that much."

McCoy figures it best just to ride out the rest of the year as is, but advised that the Board would have to look at the cafeteria situation cafefully before next fall rolls around.

Sam Cecil, Follow Through director, told Board member that the local Follow Through program was expecting a 20 percent reduction in federal funds for next year. Cecil said the program would be eligible for a $10,000 supplemental grant in January, but that it couldn't be used for salaries.

Head Start, on the other hand, seems to be in good stead with the Reagan Administration, it was reported, and will receive a $21,000 supplement.

In other reports, the Superintendent noted

19 students had participated in the recent one act play festival in the County.

Repairs on the Stickleyville Elementary roof are just about completed.

19 CETA worksite positions will be terminated at the first of April, 12 laborers and seven aides.

In final action, the Board voted

Approval of a CETA worksite agreement for Mrs. Katherine Cody, laborer at Pennington Elementary.

To send a letter of appreciation to former Board members Rufus Fugate and Creed Chadwell.

searches for lost persons in deserted sections of terrain.

For many, by virture of employment, carrying a concealed weapon is necessary for personal safety such as in the case of an insurance agent who carries money, a night watchman or a school maintenance worker who keeps odd hours.

Obtaining gun permits is no cheap matter when considering one must reapply every year to keep within the law.

A quick phone call of several local attorneys indicate that legal fees for petitioning the court for a permit ranged from $25 to $100, depending on the attorney. Each petitioner must also pay a $5 filing fee with the county clerk's office.

Local Lee County Sheriff R.V. Chadwell said before he signs any gun permit application, he checks to see what type of person is applying for the permit, whether they're violent or of a good reputation. As best as he can recall, he remembers more applications in early 1980 as compared to early 1981, in part, perhaps, to the changeover of local law enforcement staffing with several former deputies applying for gun permits.

Chadwell said that there had been several cases where he had refused to sign an application, although his signature is not necessary for the circuit court judge to grant permission for the permit.

Expenditures by localities during 1979-80 ranged from $3,572 per pupil in Arlington County to $1,205 in the city of Poquoson. Two other divisions -- the cities of Alexandria and Falls Church -- spent more than $3,000 per pupil, and nine divisions spent between $2,000 and $3,000. An additional $300 per pupil went toward capital outlay and debt service.

Total operational costs in the state's 140 school divisions in 1979-80 were $1,800,389,026, an increase of $169,389,037 over comparable expenditures the year before. Forty-eight percent of the revenue ($864,102,812) came from local funds, 30.6 percent ($550,495,075) from state basic and categorical aid, 10.8 percent ($195,129,988) from state sales tax revenue, and 10.6 percent ($190,661,151) from federal funds.

The agency report also showed a 6 percent increase in teachers' salaries, which went from an average of $13,288 in 1978-79 to $14,079 in 1979-80. The average salary for all instructional personnel also rose by 6 percent, from $13,828 in 1978-79 to $14,655 in 1979-80.

For the past three years, slightly more than 50 per cent of Virginia's public high school graduates have planned to attend college. According to the report, 15.2 percent of the 1980 graduates expected to enroll in two year colleges and 35.2 percent planned to attend four year colleges. Another 8.1 percent said they would continue their education in business, trade, or technical schools or through on the job training.

The number of student dropouts in grades 8 through 12 decreased slightly in 1979-80 from that recorded for the two previous years. During the last year, 21,763 students, or 5.4 percent of the total membership, withdrew from school, 0.3 percent fewer than had left in 1978-79 and 0.2 percent fewer than in 1977-78.

The report, Facing Up, also included the following data for 1979-80:

*The ratio of students to teachers dropped from 17.1 to 1 in 1978-79 to 16.3.1 in 1979-80. The elementary school ratio in 1979-80 was 17.5.1 and the secondary school ratio, 14.7.1

Collision Claims Life Of Ky. Man

Lee Gaston Wilson, Jr., of Middlesboro, Ky., was killed instantly when the vehicle he was driving hit a concrete abutment on U.S. 58, approximately six miles west of State Route 693 in western Lee County.

The collision, which occurred at 12:10 a.m. on March 17 was investigated by Trooper L.A. Ruley. According to his report, the 33-year old victim driving a '79 pickup west bound on U.S. 58 apparently rounded a curve and ran off the road on the lefthand side striking a concrete overpass abutment.

The vehicle skidded back across the road and came to rest on an embankment.

The present three year contract was signed in 1978 after a 111 day general strike. This was the longest strike in the history of the industry.

There are indications that neither the union leaders or the rank and file members nor the industry want a strike. There is also indication that if the hoped for agreement does not come until later this week, a strike of only a few days duration would allow the miners to return to work as soon as ratification is confirmed.

Are you interested in your state government? How about the 1981 session of the General Assembly? A non-partisan meeting will be held on Monday, March 23 at the American Legion Post 185 in Jonesville at 7:00 p.m.

'81 Scout Show At BSG April 4

Ticket sales for the 1981 Scout Show are now in full swing and final plans are now being made for Scouting's biggest event of the year. Over 500 Scouts from Big Stone Gap, Appalachia, Pound, Norton, Wise, Coeburn, Jonesville and Duffield have already announced their plans to participate in the event and even more are expected.

The actual Scout Show will not begin until 1:00 p.m. on April 4th, at the National Guard Armory in Big Stone Gap, but a kick-off ceremony has been scheduled for April 3, the night before the actual Show.

According to a Scout spokesman, the "Order of the Arrow" will present a colorful and breath taking Indian Dance Ceremony to the public. The time and place of this performance will be announced next week.

Scouts will set up booths at the Armory on the day of the show for inspection by the public as well as judges which will be selected later. Each exhibit will be judged on a point system and presented either a blue, red or yellow ribbon according to their particular score.

One of the highlights of the afternoon will be finals of the District Pinewood Derby which is presently scheduled for 2:30 on the day of the Show.

Tickets are available from any Scout whose troop or pack is participating in the Scout Show. The price of a ticket is only $1.00 and will help finance Pack, Troop and Post activities in your area.

USDA Official, Wampler To Address Farming Group

C.W. McMillan, assistant secretary, United States Department of Agriculture, and Ninth District Congressman William C. Wampler will be the featured speakers at the annual meeting of the Southwest Virginia Agricultural Association, Saturday, March 21st.

McMillan's topic will be, "What's In Store for Rural America's in the 1980's." Wampler will discuss "Outlook for Agricultural Research and Extension Support from the National Level in the 1980's."

Both addresses will be during the general session of the Association scheduled at 2 p.m. in Wiley Hall at Emory & Henry College.

McMillan is well known in beef cattle circles across the United States, having been executive vice president of the American Cattleman's Association for several years. His broad based knowledge of agriculture is expected to be reflected in his approach to his responsibilities as assistant secretary.

During recent confirmation hearings he told the House Agriculture Committee that he intends to maintain a proper balance between producer and consumer interests.

He indicated an intention to work on improving marketing systems by making improvements within the existing framework. He also indicated he hoped that with food safety and quality services under his supervision there would be ways to minimize regulatory requirements without threatening product quality or safety.

The public is invited to attend, according to Roy A. Meek, Draper president of the Southwest Virginia Agricultural Association.

Prior to the general session, the 17 Association committees will be conducting work sessions. Registration for committees begins at 9:30 a.m. with a general meeting of all committee members at 10:00 a.m. Committees will be meeting from 10:30 a.m. until noon. General registration is from noon until 1:30 p.m.

The Southwest Virginia Agricultural Association is a broad based organization of Southwest Virginia farmers and farm related people with an interest in improvement of agriculture and rural living. People sharing these interests are invited to attend and participate.

American Energy Week March 15-21

American Energy Week - slated for March 15-21, 1981 - was conceived to raise the nation's consciousness about the urgency of the energy issue. It has evolved into a broad national coalition of energy producers, users and consumers - from business, labor, government - from minority groups, civic organizations and church groups - from urban and rural communities - from senior citizens and youth groups.

Here in Virginia, Governor Dalton has designated March 15-21 officially, as American Energy Week (AEW) in the State of Virginia by signing a proclamation to that effect. In so doing Governor Dalton has called attention to the importance of AEW citing that, "The cost and often scarcity of energy is a national energy problem, calling for an informed response by every citizen."

Governor Dalton has appointed Dr. Temple Bayliss, Office of Emergency and Energy Services (OEES) Energy Division Director as State Program Coordinator for AEW.

According to Dr. Bayliss, American Energy Week has two basic objectives - to dramatize the magnitude of the energy questions that beg prompt action, and to use the Week's events and programs as a springboard for sustained educational and informational efforts.

Special Thanks

Due to the love, compassion and generosity of such a wide range of people who have been so kind, thoughtful and generous during the loss of our home, we find it almost an impossibility to acknowledge each one personally at the risk of some one being omitted.

Therefore, to the hundreds of our friends, neighbors, The Stickleyville PTO family and employees, we wish to take this opportunity to express to each and everyone who has so generously come to our aid, our personal heartfelt thanks.

All the love, the gifts, the calls and the many other expressions of love have made our loss much easier to bear.

May God Bless each and everyone of you in a very special way.

ARC Fact Sheet Outlines Commission's Effectiveness

In view of the tenuous nature of the Appalachian Regional Commission's funding status with the Reagan Administration, the staff of the LENOWISCO Planning District recently released a fact sheet about the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) and its accomplishments in Virginia's Appalachian region.

According to the fact sheet, Appalachia is defined as a 195,000 square mile area following the spine of the Appalachian Mountains from Virginia and parts of 12 other states: Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Tennessee.

The Virginia portion of the Appalachian region encompasses 21 counties and five independent cities, Lee County being one in the Virginia sector.

The Commission is composed of the governors of the 13 states that make up Appalachia and a federal co-chairman who is appointed by the President.

A state co-chairman is elected from among the governors, the position being rotated among the states. During 1981, Governor Lamar Alexander of Tennessee serves as the states' co-chairman.

A commission staff of approximately 110 is headed by an executive director, with the cost of maintaining the staff shared equally by federal and state governments.

The fact sheet goes on to point out that ARC was created in 1965 by the U.S. Congress as a means of building a better economy and quality of life for Appalachia and its citizens, an area which has traditionally suffered from chronic economic and social distress, isolation, a lack of transportation, unemployment, boom-and-bust cycles of prosperity and poverty, and a lack of public facilities.

ARC is described as being a unique partnership of federal, state and local governments with development programs or project proposals only introduced by a state, no projects can be initiated at the federal level.

To assist local planning and to insure that ARC funds are used to serve the local communities, the Commission, through its member states, works with planning and development agencies, known as planning district commissions.

Each planning district commission is composed of locally elected officials and non-elected citizen representatives, as well as professional staff.

In assessing what ARC has accomplished in Virginia's Appalachian region, the fact sheet states that between 1966 and 1979 Virginia received $105,884,420 for highway development, the largest single emphasis of the program.

A total of $93,926,361 has been spent in non-highway programs.

Education	$33,605,759
Health and Medical Services	16,903,271
Water and Sewer	13,797,048
Access Roads	6,166,252
Energy, Environment and Natural Resources	5,900,651
Child Development	5,084,605
PDC Planning and Administration	4,798,951
Industrial Development	1,994,614
Housing	1,811,254
Solid Waste	1,394,348
Manpower Development	1,109,907
Library and ETV	745,465
Airport	544,364
State Research	330,321
Recreation and Tourism	327,134
Highway Planning	30,417
Total Non-Highway	$93,926,361

Statistics showing gains in population, income and employment in the Appalachian Region suggests, according to the fact sheet, that programs of ARC have had significant impact on the area.

During the decade between 1960 and 1970 while Virginia grew at a rate of 17.3 percent, the Appalachian localities actually suffered a six percent decline. However, between 1970 and 1980 the Appalachian area actually changed from a losing status to a population increase of 16 percent.

Per capital personal income is another interesting measure of change in Appalachian life. In 1962 the Appalachian region of Virginia possessed a personal income level barely more than half of the national average. By 1979 the region level had reached two thirds of the national standard and by 1978 three quarters, or $5,819.

In employment, available figures for 1970, 1974 and 1978, indicate very strong growth, totaling 34.5 percent for the Appalachian region over the entire period.

Though the Appalachian Regional Commission does not claim to have caused these changes, the news letter concludes, it has worked continuously and specifically to help bring them about.

WORD of GOD

And call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me.

Make sure they're safe

Kids and kites are a natural this time of year. But the excitement of watching a kite dance in the wind may blot out the idea of potential danger.

Make sure your children know these important safety tips

- Always use wood, paper and dry string in the kite—not wire or metal
- Fly the kite far from electric power lines and antennas
- Never fly a kite on rainy days
- Avoid busy streets and highways
- Keep away from fallen wires

Jonesville Senior Citizens

Something for today

March 17 is St. Patrick's Day, so wear green for the Irish. Some of my forefathers came from Ireland.

'Tis a flower which grows in Ireland;

The shamrock is its name.

It is known the wide world over,

Having gained tremendous fame.

On St. Patrick's Day all Irish

Wear shamrocks with a smile.

Spent on that Emerald Isle.

—Rev. Jim Fisher, pastor of Mt. Washington Covenant Church at Walens Creek, was the guest minister at the Senior Center Monday. He brought his lovely young wife, Lori with him. They have been with the Covenant Church for 2½ months. Jim read from the Bible, Zechariah 13:9, where silver was brought through the fire and refined. He told how gold was put over a high fire seven times, and the slag, or impurities, dipped off until you could see the reflection of your face in the pure gold. Should not the impurities be taken from our lives so that God can see our face?

—Jim and Lori Fisher told us that they were from the northern part of Virginia. Jim's dad was in the Army, so Jim had lived in New York, Illinois, Japan, and parts of Virginia, always going back to Northern Virginia. Lori is from Northern Virginia but attended college at St. Louis, Missouri. They are a lovely couple and we are glad to have them in Lee County. They stayed for the covered dish luncheon.

—Delegate Orby Cantrell will be a guest of the Jonesville Senior Citizens Center March 23, and will be speaking at 1:00 P.M. Most of the people know Mr. Cantrell and we hope you will attend this meeting at the Center in Cumberland Bowl Park. Mark this date on your calendar. The invitation was extended to Mr. Cantrell by Mr. L.H. Davis of Jonesville who has been working with him in Richmond. Mr. Davis has been in contact with Mrs. Baumgardner.

—Sympathy is extended to the family of Mr. Elbert B. Clark of Bedford, Ind., who passed away February 25. He was a former resident of Ocoonita but had lived in Bedford for the past 29 years. His wife, Irene, of Bedford, was the former Irene Lundy of Pennington Gap. He has a brother Mavin W. (Bud) Clark who lives at Big Stone Gap.

—We would like to wish "Happy Birthday" to Mr. Marvin James whose birthday was March 9, and his grandson Keith Herron who celebrated his 10th birthday with Grandma and Grandpa James last week.

—Another birthday was celebrated in the Burchett family. Larry Burchett of Corbin, Ky. celebrated his 14th birthday last Sunday with family and friends. His Grandma Jerushia Burchett baked a birthday cake, and his dad, Levi (Buddy) Burchett went with her to celebrate Larry's birthday. Happy birthday, Larry.

—Drexel and Alice Livesay and son Randy of Wise, Va., were Sunday guests of their mother and grandmother, Mrs. Kate Livesay.

—Ms. Elizabeth Harris was a Thursday guest of Mrs. Salhe Woliver.

—Mrs. Diane Jenks of Wickliffe, Ohio, is spending the week with her parents, Florence and Marvin James of Ocoonita. Diane visited the Senior Center, Monday. Having worked in Wickliffe, myself, for 14 years, and belonging to an organization in Willoughby where she does, we had a lot to talk about. We were happy that Diane could spend the day with us. We wish her a safe journey home.

—On the sick list, in hospitals and homes, are Cora Tye, her sister Gay Allen, Nettie Blackburn, the sister of Hattie Johnson and Mr. Joe Bartley.

—Lee County Chapter No. 2765, American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) met at Lee County Library, Wednesday, for their regular meeting. President Betty E. King called the meeting to order. The Pledge of Allegiance to the National Flag was given by all. Gaynelle Baumgardner had the scripture reading James 3:6-18. Prayer was by the president, and she gave a reading called "Gentleness" also, a comical reading about an IRS Representative interviewing an Indian.

—The Legislative chairman, James E. Cox, gave a brief outline on legislation. The president appointed several committees. She told about the AARP Workshop that would be in Abingdon, April 14, and that Gaynelle Baumgardner would be one of the speakers. A card was signed and sent to Mrs. Cora Howard, a patient in the local hospital.

Dear Mr. Lee:

Would it be possible for you to print the following inquiry in your news paper? I am trying to find my Lee County kin. Thank you!

I am searching for the descendants of Jeremiah and Susan (Weston) Anderson, my great-great-great-grandparents. They lived in the White Shoals area of Lee County from before 1840 until after 1880. Susan was the daughter of Thomas and Hannah Weston and was born in Greene Co., Tenn., around 1820. Jeremiah was born around 1800.

The Andersons had nine children. Their names were Lydia (married David Doyle), Sirilda (married John A. Shupe), Stephen, Martha (married James H. Crumley), Mary, Havey, Barbary, Sylvia and Lucinda (married Lewis Sexton).

If anyone who reads this knows the whereabout of any of the descendants of this family, please let me know. I will be glad to refund the postage.

Cordially,
Eva Hopkins

Completes Eye Removal Course

Charles R. Arney of the Sturgill Funeral Homes has completed a course in eye removal from persons who have donated them to the Eye Bank of Virginia to be used after death. This course was held at the University of Virginia Medical Center in Charlottesville under the direction of Jerry A. Fogle, M.D.

The announcement was made by Everett Franklin, Executive Director of the Eye Bank headquartered in Roanoke.

The announcement was made by Everett Franklin, Executive Director of the Eye Bank headquartered in Roanoke

Legislation authorizing licensed embalmers to perform the operation, technically called, "enucleation", was authorized by the Virginia General Assembly in 1972. The Eye Bank of Virginia supported by the Lions Clubs, has 45,000 donors on file and a waiting list of forty (40) persons for corneal transplants.

The one day course was limited to 18 licensed embalmers who received class instruction and clinical experience. Only persons trained and certified can legally perform the operation

Those interested in pledging their eyes to be used after death may contact a member of the local Lions Club or the Eye Bank office in Roanoke, phone 345 8823.

Removal of the eyes causes no visual disfigurement to the body of the deceased, Franklin said

Federal Crop Information Being Mailed With Tobacco Notices

Charles M. Ingram, Lee County ASCS Director, says that county farmers will be mailed some information on Federal Crop Insurance (FCIC) along with their tobacco quota notices in March. "The FCIC dollar coverage and premium will be computed for producers based on their effective quotas for 1981," said Ingram.

Ingram also announced a reduction in the Lee County premium rate on FCIC from $3.40 to $2.70 per $100 of coverage for 1981 crop year.

The FCIC policy is a continuous one that protects farmers against losses due to all natural causes. Risks covered include freeze, hail, fire, bluemold, drought, disease, etc.

Interested producers should visit or phone the ASCS county office for further information.

This week is National Poison Prevention Week Accidents are the most frequent cause of death among persons between the ages of one and forty years. Most accidents can be prevented.

The ingestion of poisonous materials is the cause of the majority of deaths of children under the age of five.

If you observe the following good housekeeping rules, you can prevent poisoning accidents in your home.

1. Keep all household products and medicines out of reach of youngsters and, preferably, locked up when not in use.
2. When these products are in use, never let them out of your sight even if you must take them along when answering the telephone or the doorbell
3. Store medicines separately from other household products.
4. Keep items in their original containers
5. Leave original labels on all products, and read the label before using
6. Always leave the light on when giving or taking medicines
7. Avoid taking medicines in front of children since youngsters tend to imitate grown ups
8. Refer to medicine as "medicine" , not "candy
9. Clean out the medicine cabinet periodically, and dispose of unneeded medicines when the illness for which they were prescribed is over
10. Finally, use safety packaging properly by closing the container securely after use

SIGNS OF THE END

God had sent various prophets to Jerusalem to remind the people of their sinfulness, to urge them to repent, and to warn them of the terrible consequences should they refuse to do so. Then, as the culmination of His love and concern, He sent Christ to appeal to them.

The Desolation of Jerusalem
Matthew 23: 37-39

Deeply moved by the guilty rejection of the people of Jerusalem whom He loved so dearly, Christ uttered the unforgettable lamentation: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gattereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" Both intense emotion and unfathomable pathos were expressed in the repetition of the word "Jerusalem."

Using the figure of a hen gathering her brood under her wings frantically in order to save them from destruction in a dangerous storm that was fast approaching, so Christ reminded the people of Jerusalem that repeatedly He had sought to save them from the storm of divine wrath which was going to come upon them, but they had proved that they were unwilling for Him to do so. Christ informed them that the inevitable consequences of their spurning the divine love were frightful indeed. He deeply lamented their great folly in rejecting His loving protection and pursuing their sinful course, thereby bringing upon Jerusalem desolation and destruction. For these tragic consequences the people were entirely responsible. Their rejection of God's Son was the sole reason for Jerusalem being left in a state of desolation. Had they been willing to turn to Christ in penitence and faith, this tragic desolation would have been averted.

The Destruction of the Temple
Matthew 24: 1-2

As Christ departed from the temple His disciples called His attention to the beauty and magnificence of the structure, whereupon He announced to them that it would be brought down in ruins. Naturally they were shocked and astounded at His prediction, but it was fulfilled when the Romans under Titus destroyed it in A.D. 70. To date it has never been rebuilt.

The Declarations of Christ
Matthew 24: 3-14

While the Lord Jesus was seated on the mount of Olives, the disciples tactfully approached Him and asked: "When shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?"

In reply to the request of the disciples for signs of the end of the age, Christ predicted various future events, namely, the arrival on the scene of various false prophets and those falsely claiming to be the Messiah, wars and rumors of wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes, persecution, lawlessness, hatred, and the proclamation of the gospel throughout the world. After all of these signs have occurred, it will be possible for the end of the age to come at any time.

Until our Lord returns all Christians should be faithful in witnessing and working for Him out of gratitude to Him for what He has done for us, and with a view to introducing as many others as possible to Him Who alone can save them. We certainly owe Him our very best in Christian service until we come to the end of life's journey.

Cumberland 80 Coeburn 65

Cumberland, the Region B winner, romped past Region D, Coeburn 80 65 in a mix match of the state tournament.

Good shooting by the Knights 10 13 in the first quarter, kept them in the game early. Glenn Meade was the gunner for Coeburn as he scored eight points in the first to leave the score at 23 20 in favor of the Dukes.

Coeburn failed to play in the second quarter as they hit 4 19 to fall behind by 17 at half 45 28.

Larvis Jackson, the wild homer, led the Dukes on a 11 15 shooting spree to score 18 points. Most of Jackson's shots were 18 to 20 feet away from the bucket.

This was enough to take the wind out of the Knights as the Dukes led as much as 22 points in the fourth quarter.

Jackson, a 6-2 guard finished with 28 points and Neal Scruggs added 19.

John Hall paced Coeburn with 20 points and Jeff Livingston chipped in 18. This was way below his 29 point average as he hit only seven for 22 attempts.

Income Tax Time Is Here Again

Filling out your tax forms early is probably one of the most quickly discarded New Year's resolutions - but take heart - the job of completing them is a little easier to endure since they do conform to the federal forms.

If you're a Virginia resident and you fall into one of the following categories, you are required to file a Virginia Individual Income Tax return. You must file a state return if: you are required to file a federal income tax return; or you are single with an income over $1,900 ($2,900 if 65 or over); or you are married and entitled to file jointly with a combined income over $2,500 ($3,500 if either spouse is over 65; $4,500 if both are over 65) provided you filed jointly on your federal return; or if you are married with an income over $1,250 and your spouse filed a separate Virginia return.

There is one exception to the above filing requirements: if your Virginia adjusted gross income was less than $3,000 - whether your status is that of a single person, dependent child or married couple (exception applies to the combined income of a married couple regardless of how they file) - and you did not have any 1980 income tax withheld nor pay any estimated tax, then you are not required to file a Virginia Individual Income tax return for 1980.

By the way, your chances of getting away from refusing to file a return aren't very optimistic. The Virginia Department of Taxation participates in cooperative exchange programs with the Internal Revenue Service, as well as being involved in a number of other compliance-oriented programs Last year over 100,000 Virginia taxpayers were contacted just in the area of individual income tax compliance.

The civil penalty for refusing to file or filing a fradulent return is 100 percent of the amount of the proper tax (plus interest), while the criminal penalty is imprisonment for up to one year or a fine up to $1,000 or both. When you add it all up, refusing to file is not the ideal way to save money

Once you've determined whether or not you are required to file a return, the next most likely question is "How long can I put it off?" The deadline for filing state tax returns is May 1 And if you miss the deadline? You are subject to a penalty or two The penalty for failing to file your return on time is $2 or 10 percent of the amount of the tax which ever is greater In addition, there is a 5 percent penalty for failure to pay on time and you can top that off with interest at the rate of 12 percent per year which accrues on the tax and penalty from one month after the tax was due until it is paid

More likely than not your choices on which form to file will be limited to two either Form 760 or the shorter version, Form 760S. A good rule of thumb is to look at which Federal form you filed - if you used the short form (1040A) for your federal taxes, you can probably use the short form (760S) for the state taxes as well.

If you filed a Virginia Individual Income tax return last year, you have a slight advantage for 1980 because there have been no major changes in either the laws or the forms. That fact may be of little comfort to you, but at least you probably won't get stuck on anything you didn't encounter last year.

Line by line instructions which will help you in completing your return begin on page one of the Virginia Income Tax packet. One of the first boxes you have to fill in is "Filing Status". If you're using the short form, you have only two choices. If you're using the long form you have four. Basically, your filing status for state purposes would be the same as the one you used in filling out your federal return. There are two things to watch for on the long form: if you're filing as the head of household or as a qualifying widow(er), you would use the single filing status on the state return, and the state forms offer the option of filing status four (married, filing separately on this combined return) which may be well worth considering since a good number of couples could end up paying less tax by using this status.

As far as itemized deductions are concerned, if you were allowed to itemize on your federal return, then you must do so on your Virginia return. Similarly, if you claimed a "Credit for Child and Dependent Care Expenses" on your federal return, you are eligible to claim a deduction for such expenses on your Virginia return. Also, if you are age 62 or over, you may qualify for a special income tax credit, regardless of whether you are still working or retired

It is possible to obtain an extension of time for filing your state tax returns, just as it is possible to obtain such an extension from the IRS. This extension provides additional time for preparing records and filing a correct return only it does not grant you additional time for paying your taxes. The form for requesting an extension is 760-E

Once you have completed your form, there are a few items which should be double checked since they can cause a substantial delay in processing your return if they are incorrect Most importantly, be sure that your social security number (and that of your spouse if applicable) is included on your return and that it is correct. Also, be sure that the form is properly signed and the W-2 forms are securely attached.

If, upon completion of all your efforts, you discover that you are due a refund, allow at least eight weeks for your return to be processed and the refund to be issued. Keep in mind that the earlier in the season you file, the sooner you will receive your refund.

Virginia Individual Income Tax returns should be filed with the Commissioner of the Revenue, Director of Finance or Supervisor of Assessments in the city or county in which you reside. Addresses and phone numbers are listed on the back of the 1980 Income Tax packet. If you need additional forms or assistance in completing your return, you may also call the aforementioned official located in your city or county

Bills To Protect Agricultural Land Passed By General Assembly

Delegate Ford C. Quillen - D, Scott County, was successful in securing the passage of several bills designed to allow localities to consider the preservation of farmland in establishing local planning priorities. The Bills, sponsored by Delegate Quillen, grew out of a joint house and senate subcommittee study chaired by Mr. Quillen last year. That study revealed that Virginia was losing much of its farmland each year to other uses. Among the 50 states, Virginia ranked 7th in the rate at which agricultural land was being converted to other uses during the period from 1967 to 1977.

The pressure on agricultural land varied across the state with differing levels of the problem in different counties. Therefore, the subcommittee did not recommend any state-wide policies or mandatory planning goals. Delegate Quillen's Bills reflect the subcommittee's recommendations. They provide the option for the localities to adopt the preservation of agricultural land as a factor for consideration by the local planning agencies in providing for the growth and development of the locality. Delegate Quillen's bills also require capital projects of the state to be analyzed for their impact upon agricultural land.

The bills, as passed by the General Assembly, allow each locality to deal with the problem of the preservation of agricultural lands as it best sees fit, meeting the individual and particular needs of its citizens.

Garden Club Holds Memorial Service For Former Members

March 14, the Lee County Garden Club held a memorial service for a much loved and long time garden club member, Nell Rose Horton Flanary. Nell Rose's husband all of her children and many friends gathered at the family cemetery for the dedication of a dogwood tree planted by the Lee County Garden Club as a living tribute to her memory.

Mrs. John Laningham, Mrs. R.E. Beeler and Mrs. S.E. Bratton, memorial committee conducted the service. Mrs. Bratton paid tribute to Nell Rose's warm personality and her devotion to family and friends. She used from the Scriptures Palam 1 verse 3, "And He shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water; that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not wither; and whatsoever he doeth shall prosper" and from John 10 verse 28, "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish." She quoted the poem, "When Earth's last picture was painted" by Kipling and concluded the service with a prayer.

Following the memorial services, the Flanary family invited those attending the service to their home for a coffee hour.

Seminary News

By Mrs. R.E. Parsons

—We have been having some cool days for the past week, a little rain today, but has been a cool rain. People have been having pretty weather to get their tobacco beds planted. The time is flying by fast, won't be too long until gardening time again. Sure hope we will have a good crop this year. Wasn't too many Irish potatoes rasied last year. Seed sure are going to be high this year.

—Mr. and Mrs. Henery Grace at the Seminary was visiting Mrs. Grace's sister, Mrs. Sam Ely and her husband at Dryden on Tuesday of last week. PENNINGTON GAP, VIRGINIA

Pennington Gap PTO Considers Water Fluoridatory

The Pennington Gap PTO met on Monday, March 2nd. One purpose for this meeting was to discuss fluoridation of the Pennington Gap water supply. Three local dentists, Dr. Roger Bays, Dr. James Roberson, and Dr. John Sanders, were present for the discussion. Dr. Bays was the speaker for the group. The following facts concerning fluoridation were discussed:

FLUORIDATION IS EFFECTIVE

Nature has provided practically all water supplies with some fluoride. By adjusting the fluoride content of the water to approximately 1 part per million, nearly two out of three cavities can be prevented in children. Children are not the only ones who benefit from fluoridation. Adults who have consumed fluoridated water throughout life can expect less decay, fewer extractions, and fewer dentures at age 65.

FLUORIDATION IS SAFE

Fluoridation has the support of virtually every major health organization. Evidence of the safety of fluoridation has been examined critically and repeatedly, and specific allegations of injury and hazard have been carefully evaluated. The conclusion reached in every instance has been the same: Fluoridation is safe. Since numerous community water supplies contain the right amount of fluoride naturally for better dental health, millions have enjoyed its benefits throughout life for generations. There is no difference in the fluoride ion whether occurring naturally in the water or added by man to duplicate nature's dental health benefits.

FLUORIDATION IS PRACTICAL

Communities can build a heritage of better dental health through fluoridation at a cost of only pennies per person per year. Dollars and dental man-hours saved can be used to provide more comprehensive dental care for all.

FLUORIDATION IS RESEARCHED

There is no scientific reason for any community to be without the benefits of fluoridation. Know the facts that research shows:

FLUORIDATION CAN. . .

- Prevent 2 out of 3 cavities in children.
- Permit many children to grow up completely free of cavities.
- Cut children's dental care cost by one-half.
- Cut professional time needed for children's dental care.
- Provide lifetime benefits of
  - Fewer cavities—
  - Fewer lost teeth—
  - Fewer partial dentures—

FLUORIDE is an essential mineral nutrient.

Keokee News

Awake, Awake!
What's that I Hear?
The song of a bird.
Spring is here.

Friday March 20, is the first day of Spring, the vernal equinox, the time when the sun's center crosses the equaror and night and day are everywhere of equal length.

Spring time is a beautiful time and is also a time of the year when most everyone is busy. Many people are beginning to plant spring gardens. The home grown vegetables are really good. Making a garden is hard work and with the high cost of food in our present time fresh vegetables from a garden in summer time really helps when we can gather them from our garden instead of having to buy vegetables.

The early spring flowers are pushing their way up through the ground and will soon be pretty blossoms. Anna Cawood, our cousin who lives at Seminary said, she had already found a white snow drop in bloom. It is a pretty small flower which grows close to the ground. The jonquils and daffodils are budding to bloom and the crocus which are among first flowers to bloom in spring.

The March wind has been drying the mud and ground and the breeze has been a bit chilly the past week. Although has been sunny and it is nice weather after the cold winter days.

The birds are now flocking back to the area and I have been hearing them as they chirrup in the trees. Soon they will be building new nests for summer.

Oh happy spring time."

Now back to Keokee and the news of the week.

—The Keokee Extension Homemakers Club met last Tuesday at the fellowship hall of the Pleasant Hill Baptist Church. The meeting was opened with the group repeating the prayer and Homemakers Creed in unison. Betty Jean Moore, Extension Agent for Lee County from Jonesville, Va., directed the meeting.

Members of the club have been making applique quilt squares and brought their designs to be displayed for viewing. Miss Moore gave a demonstration on how to do lap quilting, and also how to join the squares together to make a quilt. The applique squares can also be used to make pretty pillow cashion tops.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. John Joyce, president, Mrs Amelia Rogers, Mrs James E McDaniel, Mrs Beulah Bobrosky, and Mrs Clarence Duff.

As a Club project members of the Keokee Extension Homemaker Club will collect funds for the American Cancer Society. They plan to meet at the Pleasant Hill Baptist Church on April 7, at 10:00 a.m. and from there plan to visit different homes in Keokee collecting for the Cancer Fund Drive.

Mr and Mrs. Kelly H Cox were happy to have as visitors at their home last week their son, J W. Cox and his wife, Joann of Knoxville, Tn., who arrived on Tuesday and stayed until Thursday. Then on Thursday their daughter and son in law, Mr and Mrs. Hayes Dinsmore and son, Allen Scott and daughters, Paula Ruth, and Antela arrived from Richmond, Va., and visited until Sunday when they returned to Richmond. Everyone enjoyed a delightful family gathering.

—Iva Clarkston and I visited our niece, Mrs. Denny (Dorinda) Haynes at Woodway on her birthday, Monday, March 9. We enjoyed lunch and birthday cake with her.

—Mrs. Dora Collier of Carter Hall nursing home at Dryden, Va., was accompanied by her son, J D Collier and his wife, Wilma from West Chester, Ohio to Keokee on Tuesday afternoon where they visited with Mrs. Collier's grandson, Alan Collier and his grandmother, Mrs Verda Thompson. While in the area they also visited other relatives at Keokee, Rt. 1, and Pennington Gap, Va.

—Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Rev William Carl Maness, 38, Route 1, Big Stone Gap, Va. who passed away Sunday night, March 8, at the Holston Valley Community Hospital in Kingsport, Tn., after a long illness.

He was the pastor of Hoover Hill Freewill Baptist Church at Keokee, Rt 1, for 17 years. He was also minister of Ordaining Council of Southwest Virginia Freewill Baptist Association.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the Hoover Hill Freewill Baptist Church. Burial was in the Lee Memorial Park at Woodway, Va.

Rev. Maness will be long remembered by his many friends in this area. Thoughts are with his family in the loss of their loved one.

—Phillip Flanary of Pikeville, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kanard and family from Paintville, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Pat Flanary and daughter, also from Kentucky at the home of Elder and Mrs. Roy Flanary last week end. They were pleased to have members of their family home to visit at that time.

—Mrs. Clarence (Shirleen) Hull who is a patient in a hospital in Tampa, Fla., was unable to undergo heart surgery as scheduled last Tuesday according to word received here by her sister, Mrs Verda Thompson. We hope that Shirleen will be improving soon and wish for her a speedy recovery.

—Iva Clarkston and I were luncheon guests at the home of our sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Russell in Fall Branch, Tn., last Tuesday. Also visiting with them was their little granddaughter, Erica Russell. Stopping by for a short visit was Mrs. Opal Mays, a friend in Fall Branch. We enjoyed our visit but was sorry that our brother in-law, Earl was on the sick list. He is ill with pneumonia at this time. We hope he will be feeling better soon and well again.

—It was nice to talk on the phone with a friend, Opal Pennington of Church Hill, Tn. She reads our Keokee news column. Opal was formerly from Pennington Gap, Va. and a former Lee County School teacher.

Belated Happy Birthday

A letter received last week from our friend, Rebecca Johnston of Knoxville, Tn., was appreciated. She wrote about the birthday of her husband, Herbert Johnston. They read the weekly newspaper and our Keokee news column. They are also Lawerence Welk fans and look forward to his program and music shows each week on T.V. the Lawerence Welk Show was recently held in Knoxville, Tn., with approximately 10,000 people attending.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Welk and Mr. Johnston's birthdays are the same date, March 11, 1903. Herbert once received a birthday card from Lawerence Welk, the card was signed by him and he wrote "Happy Birhtday to us."

Lawerence Welk has been conducting his Shows for fifty years and people like Rebecca and Herbert Johnston have been enjoying them.

So in this year 1981 belated birthday greetings to Herbert Johnston of Knoxville, Tn., and Lawerence Welk wherever he is, on their March 11, birthdays.

Mr. Johnston was formerly from Lee County.

—Cordie Flanary of Big Stone Gap and Lelia Barker of Keokee visited with Verda Thompson at her home last Sunday afternoon.

—Mr. and Mrs. M.J. Clarkston and granddaughter, Tammy Gardner, also grandson, little Jason Haynes of Woodway, Va., visited their daughter, Mrs. Robert Quillen and children, Craig, Brad, and little Stacey Leann near Gate City, Va., last Monday.

—We received a surprise telephone call on Friday evening from an old friend, J.B. Slagle of Augusta, Ga. At this time he is visiting relatives at Big Stone Gap, Route 1. He arrived from Georgia on Wednesday. It was nice to talk with him again. J.B. frequently visited in Keokee and our home during the years of 1930 1940. He was a school teacher and coach in Georgia for a number of years.

Berea Offers Summer Program For Outstanding Students

Berea College is accepting applications for its 1981 summer program for outstanding high school students. Lee County students will receive preference in admission to this program.

This summer's Rising Senior Program, open to students who have completed the junior year of high school with a B average, consists of college-credit courses in wildlife biology, creative writing, elementary German and mathematics. The four-week session begins June 14 and continues through July 10 with all college facilities open to participants.

The twenty-five students accepted for the wildlife biology program, funded by the National Science Foundation, will study in the classroom and take part in field trips, greenhouse studies and laboratory investigations. A student-initiated research project in animal behavior also is included in this course and the 7,700-acre Berea College Forest and the Daniel Boone National Forest are available for field studies. The prerequisites are one year of high school biology, a grade of b+ in the sciences and the recommendation of a science of biology instructor

The Creative Writing Workshop, open to 20 students, will stimulate abilities and technical facilities with language. Poetry and fiction writers-in-residence will work with participants. Structured as a seminar, the class will meet for two hours a day to read and critique student writing. Applicants should have a B+ average in three high school English courses and the recommendation of an English instructor

Intensive Elementary German will concentrate on speaking and listening skills and students will learn vocabulary and sentence structures which are a part of everyday German conversation. It is designed for students with no previous German knowledge or preparation, but those with some elementary training in the language also are eligible to enroll. At the end of the four-week term, students should have attained a proficiency of German 101 college level.

The Geometry of Bending and Twisting. Point Set Topology is a four week experience in mathematics designed to introduce topology to the high school student who has completed three math courses, including algebra I and II. Normally, applicants are expeted to have a B+ math average. Twenty will be accepted for the class

Each course in the Rising Senior Program offers one college course credit, the equivalent of four semester hours. The $181 per student cost covers room and board at college facilities, insurance, health service and activities fees. The college library, tennis courts, pool and gymnasium, as well as planned social activities, are available.

Students from Berea's nine-state admissions territory, especially those with limited financial resources, will receive preference in admission to the summer program.

Applications and additional information are available from John S. Cook, Rising Seniors Admission, CPO 2344, Berea College, Berea, KY 40404. Applications postmarked before April 15 will be given first priority.

Sowing Seeds Indoors

Many seed can be started indoors to give home vegetable gardeners a head-start on the season.

"But if you are going to start them," said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf, "start with good seed that is fresh."

Start seed in one of the new prepared mixes containing perlite, peatmoss and vermiculite. They are practically foolproof, she said.

"Sowing seed is an art," Ms. Relf said. Don't cover fine seed such as petunia, snapdragon, lettuce or carrots. Sow them thinly, either broadcast or in rows

Coarse seed can be covered with a loose material such as milled sphagnum moss.

After the seed is sowed, it should be watered from below. Set the seed box in a pan of warm water and let it soak up naturally.

Cover the seed with a white plastic sheet or pane of glass. "Such a covering conserves moisture, traps needed heat, and prevents drying out of the seed," said Ms. Relf who is a member of the faculty of Virginia Tech's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Some seed need light for germination. These include ageratum, begonia, coleus, impatiens, and salvia. But most other seed can be put in a dark place, or be covered to exclude light.

Don't let seed or mix dry out, she cautioned. Even drying out once can be fatal to germinating seed.

Also check daily to see if any mold has formed. If so, it means not enough air is circulating under the cover or there is too much moisture. Maintain a day and night temperature of 72 degrees Fahrenheit for most seed.

Just as soon as the seedlings are up, move the seed box to a bright window or under fluorescent light. Be sure to remove any covering. An area with 50 degrees Fahrenheit at night and full sunlight during the day is fine for the seedlings.

Transplant them, when they are about one and a half inches high, into pots, boxes, peat pots or similar containers.

1,200 Virginia CETA Workers To Lose Jobs By March 20

Anticipating further reductions in the already strapped CETA public service employment programs, the Virginia Employment Commission's Balance of State CETA contractors have been instructed to freeze all public service hiring and to notify some 1,200 public service workers that their jobs will end on March 20

The VEC followed instructions from the U S Labor Department which has imposed a nationwide public service hiring freeze on all prime sponsors for the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act as the first step in President Reagan s plan to eliminate CETA public sector programs The Labor Department estimates that this freeze will trim the federal budget by $880 million between now and the end of the current fiscal year, September 30

The VEC's Balance of State CETA organization serves all areas of the Commonwealth not covered by another prime sponsor Ten Virginia metropolitan areas in Northern Virginia, Tidewater, Richmond and Roanoke administer their own CETA programs

The newly announced freeze and terminations affect only the public service segments of CETA, Title IID and Title VI. People eligible for Title IID jobs have few skills and or limited work experience and therefore face difficulty finding work regardless of the economic climate Title VI provides short term employment to those temporarily out of work due to economic conditions CETA paid public service employees work for local governments, schools, hospitals, and other non profit organizations

Because of previous funding cuts, the VEC had already drastically reduced activity in Title VI Last May, the Labor Department told the VEC to plan a Title VI budget for $14 million for fiscal year 1981, a figure already $3 million lower than the Title VI budget for the 1980 fiscal year Then in November, Congress granted actual funding of only $9 6 million. Just over one month later, further Congressional Action cut Balance of State Title VI funds to only $6 7 million The VEC imposed its own Title VI hiring freeze prepare for Title VI programs to be rapidly closed down," Title VI contractors were told in a letter from the VEC They were instructed to issue formal two-week termination notices to all CETA Title VI participants All these workers must have December 15

This week, anticipating even further reductions, the VEC notified all its Title VI contractors that they should prepare for the termination of Title VI "The continuing reduction in funding has left us no alternative but to received the required two week notice by this Friday, March 6, and be ready for termination on March 20

Expressing its regret, the VEC has emphasized to contractors and to participants that these terminations are the "result of funding reductions beyond the VEC's control, and in no way reflects on your organization or performance Unfortunately, funding limitations leave no alternative

Although Title IID funds have not been reduced since the November allocation of $19.9 million, no additional Title IID workers will be hired effective immediately, those contractors have been informed This action was deemed necessary in order to avoid possible over extension of funds should Congress approve President Reagan s revised 1981 federal budget, which may call for further CETA reductions

Blackwater

—The odd and the unusual happened here this week:

Back in the twenties and early thirties small "Side Shows" and "Circus type exhibits" would visit our community and thrill our hearts with old fashion clean acts, sometimes the only heat in a tent would be fire in a "lard can" or "small barrell" In another form, excitement came, again. Hikers by the dozens but traveling intermittingly in small 1s, 2s or 3s.

On the late afternoon of March 9th, after obtaining permission from Mrs. Ann Willis to set up camp on her green field, one by one the colorful small tents began to spring up from the back packs. The group originated in California with a destination "Harpers Ferry". A mixed group from all parts of the nation, old, young, big, little, men and women, cheeks of tan, but not barefoot. They came across the USA on foot, with a van pulling a camper of supplies on which read: "Postum Cereal Company", (etc.)

The parade of departure began at 7.30 a.m. Tuesday, March 10, in groups of ones, later intermitten groups of twos or threes began the travel of road 604 from road 70 south intersection.

The question in some of our minds may be why start out on such a daring undertaking of the "Survival of the Fitest"? (Various reasons would answer in part). As the miles add up the number of hikers usually decrease as some fall out.

As the parade of these folks began, one by one the little tents began back packs once more.

All in all they did respect life and property during their visit here on the night of March 9th. Some times the odd, and unusual visitors afford entertaining angels in aware, who is the judge? May each one look up to the rock higher than any of us

As the last hiker went out of sight we could say by this time - "roughing it" is a pioneering spirit, without the some motive of the early settlements of our country.

—Elder and Mrs H.V Hall of Jonesville, Va., were present at Black water Lick Church for Sunday School and the church service. Board Seeks 12.4% Pay Hike For Teachers

Meeting in a special recessed session Thursday, March 19, the Lee County School Board agreed to seek a 12.4 percent cost of living plus a one step salary increase for Lee teachers from the local Board of Supervisors.

Other budgetary requests to the supervisors will include approximately $215,000 for replacement of 11 school buses and $75,000 for a roof for Dryden, according to Superintendent Bob McCoy.

The coming school year's total budget represents about a 14 percent increase over last year, the superintendent said, although specific budget figures were not available at this time.

Budget increases will also reflect a 27 percent increase in gasoline costs for pupil transportation.

At the special recessed meeting, the School Board also approved a teacher request for an increase in hospitalization coverage from $32.19 a month to $38.13 a month.

Board members also approved a new policy raising from five dollars to $10 a day reimbursement for each unused day of sick leave up to 150 upon retirement.

School Board members are hoping for a joint meeting with the local supervisors to discuss the upcoming budget proposals.

New Owners Of The Powell Valley News

Shirley and Donald Watson

The ownership of the POWELL VALLEY NEWS will pass to Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Watson, effective March 30, according to David M. Pence and George A. Lee, owners and publishers of the paper for the past 25 years. The Watsons purchased the Powell Valley News as of March 27.

Shirley and Donald Watson are natives of Dickenson County, Virginia. For the past 11 years they have lived and worked in Sterling, Colorado and more recently Scottsbluff, Nebraska.

In moving back to this area of Virginia, they say they are "coming home," after having been away for so long.

Mr. Watson began his newspaper career in Bristol, Va., some 20 years ago, where he was associated with the Bristol Herald - Courier. Since that time he has held management positions with the Sterling Journal - Advocate, where he was a stockholder in the publication and the Scottsbluff Star - Herald in Scottsbluff, Nebraska. Both of these publications were daily papers.

The Watsons are the parents of four children, three of which are grown and a younger son, Todd, who is eight years old.

They indicate that they are most anxious to get settled in their new surroundings and get to know the people of the county.

"We look forward to a long and pleasant association with the people of Lee County," Mr. Watson said.

Lt. Governor Robb Seeks Governorship

Lieutenant Governor Chuck Robb kicked off his campaign for governor at The John Marshall Hotel in Richmond, March 19, before a crowd of supporters, including political leaders from every part of the state and many other distinguished Virginians representing business, industry, and labor.

Robb emphasized his intention to continue the proud Virginia tradition of limited government, sound management, and intergrity. "With Virginia's government on the proper course," Robb said, "and with our great natural resources and our people, the 1980's can be a decade of unprecedented opportuntiy for Virginians."

Robb also stressed his ability to work in harmony with the Democratic General Assembly which he credited with "protecting our heritage of limited government and low taxes. Democrats in Virginia, not Republicans," Robb said, "chiseled the commandments of fiscal conservatism into the laws and traditions of our Common wealth."

Maintaining a disciplined and responsible state government is essential to Virginia's future economic growth, Robb contended. By keeping faith with the proven doctrine of limited government we will continue to tell the world that Virginia means business about attracting new industry and new jobs. He also pointed out, however,

Redistricting Ahead?

In order to maintain an equality of population among voting districts within Virginia's counties, the State Constitution requires redistricting this year to be completed by December 31, 1981.

According to Article VII, Section 5 of the Virginia Constitution, each county, city or town where members of the governing body are elected by districts, then the governing body shall in 1971 and every 10 years after reapportion the representation in the districts in a manner provided by law.

Local supervisors will have to study the new figures of the 1980 census in order to apportion the voting districts according to constitutional guidelines. The ultimate reapportionment plan will be submitted to the Department of Justice for review under the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

The primary goal of reapportionment is equal representation with population the controlling criterion.

Under the Constitution of Virginia, redistricting is important in that "election districts shall be so constituted as to give as nearly as is practicable representation in proportion to the population of the district. Districts shall be composed of compact and adjacent territory.

Redistricting is to be based on population figures of the most recent U.S. Census.

Supervisors are advised to keep in mind of the review by the Justice Department, not only of the set of districts, but of the process by which they were drawn. Plus, they must bear in mind that a legal challenge is always a possibility.

Contract Seen Agreeable To UMW

Indications point to a new United Mine Workers Industry contract with very little delay. The two groups of negotiators reached a tentative agreement on a new contract Monday. This materially reduced the chances of a prolonged work stoppage since UMW President Sam Church has expressed confidence that the 160,000 union members will approve the new three-year contract. A brief work stoppage is expected at one minute after midnight Thursday, when the present contract expires. The UMW miners will hold to their slogan, "No contract, no work."

The new agreement was reached only five hours after the negotiations were resumed, following a six-day cessation of talks.

The new agreement will give the miners a 36 percent increase in wages and benefits over three years; continue the prohibition against mining on Sunday, which the operators wanted dropped and abolish the one-man arbirtation Review Board.

Just last Tuesday, the talks between miners and operators had broken down. Industry negotiators left Washington. The union sent home the 39-member bargaining council.

The quick settlement early yesterday came as a surprise. The negotiating teams began meeting at 1:45 a.m. Five hours later they had a tentative agreement. No information was released as to what led to the breakthrough.

Property Owners Protest Method Of New Assessment

"More than likely Lee County is messed up."

This was the opening statement made by Big Stone Gap attorney Paul Jernigan at a mass meeting of irate Lee County property owners held in the courthouse in Jonesville last Tuesday night. He was referring to the recently completed county real estate assessment.

A crowd that packed the circuit court room, the hallway leading to the courtrooms, on down the

Town Of Pennington Gap To Study Water Flouridation

The Town of Pennington Gap will give study to the possibility of flouridation of the water supply.

Dentists, doctors and health services personnel all support such an effort, which they say, will greatly reduce the number of tooth cavities in children.

The action taken by the town council to write a letter of intent to the proper state officials, will help to secure assistance in surveying the making plans for such a system.

Civic groups from Dryden, Pennington Gap and St. Charles were on hand to lend their support to the effort. It was explained that the greater portion of the burden of the initial cost would be borne by funds already allocated. However, it was pointed out that the funds would not be available for another year.

Carl Abbot of the Virginia Health Systems pointed out that some towns in the area have already begun their efforts to secure funds and get such a system installed. He explained that the equipment, chemicals and the cost of personnel to operate the system would be paid from the state wide health grant designated for this purpose.

Representatives from the Dryden PTO, Pennington Gap Womans Club, Pennington Gap PTO and St. Charles Health Council were present for the meeting.

Some 18 students representing Lee County's schools participated in the Bee sponsored by the Powell Valley News and held March 17 at the Lee County Vocational school. Bobbie Sturgill will compete in finals at South-Young High School Auditorium in Knoxville on April 25. Judges for the local spelling bee were Ruth Gilliam, Gladys Robbins, and Rebecca Jessee.

Cancer Crusade Begins April 6

The Lee County Cancer Crusade will begin April 6.

Almost 56 million Americans now living will eventually have cancer, one in four according to present rates. Cancer strikes at any age. It kills more children age 3 14 than any other disease. A great deal of progress has been made against cancer but there is still much to be done. Progress against cancer comes through education and support of cancer research and that is what the 1981 Cancer Crusade is all about.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe P. Lyle are Co Chairmen for the '81 Crusade and they are doing an excellent job of organizing Volunteers in all areas of the county. The following is a list of all area captains working with the Lyles and the areas in which they will serve.

Assessment

stairs and to the buildings entrance had come to listen to and tell of what they considered to be the inequities of the recent assessment of County real estate

"There is just one thing you can do raise hell with the equalization board, build a case and go to court later

Jernigan was hired at the end of the meeting to look into all of the details of the procedures and locations of the board of supervisors and assessors, leading up to and through the assessment that was designed to record all real estate at 100 percent of its market value

Jernigan told the crowd that if the just completed assessment does not stand up in court where, he indicated, the decision would finally be made, that last years tax rate would be imposed

Many of those present declared that the assessor had not viewed their property, based on the value placed on it

One woman said that upon investigating the presence of a pickup truck parked in front of her property at three a m , she was told that we are assessing your property

One man spoke of his recently purchased property for which he paid $105,000 being assessed at $143,000

Jernigan said that the law requires that the equalization board has the final say on how the property will be assessed

Jonesville Attorney, Tom Rasnic, told the crowd that the problem in previous years had been that some property was assessed "real high and some real low

It was reported that the individual hired to assist the assessor had recently resigned after a few days of interviewing property owner who came to the assessors office to protest what they thought to be the unreasonably high value placed on their property Many said they would be glad to sell their property at the value placed on it by the assessor

Attorney Rasnic advised those taxpayers seeking an adjustment to be sure and attempt to see the board of equalization

If, he said, an appointment could not be arranged, be sure and get a written acknowledgement showing that an effort had been made to see the board

Those owning farm land which had been assessed at a value beyond the land's actual worth of land for farming were advised to ask their supervisor to support a county land use ordinance

The question of funds with which to pay the attorney resulted in the election of a treasurer and passing the hat among the crowd for donations

Ralph Robinette, a former member of the board of supervisors and a Black water community merchant was the unanimous choice for treasurer that "restraining the growth of state government will not be easy in these years of raging inflation and cutbacks in aid from Washington. Hard decisions, perhaps unpopular decisions, will be required "as we examine what the proper role of government should be."

Robb pledged to work closely with the General Assembly to set up priorities for the Eighties to enable Virginia's economy to flourish, to realize our potential for development of coal and other energy resources, and to educate our youth.

The Lieutenant Governor also spoke of his determination to carry out several of his long standing goals· to adopt a responsible timetable for the elimination of the sales tax on food, which places such a heavy burden on the elderly and others living on fixed incomes, to protect our citizens increasingly living in fear of crime, and to work with the armed forces and the great Virginia shipyards in strengthening our national defense in the face of the massive arms build up and increasing adventurism of the Soviet Union.

Robb pointed to his pride in the heritage of Virginia, where his roots go back to the 17th century, and in the Virginia tradition which he characterized as "a mandate to provide leadership and ideas for seizing the unprecedented opportunities of the Eighties, in keeping with the history of our people, the quality of our resources, and the greatness of our heritage I see the Virginia tradition as calling for good government, for small government, for effective government, for honest and compassionate government."

Farmland -- A Prime Asset

For too many American farmers, the sale of their best land for urban uses is an "offer they can't refuse "

For all American citizens, the irreversible shift of a million acres or more each year of important farmland out of agriculture is a trend we cannot afford

"On an individual tract, conversion may well be the best answer, it may best meet the landowner's needs, or it may best meet community needs for living space, commerce and industry, transportation, or other vital services," said Manly Wilder, State Conversationist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service

"But, conversion of prime farmland should be done only after an evaluation and decision has been made that there are no other choices," he continued.

Prime farmland is the best land we have for growing food and fiber. It gives the highest yields with minimum input of energy or money and with the least damage to the environment. It is a prime asset

Studies done in 1977 by the SCS indicate that Virginia has 4,324,000 acres of prime farmland These studies also show that Virginia had 1,400,000 acres of agricultural land converted to other uses between 1967 and 1977

It is obvious that Virginians need to locate important farmlands and carefully consider any irreversible changes in land use

"The point I want to make is that while we still have a lot of prime and important farmland in Virginia we need to plan carefully for it's use," Wilder said. "Virginia has many dense urban population areas and we must expand our towns and cities But we should develop them on less productive land Once our best farm land is covered with urban developments, it's gone forever

The Soil Conservation Service is working to identify prime and important farmlands in each county across the state. Work is already complete in the 7 counties of Campbell, Charlotte, Fairfax, Fluvanna, Henrico, King George, and Orange

The data being prepared is available to individuals and units of government. With this information, changes in land uses can be planned, evaluated and made with minimal loss of important farmlands and the least possible environmental impact.

Mullins - Hatfield Vows Exchanged February 21

Elaine Mullins and Gary Lynn Hatfield were united in marriage on February 21, 1981, at 2:00 P.M. at the Long Branch Baptist Church in Jonesville, Virginia. The Reverend Jeff Callahan officiated at the double ring, candlelight ceremony

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Mullins of Jonesville, Virginia. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Hatfield of Ewing, Virginia.

The bride, escorted down the isle by her brother, Gary, wore a gown of white organza and chantilly lace The queen anne neckline and fitted bodice, as well as the bishop sleeves, were sculpted entirely of lace. The A-line skirt and attached chapel train were finished with three rows of lace

The fingertip veil of white silk illusion was held by a lace covered juliet cap. A wide border of chantilly lace traced the veils edge while the blusher remained elegantly unadorned. She carried a bouquet of white and blue mums, with daises and babies breath, with long white lace streamers.

Dorothy Marcum Mullins, sister-in law of the bride, served as Maid of Honor. Brides Maids were Betty Collins and Deborah Burgan, sisters of the bride. The attendants wore long blue gowns of polyester chiffon with a ruffled capelet The maid of honor wore a white bride's maid hat, with blue flowers attached, matching her dress, and carried a smaller bouquet of flowers that matched the brides. Brides maids wore blue hair pieces of flower arrangements offsetting their dresses and carried long stemmed white mums.

During the wedding the Reverend Monty Mullins sang, "We've Only Just Begun", with music by Miss Karen Hobbs

John Hines served the groom as best man and David Minor and Monty Mullins as Ushers. Brides book was kept by Miss Wilma Houndshell

Highway Hearing Set April 1

Nine public hearings will be held in March and April to give local governments and citizens an opportunity to say how they think Virginia's declining interstate, primary and urban road construction money and public transit funds should be spent in the coming fiscal year.

The state Department of Highways and Transportation announced its annual series of pre allocation hearings today. For the Bristol District the hearing is set for April 1, at 10:00 a.m.

Commissioner Harold C. King said the hearings would be held in each of the department's eight district headquarters and at the Fairfax City Hall.

"In view of the difficult financial situation, local governments will be asked this year to report to us at the hearings, or in written comments, on what they regard as the absolute minimal improvements needed in their jurisdictions," King said.

"I think it is highly important that we seek their assistance in deciding how to spend the funds which will be available in the coming fiscal year and in future years," he said.

King said the state's highway construction and improvement program is hampered by the three-fold problem of inflation, increasing road and bridge maintenance obligations, and the fact that road user tax revenue isn't living up to expectations.

The department's preliminary projections indicate that just over $300 million in state and federal funds probably will be available for the interstate, primary, and urban systems in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

That's about $50 million less than was available for allocation in the current fiscal year, and may be cut even further by proposed reductions in federal aid for highway construction projects.

In its announcement today, the department said the series of nine hearings in March and April will not deal with requests for secondary road improvements. Those requests will be received separately in public hearings conducted jointly by the county boards of supervisors and the department's resident engineers throughout the state.

Thought for the Day

The Bible is alive with messages from God.

WORD of GOD

Now the parable is this. The seed is the word of God.

Those by the wayside are they that hear, then cometh the devil, and taketh away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved.

They on the rock are they, which when they hear receive the word with joy, and these have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

And that which fell among thorns are they, which, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares and riches and pleasures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

Frank Duff: Master Of A Vanishing Art

By Perle A. Sorah, Jr

In the early part of this century, a sight as common as todays automobile, was the horse. Transportation and livlihoods depended on the horse. As people depended on the horse, so did they depend on a farrier or horseshoer. Such a man was Frank Duff.

Frank began an apprenticeship in his teenage years with a master farrier in Pennington Gap, Virginia. He, along with other sound men, worked long hours at a coal fired forge or under horses. All the time gaining needed experience. The apprentices were taught to take care of any problem of the horses foot, from diseases to gait defects, along with learning to trim and prepare the foot for the shoe to be nailed on. The shoes had to be made by hand from iron bars, heated red hot and shaped with a hammer and an anvil until a near perfect fit to the foot was achieved. Not every horse could be shod alike since each had its different work to do. A walking horse required a shoe to improve or steady his high stepping gait, quarter horses needed a light shoe to aid in speed and agility, draft horses needed heavy shoes for traction while pulling large wagons, bull tongue plows, or working in the log woods. The apprentice horseshoer had to treat each animals' needs seperately. The trade was quickly learned by Frank, allowing him to go out on his own.

With the widespread use of the motorcar, the role of the horse quickly changed. Horses were less a necessity and more for pleasure and sport. Stables of horses used for showing, racing and as hobbies were all across the ares. Frank took to the road following his trade. His shoeing circuit not only included Virginia, but also Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina. Many times he would set up his old Army forge and stay at a stable for a week or more, making new shoes and resetting old ones. County and state fairs almost always had at least one horse shoe and many had more. Frank would unload his tools and camp on the grounds, tending to the exhibitors needs.

His face became familar to horsemen throughout the area, and so did his work. The shoes, hammered from blank steel with the nail holes punched by hand were almost free from hammer marks. Many people would only have to examine a shoe and know that "Duff made it". Not only did he make and fit the shoes, he, on occasion, made nails when none were the right size or length.

As people progressed in other areas so did they in horseshoes. "Keg" or ready made shoes could be bought at most hardware and feed stores. Boxes full of different size shoes would be in every store. Frank chose not to go the way of progress. His viewpoint was that not every horse could wear the same style of shoe. He continued with the hot coal fired forge, hammer and anvil.

Horseshoeing classes were given by various vocational and trade schools enlisting Frank as instructor. His students, male and female, were taught basic and advance farrier science. The relationship between the movement of the horse and the way the horse was shod was always stressed. Students were taught what tools to use and when to use them. Quality farrier tools were next to impossible to buy, so the students were taught to make their own tools. Coil springs from automobiles were heated, straightened, and points hammered out to be used as forepunches, pritchels or creasing tools. No "storebought" tool was as good or lasted as long.

More people have learned and admired Frank's work than probably any other farrier this area has ever known. He has shared some secrets of his trade and some he left to be observed by onlookers. Anyone who ever worked with or around him could learn, if he watched and listened. Most modern day farriers lack the expertise Frank had. His skill is clearly shown in the way his anvil rings as he shapes a shoe. The way he talks to a horse while he trims the foot or nails a shoe in place, displays his enjoyment of his work.

I asked Frank one day where he learned to shoe horses. He replied, "I'm still learning, I'm only an apprentice." Master or apprentice it is all in the viewpoint, but Frank Duff was truly a master of his art.

Peanut Butter is a good source of protein and is favorite of old and young alike. March is National Peanut Month, plan to celebrate by trying peanuts and peanut products in some new ways, then share your discoveries with others. Many adults and children eat snacks during the day. Why not make them nutritious like this receipe for "Double peanut butter cookies" It was a first place winner in the peanut receipes contest for Mrs Charles P Minor, Jr

DOUBLE PEANUT BUTTER COOKIES

1 ½ cups all purpose flour
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
⅝ cup creamy peanut butter divided
⅓ cup light corn syrup
1 tablespoon milk

Combine flour, sugar, soda and salt, cut in shortening and ½ cup peanut butter with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal. Stir in corn syrup and milk. Shape dough into a long roll. Wrap in waxed paper and refrigerate 2 to 3 hours or until firm. Cut into ¾ inch slices. Place half of slices on ungreased cookie sheet. Spread each with ½ teaspoon peanut butter, top with remaining cookie slices and seal edges with fork. Bake at 350 degrees 10 to 12 minutes. Yields about 2 dozen cookies.

Fertilizer Use May Set Record

Fertilizer use in the U S is expected to reach a new record of about 24 million nutrient tons this year, up 3 percent from 1979 80 Use of the primary nutrients, nitrogen, phosphate and potash, could increase 2 to 4 percent each

The likelihood of increased 1981 acreage and stronger crop prices will contribute to greater fertilizer use Domestic production is holding at high levels.

Fertilizer prices are not expected to increase as much as 1979 80 s 27 percent, but they may average 8 to 12 percent higher. This will likely be the result of strong demand and rising costs of production, transportation, and retailing

If U.S crop production is larger than expected, if unanticipated events restrict world supplies, or if additional fertilizer is exported, fertilizer prices might increase more than forecast

Keokee News

The March wind blew its icy blasts last week and on Thursday brought snow to the area. There was an accumulation of three inches during the night and the first day of Spring arrived Friday morning, March 20, draped in a blanket of white and it was like a cold winter day But by late evening some of the snow had melted. March is always a blustering month with changeable weather.

However, last year 1980, the weather pattern was much the same. On March 16, there was high winds, freezing temperature and snow

One of the deepest snows I recall fell on March 17, 1936, there was a blizzard which brought snow and the drifts were knee deep. It made difficult and hazardous traveling in this area for a few days

But we do know that now Spring time is here and the warm days will be coming soon

- A letter from aunt Abigail Slemp of Memphis, Tennessee describes the beauty of peach trees and all early flowers in bloom in Memphis at this time. She also sent a short poem

SPRING

Spring brings great joy
After winter's cold blast
Has turned and gone roaring
Into the past
The wonders of Spring
Makes all the birds sing

The W.M.U. members held their Annie Armstrong, Easter Program on Home Missions at the Pleasant Hill Baptist Church last Tuesday night

Funeral services were held in Big Stone Gap on Thursday afternoon and burial was in the Powell Valley Cemetery at Dryden Va

He was a good citizen and leaves many friends in the Keokee community who will remember him always Sincere sympathy is extended to his wife, Bertie Barker of Keokee and their large family of seven daughters and two sons, and the many other relatives in the loss of their loved one.

—Sympathy is also extended to the family of Eugene Kennedy of Dayton, Ohio who died unexpectedly at his home in Dayton, Ohio about two weeks ago as reported. Eugene who was 54-years-old at the time of his death, spent his early childhood days in Keokee at the home of his uncle and aunt, the late Mr. and Mrs. W.P. Calton.

He is survived by two sons and three daughters. He will be remembered by those who loved him. We think of his family in their hour of sorrow.

Elder and Mrs. Roy Flanary of Keokee went to Dayton and attended the funeral services.

Mrs. Flanary formerly Billie Jean Calton is his cousin.

—According to reports Jimmy Varner of Keokee suffered a heart attack and is a patient in the Lonesome Pine Hospital in Big Stone Gap, Va. Get well wishes to him

—We are pleased to note that Mrs. Clarence (Shirleen) Hull is doing nicely after heart surgery last Friday in a Tampa, Fla., hospital. We wish for her a speedy recovery and hope she will be fine soon Shirleen is the sister of Mrs Verda Thompson of Keokee

- Sam Cornett and Le Roy Deaton of German Town, Ohio recently spent a few days at Exeter, Va., visiting with Mr and Mrs Floyd Cornett They came to Keokee one day and Mrs. Cornett's daughter, Mrs Polly Deaton accompanied them to Exeter where the family enjoyed dinner and visiting together Sam is Floyd Cornett's son

- Happy birthday to our nieces, Mrs. Robert Quillen of Gate City, Va., who will celebrate her birthday on March 28th, and Mrs Earlene Pickering of Kingsport, Tn., who will have a birthday on March 29th We hope they will have a happy day

Mrs Lawerence Barker of Keokee and Mrs Clyde Neff of Big Stone Gap plan to exhibit their hand crafts at the Arts and Crafts Festival at the National Guard Armory in Big Stone Gap on March 28th and 29th. They make beautiful quilts of different designs, dolls, bonnets and many other items Their handicrafts will be displayed for viewing and also for sale

Bob Quesenberry of Keokee, Rt. 1, who is one of our oldest residents in the area celebrated his 90th birthday on March 24th. Happy birthday wishes to him.

—Belated birthday greetings to Alan Flanary of Appalachia, Va., who had a birthday on March 6. Also to Mrs. Clercie Breeding of Big Stone Gap who had a birthday on March 13.

—Mrs. Jill Greene of Middlesboro, Ky., celebrated her birthday on Sunday, March 15. Joining her at her home in Middlesboro for the occasion were her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.G. Thompson, Jr., of Big Stone Gap, and her grandmother, Mrs. Verda Thompson of Keokee. Everyone enjoyed a delightful time and the birthday dinner.

Jill was pleased with many nice gifts. Happy birthday wishes to her.

—Mr. and Mrs. David Kelly went to Richmond, Va., last week to visit David's father, Simon Kelly who is reported to be very ill at this time. We wish for him a speedy recovery.

Poets Corner

March is a month full of surprises
Nice weather, bad weather, beautiful sun rises
Soft snow flakes dancing about
Look again it's raining, you shout.

A few minutes later it has turned to sleet
For a change in the weather, March can't be beat
The wind playing ball with house tops and trees
On the very same day we get all of these.

Then comes a day so warm and nice
We start planting gardens, forgetting the ice
Be careful, warm weather is not here to stay
Another snow storm is on its way.

March is a new beginning for another spring to be
The first blades of grass, and the first flower we see
What a welcome sight, sure brightens our day
To know that Miss Spring Time is on her way.

Dear Editor,

At a regular meeting of the Memorial Barracks of the Veterans of World War I with a number of Lee County citizens present, there was an angry outburst against the county assessor's notice that our taxes will be based on the assessor's current evaluation of the real estate holdings.

The big question in the minds of everyone is WHEN and HOW did our assessor arrive at his figures! Someone stated that the assessor did not even look at the property evaluated

As an example of one of the complaints made today, was that this citizen reported that he had paid $150 for a scrap of land which was in part a cliff not big enough for a small garden. Now the assessor's estimate was $3,000 plus

When this person went to the stated appointment to meet the assessor, he found a huge mob waiting for their so called appointments. Some had been waiting for as long as SEVEN HOURS! IT WAS UTTER CHAOS!

Mr Editor, can we be expected to be called Good Citizens when treated in this manner?

Very truly yours,
A.C. Taylor
Barracks Commander

Dear Sir:

This letter is a request for your help in contacting and locating former members of a Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) Company that was in Jonesville, Virginia from 1933 to 1942. Of the approximately 800 yound men who were members of that Camp at one time or another during the nine year period, quite a few of them were from your area of the state. We realize that in forty or more years, many of them have settled through out the United States and others are now deceased, but, we also feel that there are many who returned to their home areas and still reside in or near their orignal home site.

Our first reunion was attended by only a very small percent of former members, due to our inability to properly notify them of the pending reunion. If you could possibly publish the enclosed reunion notice in your newspaper(s), we are certain that it will increase the reunion attendance by fifty percent. As we have no other way to initially contact these former members of CCC Co. 2380, I'm sure as subscribers to your newspaper they will be very grateful to you for conveying this information to them. We of the Reunion Association, will also be very thankful to you for any assistance that you can give us in this matter.

We feel that there will be many human interest stories unfolded at this reunion, so you or your staff are cordially invited to attend if you feel it would be news worthy.

With Deepest Appreciation
Herbert N. Green

Dear Mr Lee,

I'm writing you about the way the people were treated in the basement of the jail while they were waiting to see the tax assessor

I called on Wednesday March 18, 1981 for an appointment as directed by the letter I received from the assessment board. I was told my appointment would be at 11:30 a.m. March 20, 1981.

Upon arriving at the office for my appointment I found the room over crowded with mostly elderly people I was also told I would have to wait two to three hours for my appointment

About 1:00 P.M. I returned to the office to find more elderly people standing and sitting around the room. I asked one of the women who was sitting at the desk what the line count for the building was or if thes had one. She stated she didn't know if there was one

About 30 minutes later I met a man who happened to be a volunteer fireman from the Thomas Walker Unit. He said all public buildings had a fire code but who you get to inforce it

Sometime later I saw Lee County law enforcement officer I told him about what was going on in the basement of the jail. He said he wasn't going down there and get involved. He had received calls from the assessment people about being harassed but would not go down either

I told him what would happen if a fire broke out I told him how they had these older people crowded into this room as if they were animals. Once again he refused to go do anything about it

About this time a woman had been told was a reporter came out of the court room. I told her if she wanted a story I could give her one. After talking a couple of minutes she said she could not write anything about this situation because it was political and was not her bag

To close my day at Jonesville, Va. I returned to the assessor office. At 4:00 p.m. I got to see the tax assessor, which I had gone to Jonesville to see at the beginning. He made a note saying my taxes were too much

I am from New Hampshire but work out of Chicago. My wife and I bought a piece of land in Ewing so we could move here when we retire in eight years. We paid $8,000.00 for this land in October 1978 and have been assessed $15,100.00 for it. I just hope they don't treat everyone in Lee County the way I was treated Friday, March 20, 1981.

Yours Truly,
Ed McCormick

This edition of the NEWS is the final one to be published under the present management.

Next Monday, the ownership and management of the Powell Valley Printing Company will be in new hands.

After 25 years, which have passed quickly, we feel that a change will be good for all concerned.

The Thursday, May 3, 1956 edition of the NEWS carried the following editorial:

We are very happy to take over the publication of the Powell Valley News. Several years ago, Sam C. Blackwell, late editor of the News, started using the slogan on the masthead of this paper which places emphasis on the words "Friendliness, Cooperation, Service and Progress." We see no reason for changing this slogan. It expresses perfectly what our objectives are to be over the years to come. We hope to continue and renew old friendships and, of course, make new friends. We certainly want to cooperate in promoting all worthwhile County Activities. Service is our reason for existence. We are anxious to be of service in every possible manner to the people of Lee County. We must be progressive, realizing that no person, object or situation remains the same. So our aim is to move forward with Lee County

Agriculture and the Coal Industry are our two major sources of income. We aim to promote the expansion of these two important industries because they have been, and will possibly continue to be our main sources of income for some years to come. However, we feel that there are many opportunities for developing new sources of income for the County. We hope to discuss these in the near future

Of course the foremost reason for a newspaper's existence is to keep the public informed. We pledge ourselves to report the news in a fair and impartial manner. No group or individual will be favored

The Powell Valley News is a Lee County paper. The words "NEWS" is made up of the first letters of the words NORTH, EAST, WEST and SOUTH. So as the words NEWS implies we will serve all sections of Lee County to the best of our ability

We hope that we have, at least in a small measure, been able to carry out the objectives outlined above

During these 25 years our advertisers as well as our subscribers have given us wonderful support and cooperation. For this we are extremely grateful

All of the people who have been a part of the Powell Valley Printing Company over this 25 year period deserve the credit for the growth we have enjoyed. They have been wonderful. The fact that we will no longer be closely associated with them has made the decision more difficult.

Being a part of the growth and progress of Lee County; recording the small and larger events; making so many friends has been an experience few have the opportunity to enjoy. For this we are truly grateful.

Even though we will no longer be involved in the publication of the NEWS, we look forward to the continuation of our friendship with the people of the county

Keeping in mind the great support we have enjoyed, we hope that this support will continue for the new owners

Books At The Library

JACK THE RIPPER - Richard Gordon - This novel masterfully evokes the London of 1888, especially the slums around Whitechapel Hospital, the scene of the crimes. As the bodies of murdered prostitutes pile up toward the end, the Ripper begins to feel at ease in his nocturnal pursuits. The engaging villan, Dr. Bertie Randolph, leads us through the respectable society of doctors and nobility as well as the squalor of England's poor.

THE MEDICINE CALF - Bill Hotchkiss - Mountain man, hunter scout, leader of the Crow warriors, and later head chief of the Mountain Crows - he was otherwise known as Jim Beckwourth, the son of a Virginia aristocrat and a mulatto slave girl. This novel is based on Beckwourth's own account of those years between 1824 and 1833

SON OF SAM - Lawrence D. Klausner - Based on the authorized transcription of the tapes, official documents and diaries of David Berkowitz

SPECTRUM - David Wise - A chilling novel of CIA collusion and betrayal written by a journalist who has covered the agency for over twenty years. Wise also wrote the non fiction THE INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT

KEEPERS OF THE FEAST - B. C. Hall - Molded in the unique Texas tenets of religion and politics and the sporting life, this is the true hate story of a feud within a notorious family. As in ancient sagas, seeds of spite, bitterness and malice were planted early. Fifty years had to pass before an uneasy reconciliation occured and perhaps the rancor is only beginning

THE WHOLE TRUTH: THE WATERGATE CONSPIRACY - Sam J. Ervin, Jr - Working with a thorough knowledge of the facts and the law, Ervin recounts the day by day activities of key Watergate players who reveal and condemn themselves in their own words

Governor Dalton Declares March 22-28 "Brittle Bone Disease Week"

Gov. John N. Dalton has declared the week of March 22 to 28 "Brittle Bone Disease Week" in an effort to help the Virginia Jaycees raise money to establish a "mobility clinic" for victims of that disease at Children's Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Brittle bone disease, or osteogenesis imperfecta (OI), is an extremely painful, crippling disease of the connective tissue characterized by extremely fragile bones and teeth, which affects 30,000 to 40,000 Americans. The disease usually strikes children, and many victims do not survive birth. Those who survive face a lifetime of painful bone fractures, crippling deformities, braces, prolonged hospitalization, sutnted growth and confinement in a bed or wheelchair.

In recent years, medical professionals have begun to realize the importance of carefully applied physical therapy for OI patients. Controlled exercise has proven, in many cases, to be an effective means of strengthening bones and muscles, which reduces the dangers of fractures.

But special exercise equipment is a necessity; and to that end the Virginia Jaycees are mounting a campaign to raise $66,000 for a special mobility clinic at Children's Hospital.

The money will go toward the purchase of wheelchairs, walkers, special light weight braces, and other equipment. It will also pay for the training of a staff in bracing techniques and special therapy needs of OI patients.

"We'RE MAKING AN APPEAL TO ALL THE Jaycee Chapters in the State, as well as to private citizens to help us out in any way they can," said John Welborn, Chairman of the Jaycees Brittle Bone Program. One Virginia Jaycee Chapter, the Eastlake Jaycees, has pledged $100 to fight this disease and challenges other Jaycee Chapters to match or beat that pledge. "Our secondary goal is to generate public awareness for the disease and to further identify other OI patients and families in Virginia who may not be aware of the clinic," Welborn said.

Welborn further said that once the money is raised and the clinic is started, the Jaycees will continue to support it in the form of contributions for research.

Donations to the clinic are tax deductible, Welborn said, and must be made payable to Osteogenesis Imperfecta - National Capital Area Inc. (OI NCA), and can be mailed to John Welborn, State Chairman, Brittle Bone Disease, The Virginia Jaycees, 7825 Glenister Drive, Slpringfield, Virginia 22152.

Foreign Landholding In Virginia Reported

According to recent figures released by the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services and the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), a total of 80,554 acres of Virginia agricultural land is now registered under foreign ownership.

The total registered acreage represents less than one half of one per cent of the state's total farm land. Slightly over one-half of the total foreign owned acreage is in forest land.

The total of 80,554 acres reported as foreign owned in Virginia includes U.S. entities in which foreigners held a five percent or more interest. Investors from West Germany, England, and the Dutch Antilles held over 50 percent of all foreigh land in the state.

Distribution patterns indicate that foreign ownership is heavily concentrated in the South, although foreign agricultural land holdings were reported in all 50 states. Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Texas and Tennessee account for 32 per cent of all foreign owned acreage.

Based on USDA figures, Virginia ranks 17th among all states in the amount of land purchased by foreign interests

Foreigners with 5 per cent ownership interest or greater in U.S. farmland must report this interest to ASCS within 90 days of the acquisition. Failure to file an accurate report can result in a penalty with fines up to 25 percent of the farmland's fair market value

Cabbage is ninety-one percent water.

ASC Committee Acts On ACP Applications

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, announced that the Committee acted on all applications filed under the 1981 Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP) at its March 16 meeting. "Farmers should be receiving their approvals within several days," said Myers.

Myers also reminds farmers to contact the county office if they desire a purchase order to be issued to a vendor for the conservation material required. The following vendors have signed an agreement to supply materials under the 1981 ACP: Charles G. Baker, Route 1, Box 44, Jonesville, Va.; Broadwater Trading Co., P.O. Box 93, Gate City, Va., Dot Farm Supply and Equip. Co., Inc., Route 2, Pennington Gap, Va.; Johnny Gilmer Lime and Fertilizer Co., Route 2, Nickelsville, Va.; Howard Brothers Lime Hauling, Dryden, Va.; Lee Farmers Coop., Inc., Jonesville, Va.; Odell's Five, Box 126, Rose Hill, Va.; Carl David Osborne, Route 1, Box 135, Blackwater, Va. 24221; Rasnic Farmers Drive In, Pennington Gap, Va.; Supergro of Virginia, Box 67, Ewing, Va.; Philip Wallen, Route 1, Box 23, Blackwater, Va.

"Lee County received a 1981 fiscal year allocation of $31,552," said Myers. "The County Committee has attempted to efficiently utilize this money to obtain as much conservation work as possible by private landowners," he added.

Myers also encourages farmers to perform their conservation practices as soon as possible. Farmers who have decided not to carry out their practice should notify the county office immediately so that others may receive the benefit of the funds.

Farmers Should File Reports On Fall Seeded Crops With ASCS

Max Graham, Vice-Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, reminds farmers to report acreages of their fall seeded crops to the ASCS office. "Acreages of the fall-seeded crops of wheat, barley, rye and oats may now be reported," said Graham.

Under the terms of the 1981 Wheat and Feed Grain Program, producers may obtain free insurance on their wheat, barley, corn, and sorghum crops. Producers who sustain a loss of 40 percent or greater to their crops will be eligible to receive insurance benefits.

Other benefits available include target price and prevented planting protection. The only requirement on the part of the farmer is to file a timely and accurate report of his planted acreages of all grain crops.

There is no set aside or planting limitation requirements in the 1981 program. Farmers are encouraged to grow as much grain as they want to. However, increased plantings in 1981 will not serve as a basis for increasing a farm's normal crop acreage (feed grain) allotment in future years.

Graham concluded by encouraging farmers to file an acreage report on their wheat, barley, rye, and oats crops as soon as possible.

Power Rates To Rise 9.3 Percent On April 2

The TVA Board of Directors today approved a net 9.3 percent increase in electric rates effective April 2 as the second step of a rate boost that started last October to fund the 1981 Office of Power budget.

Manager of Power Hugh G. Parris reluctantly recommended it because he said he knew it means "some people will have utility bills which cause severe financial hardships."

"And that does matter to me. I care about those people," he told the TVA Board in its concluding session of the February Quarterly Rate Review in Knoxville.

Action on the rate increase occurred by a 2-1 vote after a more than two hour meeting during which several members of the public addressed the TVA Board. Board Chairman David Freeman and Director Richard Freeman voted for the increase. Director Robert Clement voted against it. Chairman Freeman called the rate increase "the lowest amount we can get by with to meet the statutory test in the TVA Act, which I have no discretion over, but must obey." Richard Freeman said, "With no great happiness, I vote to support the recommendation of the staff to increase rates 9.3 percent." Clement said he had previously stated his opposition to the increase, and voted "no."

The 9.3 percent increase will produce revenues of $161 million. The Office of Power estimated that TVA will need additional revenues of $221 million over the next six months to meet its obligations. However, a $60 million revenue credit is being applied to the overall amount, reducing the amount to be raised by the rate increase to $161 million. Without the revenue credit, rates would have risen by 12.8 percent.

Parris said the 9.3 percent increase would raise the cost of 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity to a residential consumer under the most widely used TVA rate schedules from $38.79 to $42.05, an increase of 8.4 percent. The 9.3 percent in TVA's wholesale increase to its 160 local power distributors.

Parris also discussed a new Office of Power survey which compares TVA residential and industrial monthly electricity bills to utilities nationwide and in the Southeastern U.S. region. The comparison showed TVA has the lowest residential electricity rates of any major U.S. city, with the exception of Portland, Oregon. Chairman Freeman noted that a residential rate increase is pending for the Portland area. TVA's residential rates are as low as any in the Southeast, the new survey showed.

The Power Manager ended his recommendation to the TVA Board saying he sincerely regretted the hardship caused by higher utility bills.

"I'm doing all I can to improve that comparison of rates with other cities. And I'm not about to give up or quit. I believe we can do better," he said.

He said he was "extremely disappointed" that after cutting $72 million out of the Power budget in labor, materials, and services, interest charges went up by $73 million since August, wiping out the gain.

"If there is any way to climb down that bar chart of residential and industrial rates, we're going to do it. That's how the world has always judged TVA," he said. "That's the bottom line, as far as I'm concerned. I know people are suffering, not just from electric rates, but all prices today."

He said TVA cannot hope to stop inflation by itself but TVA managers "can do something about productivity and efficiency."

"The TVA Power organization is going to become, by any measure, the most efficient utility organization in the Nation. We're going to have as few people as we can, but the best utility people in the world. We're going to buy only what we need and have to have."

The April rate increase is expected to carry the TVA power system through fiscal year 1981 ending September 30. The 1982 budget will be examined and rates set to fund it in the Quarterly Rate Review in August.

Dear Debbie

Letters to DEBORAH WHITE

DEAR DEBBIE:

I have just been kicked in the gut. My wife of 35 years told me she is in love with another man and wants a divorce. I know men don't cry but I cannot help it. I feel devastated. We have three grown children. We have not told them yet. I worshipped this woman. I did everything for her. Now, at 58, my life is over. She says I have been an okay husband but there was no more excitement. She says I'm like a houseplant to her now; she barely knew I was there. I told her I would change, that I would be anything she wanted if we could try again. She has already told her attorney to go ahead. I know you can't make her come back to me. What I want to know is how I can keep from going crazy over this.

OKAY HUSBAND

DEAR OKAY.

You'll have to try a little of your wife's medicine; i.e. going out, meeting new people, and most of all, just surviving. Once time heals some of the hurt and you come up for air, you'll realize that at 58 your life is NOT over.

DEAR DEBBIE:

My best friend is living with her boyfriend. She is also having an affair with someone else, whom she sees when her boyfriend is at work. I like and respect her boyfriend. I don't like to see anyone pull the wool over his eyes. I also feel terribly guilty because I know what my friend is doing. I don't want to ruin our friendship because I love her dearly, but I am losing respect for her because of her behavior. As I see it, my options are to either stop being friends with her, confront her boyfriend with the truth, or call him at work one day when my friend is with her lover and tell him to come home right away. Please help me decide.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED:

You seem to have overlooked one very obvious option, which is to mind your own business. You may consider this girl your best friend, but if you can't handle your friendship without meddling in her life, believe me you are not her best friend.

DEAR DEBBIE:

My husband and I are part of a crowd of other couples our age (mid-fifties). We go to a lot of social functions: i.e. church suppers, picnics, dinners, etc. After eating, the men tend to drift together while the women enjoy a good chat. My husband never joins the men. At first the girls used to tease him about always remaining with us, but now I can sense that everyone feels kind of awkward. Eventually we all regroup and spend the rest of the evening socializing together. I have asked my husband why he always joins the "hen party" after dinner. He says it's because he has nothing to say to the men. The trouble is, he has nothing to say to the women either and just hangs around like a wet blanket. I have told him to stop acting the fool but it doesn't help. Any advice?

NORMAL WIFE

DEAR NORMAL:

If your husband prefers staying with the women, I say let him. Perhaps if you accorded him the same respect you would a stranger, your friends would take their cue from you. They might then encourage him to participate more in the conversation, which in turn would encourage him to contribute more.

1981, McNaught Synd.

BE READY – BE FAITHFUL
Matthew 25: 1-13

Concerning the return of Christ, our Lord sought to impress His hearers with the following facts: the certainty of this event, the uncertainty as to the time of it, the necessity of preparation for it, the blessedness of those who are prepared for it, and the wretchedness of those who are not prepared for it. With reference to this greatest future event, our Lord enjoined preparedness and watchfulness on the part of all of us.

In this remarkable "Parable of the Ten Virgins" Christ portrayed ten lovely, joyous and charming maidens who were expecting to participate in an oriental marriage festival. During the interval of waiting for the arrival of the groom, all of the ten virgins became drowsy, began to nod, and fell into a deep sleep.

The essential difference between the virgins consisted in the fact that five of them took extra oil along with their lamps and the other five failed to do so. With additional oil in reserve, the wise virgins were ready to replenish the supply in the event of an emergency. Lacking in forethought, the foolish virgins had failed to carry extra oil.

At midnight, when the bridegroom was approaching, all of the virgins were awakened by a crier who said, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh; go ye out to meet him." Embarrassed by their failure to prepare, the foolish virgins attempted to beg or borrow oil from the wise ones, but they were not able to do so. While away, attempting to buy oil from others, the bridegroom made his appearance and the bridal party entered the house and the door was closed. For the wise virgins, the shut door meant safety, enjoyment and intimate fellowship, but for the foolish ones, who returned and begged for admittance to no avail, the fastened door meant neglected privileges and forfeited opportunities. Of course, the foolish virgins were fearfully disappointed, but they could not blame anyone except themselves for their predicament. Having neglected the making of the necessary preparation, they were simply reaping the natural harvest of their neglect.

In the light of this parable, it is evident that we cannot prepare for the emergencies and the great testing times after they have come upon us. So many today neglect to make the proper preparation for life, death, and the judgment while they have the opportunity. And lost opportunities can never be recalled. There is an end to numerous opportunities.

Those of us who are God's children need to remember that nobody on this earth knows when Christ is coming again. For this reason we should daily try to discover His will for us and then strive to do that will. It is our privilege and duty to strive to glorify our Lord in what we say and do. Let us wait patiently, watch expectantly, and work faithfully for our Lord until He returns.

"When Jesus comes to reward His servants,
Whether it be noon or night,
Faithful to Him, will He find us watching,
With our lamps all trimmed and bright?"

The certainty of Christ's return should be a challenge to those who are not saved to repent of their sins and to believe on the Saviour without delay. Receiving Christ as one's Saviour is something that no one else can do for any individual. Since your opportunity to receive eternal life is not going to be held out to you forever, don't wait until the door is shut, and you are still outside that door.

2 Shot In Break-In At Lefevers Store

Local sheriff's officials have charged two Kingsport men with breaking and entering and grand larceny of Lefever's Family Store in Dot on March 27.

According to Lt. Charlie Janeway, Buren Efford Laney, a 39-year-old brick mason, Lucy Road, Kingsport, and Phillip Roberts, his brother-in-law were apparently in the process of heisting about $2,200 worth of merchandise from Lefevers when owner, Wayne Bellenger, caught them red-handed. A third suspect was glimpsed by Bellenger, but his identity and whereabouts remain unsolved to local authorities.

Janeway said that Bellenger, who lives in a separate building behind his store, was awakened about 3 a.m. by his dog barking. He got up and checked about, but noticed nothing out of the ordinary until he spotted a flicker of lights out at the store. He went back to his bedroom and told his wife to call the sheriff's office who was on the scene in about 10 minutes, Janeway said.

Bellenger then picked up his .12 gauge, double-barrelled shotgun and headed to the store. The robbers apparently heard the click of the storm door closing and as Bellenger approached, they started running, one on the east side of the building and one on the west.

Bellenger fired at both stopping their escape. Laney was taken to the local hospital and Roberts surfaced later in a Kingsport hospital and Kingsport Police notified local authorities of his whereabouts.

Janeway said Laney would never admit to any knowledge of the crime and contended he was hitchhiking in the area.

The Lee County Lieutenant suspects the third party to have been someone close by in the neighborhood to have helped in coordinating to plan and getaway. No vehicle was spotted in the area at the time of the incident despite immediate searches by local authorities.

Janeway described both Roberts and Laney as being "schooled" in the business of breaking and entering. "They're not amateurs by a long sight."

Laney has a prior record of several breakings and enterings in the Kingsport area and just within the last six weeks was convicted as an habitual offender, sentenced two-five years.

He was out on bond awaiting an appeal and even since that time has been arrested for drunk driving and a hit-run. Janeway related that the assistant attorney general is trying to get his bond revoked.

School Board Seeks $10 Million Budget

The Lee County School Board has given its stamp of approval to a $10,295,917 budget proposal for the coming school year -- a figure which is a 14.4 percent increase over last year's county appropriation.

Superintendent Bob McCoy describes the budget request as "very reasonable" and "basically very conservative" if one takes into account the current 12.4 percent rate of inflation.

Salaries make up between 75 and 85 percent of the total budget, therefore if local supervisors see fit to whittle away, salary increases would likely be the hardest hit.

When asked what he suspected the supervisors' reaction to the proposed budget would be, McCoy replied "Supervisors are presently concerned about finances generally and since the school budget makes up the majority of the total county budget, if there is a need to reduce, the burden historically will fall on the educational system. Unfortunately when this occurs, it is the children who will suffer."

"I hope the supervisors will do the best they possibly can under the circumstances."

Among those categories reflecting larger requests for funds are costs of instruction, pupil transportation, replacement of transportation and fixed charges.

School Board members are seeking $5,784,979 for instruction for its teachers, principals, substitutes, assistant principals, supervisors and visiting teachers. This is a 13.1 percent increase over last year's figure of $5,110,094 and reflects a 12.4 plus a step salary increase

Pupil transportation has jumped by 20 percent to $678,742 reflecting the soaring costs of gasoline and vehicle equipment parts, tires, etc.

$220,000 is being requested under the category of replacement of transportation for the purchase of 11 school buses or a 200 percent increase over last year's appropriation.

A 19.9 percent increase in fixed charges includes a $743,941 figure that is state's share of retirement, social security benefits and state group life insurance and has previously been carried on state books, but for the first time this year must be run through local budget records.

Under maintenance of school plant, $75,000 is being requested for a new roof for Dryden School and the School Board is again seeking $30,000 in capital outlay for shades, desks, band equipment and the local share of vocational equipment. Supervisors completely cut this $30,000 out of last year.

Coleman On Local Campaign Trail

A large crowd of enthusiastic supporters turned out to greet Virginia Attorney General Marshall Coleman at the March 26 reception held at Fraley's Coach House, Big Stone Gap.

Coleman made his intentions clear from the start, saying his heart was set on being Virginia's next governor and "I don't intend to lose."

Coleman spoke of a mood he sensed in his travels about the state, sort of a sense of relief knowing that Ronald Reagan is president of the United States

He reminded Ninth District voters to remember that it was former President Jimmy Carter who signed the U.S. Surface Mining Act, which he as Attorney General took to the U. S. Supreme Court

"The General," as he has been affectionately nicknamed, stressed the conservative movement that is sweeping the country and urged faithful GOP supporters to guard against attacks from those "who would undo all we've accomplished."

Coleman said he believes in limitations of government and is looking to the private sector to solve many of the problems of the future

He looks foward to the opportunity as Virginia's governor of translating Republican Party principles into public service policy and wants to continue the 12-year tradition of excellence in public service and stable government in the executive mansion

He sees the Ninth District as the district that could make the difference "The battle lines are drawn here," he said

Promising diligent service if elected, Coleman ended his remarks on an most appropriate note to local citizens. "If I'm elected, I won't forget about Highway 23 and 58."

His meaning was clear

State Attorney General Marshall Coleman gives a warm greeting to 96-year-old GOP faithful "Sparky" Arrington, of Big Stone Gap, at a reception in his honor March 26 at Fraley's Coach House, Big Stone Gap. Coleman, who is campaigning for the GOP nomination for Virginia's governor, made an extended campaign swing through the Southwest Virginia area last week wooing potential supporters.

Lee Sheriff Stresses Need For More Troopers Full Time

There's a bit of irony in the recent flurry of Virginia State Trooper assignments to Lee County due to the coal strike, at least in the eyes of Sheriff R. V. Chadwell.

Lee County, up until about a year ago, has had five troopers assigned to cover its 448 square miles.

However, since the April 20, 1980, shooting of Troopers Billy Wayne Livesay and Robert A. Hurley, (neither of whom have yet returned to work), manpower has been critically depleted, Chadwell said, putting more responsibility on the Lee County Sheriff's Department.

An additional trooper was assigned to the County as Chadwell persisted in pointing out the situation to State Police administrators both in Wytheville and Richmond This brings the total to four; however, four troopers are still not enough, Chadwell stressed.

No trooper is on duty in the County from midnight until 8 a.m. This means any sort of traffic accident has to be handled by the local sheriff's department including taking care of the injured, protecting the scene and directing traffic.

If such an accident occurs during this time period, local sheriff's department officials contact Wytheville State Police headquarters who in turn dispatch the trooper on call.

Chadwell says during this particular shift he had five deputies on duty and that sometimes his men have been tied up as much as two hours handling such traffic accident situations.

How does all this fit in with the current coal strike? Chadwell reports that prior to the actual walkout, he talked with local UMWA officials who assured him there would be no strike violence in Lee County.

In turn, sensing no need for beefed up police security, Chadwell said he requested no additional troopers to the strike area.

However, he was informed by Wytheville State Police Headquarters that they were assigning additional forces to Lee County and the area during the strike.

Chadwell's basic question is this: Where are the extra troopers when they are needed so desperately on a day to-day routine basis? The inconsistent policy has got him puzzled.

State Legislature Holds Reapportionment Hearings

According to an announcement by Sen. Hunter B. Andrews, of Hampton, chairman of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, two public hearings were scheduled on March 30 and 31 at the General Assembly in Richmond to hear from the citizens of Virginia on the Committee's reapportionment proposals of state Senatorial and Congressional districts.

Under Congressional Plan A, the Ninth District of which Lee County is a part, would be altered by deducting Carroll County and adding Floyd County, putting total population figures roughly at 538,871 or +0.79 percent deviation.

The "Fighting Ninth" as it has often been nicknamed would then include Lee, Scott, Wise, Dickenson, Russell, Washington, Buchanan, Tazewell, Smyth, Grayson, Wythe, Bland, Giles, Pulaski, Floyd, Montgomery and Craig. Floyd County was previously in District Five Carroll County would be placed in District 5.

Under Senate Proposal B, the state would be divided into 40 Senatorial districts, Lee County being in the 40th along with Buchanan, Dickenson, part of Russell, Wise and the City of Norton.

A total population figure in the 40th district would then roughly be 138,948 or a +3.96 percent deviation.

Social Security Recipients Annual Report Due April 15

Annual reports of 1980 earnings must be filed by April 15 by people receiving social security benefits who earned more than the annual exempt amount in 1980, R.L. Kelly, social security manager in Norton, said recently.

The 1980 annual exempt amounts were $5,000 for people 65 and over and $3,720 for people under 65 of last year.

People who received some benefits in 1980 who earned more than the exempt amount are required to file a report of those earnings by April 15.

Those who received no benefits in 1980 are not required to file a report, but, Mr. Kelly said, those people should file a report to make sure that any benefits that might be due for the year are paid.

A person who earned less than anticipated, for example, may be due some benefits, Mr. Kelly said the only way these benefits can be paid is if the person files an annual report

The general rule is that $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 of earnings above the exempt amount. A person can have substantial yearly earnings before all benefits are withheld. For example, a 65-year old person whose monthly benefit rate is $350 could earn $13,400 before all benefits for 1980 are withheld

People who are required to file an annual report should have received a copy in the mail. If they have not, they should contact the nearest social security office to obtain a copy. Those not required to file, but who wish to do so, can also get a copy of the form at any social security office.

The 1981 annual exempt amounts are $5,500 for people 65 or older any part of 1981 and $4,080 for people under 65 all of 1981.

More information about annual reports and the annual earnings test can be obtained at the Norton social security office, located at 630 Park Avenue. The telephone number is 379 2404.

Federal Crop Insurance On Burley Tobacco Questions And Answers

What is Federal Crop Insurance?

Federal Crop Insurance is a service offered by the United States Department of Agriculture through the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC). Its purpose is to help farmers protect their investment in their crops by offering financial protection against total or disastrous crop losses. FCIC policies provide protection against all natural causes of loss.

What does it protect?

It protects burley tobacco crops against all unavoidable causes of loss such as drought, excessive moisture, freeze, hail, wind, fire, disease and all other natural causes. Theft and abandonment of the crop are not covered.

How much coverage could I obtain?

FCIC offers policyholders a dollar guarantee. You may compute your "dollar" coverage by using the following formula: Pounds producer is trying to grow X 65% X $1.57 (1981 Support Price) = FCIC guarantee. Example: Coverage on 2000 pounds. 2000 X .65 X $1.57 = $2041. FCIC guarantee.

What does this coverage mean?

It means that if you sell your tobacco crop for any amount under your cash guarantee, you will receive a check from FCIC to bring you up to this guarantee. Example: $2041 - FCIC guarantee, Crop sells for $1541 A check of $500.00 will be issued.

What will my premium cost?

The rate per $100 coverage in Lee County is only $2.70. The farmer's premium in the above example would be computed as follows: $2041 (FCIC coverage) X $2.70 per hundred dollars = $55.11 annual premium

When do I pay the premium?

You do not have to pay the premium until after you sell the crop.

What about my sharecropper?

A producer can only insure his share of the crop. Your sharecropper will need his own policy to protect his interest in a tobacco crop.

What about additional hail insurance?

Additional hail insurance with private companies may be taken out on the crop to supplement FCIC coverage if the producer desires. This will provide double protection in the event of a hail loss. Producers may also exclude hail coverage from their FCIC policy and obtain a reduced premium by purchasing an amount of hail insurance equal to their FCIC guarantee.

Acreage Reports.

Farmers who have a FCIC policy are required to make an acreage report of the amount of tobacco they have planted once their planting is completed. The importance of this report cannot be overemphasized. It alone determines the dollar guarantee provided you by your policy for a crop year. A producer cannot insure more quota than his planted acreage times his ASCS burley yield will support. Farmers will be mailed the reports and are encouraged to contact their County ASCS Office for assistance in completing them. July 15 is the final reporting date.

When do I buy the insurance?

FCIC has to be taken out before you plant your 1981 crop but no later than May 20.

Interested producers are encouraged to contact the Lee County ASCS Office for more information.

Teacher Stress, Burnout Subject Of VEA Conference

Teacher stress and burnout, from a definition through causes, effects and possible remedies, will be the subject of a statewide instructional conference sponsored by the Virginia Education Association (VEA) in Roanoke March 12-14.

The three-day conference, open to VEA members, other educators and interested citizens, will be held at the Hotel Roanoke It will focus around two three hour workshops to help the expected 350 participants recognize stress, identify potential burnout victims, and minimize and manage stressful situations

The conference aims to provide teachers with skills to deal with stress on a day to-day basis "People in all occupations suffer stress and burnout, but signs show teachers suffer more than others," said VEA President Walt Mika. "Unless something is done, the problem will continue to grow and will harm the profession."

Dr William G Cunningham of Old Dominion University, who is researching the phenomenon of teacher stress and burnout, will address the opening session of the conference Thursday, March 12 at 8 p.m. His talk will define stress and burnout, describe their impact on the teacher, probe their causes and suggest possible solutions for improving the quality of teachers' lives

Cunningham, associate professor in the Colgate E. Darden School of Education at ODU, has just completed a program on teacher stress to be broadcast on educational television in April as part of the State Department of Education's "On and About Instruction" series.

Reggie Smith, VEA's director of Leadership Development and Human Relations, and Barby Halstead, executive director of the Fairfax Education Association, will conduct two concurrent workshops on stress identification and management Friday morning and again that afternoon.

Other conference activities will focus on physical indicators of stress, conducted by the American Heart Association, a smokers' clinic by the Virginia Lung Association and a film about stress, "What You Are Now Is What You Were When"

The conference is scheduled to end by noon Saturday

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

The month of March brought cold wind and snow and now he is marching away as the month of April appears on the scene.

Centuries ago the Romans named the months of the Christian calendar after the gods and goddesses. They had deep faith in their gods and throughout the world the names and characters of these mythical persons are associated with some of most sacred and the most practical affairs of modern life.

But the fourth month was different. It was not a god and not a goddess. They called it the "Angel of Spring." The Romans saw that this month opened the gates of birth and restored to life all those lovely and gentle things which had hidden in terror from the blasts of winter. And, so this month of beauty and new birth, when the earth wakes from its winter sleep, when the early flowers bloom, the buds appear on the trees and branches, the birds begin to sing and build new nests, and the woods are filled with song, is called April "The Opener."

April is the month when most farmers prepare their ground for planting spring and summer crops. It is a time when most small gardens are planted and Spring-time is a busy time for most everyone.

Pioneers Extension Homemakers

Twenty-nine Pioneer Home makers met at the Western Lee County Health Clinic on the after noon of March 18th for an instructive meeting, with Mrs. Rozetta Crumley, president, in charge.

Miss Fern Jones, Chaplain, brought an inspiring devotional on Three Main Ways the Lord Guides Us, using Biblical background from Psalm 119:5 and James 1:5 8.

The Virginia Homemakers Creed, led by Mrs. Billie Lou Smith, was recited in unison, and Roll Call was answered by each one naming her favorite Needle Work.

Mrs. Betty Jean Moore, Lee County Extension Agent, demonstrated from beginning to end the steps used in doing Lap Quilting in a frame. She also explained how a frame could be made, or bought for doing this type of quilting.

Members also shared quilt pieces and some of their home made quilts. Mrs. Magdalene Brooks had a very old quilt made by her grandmother which had very intricate patterns of quilting designs. Mrs. Eugene Jones shared quilted pillow tops.

Hostesses, Mrs. Ethel Crumley and Mrs. Elizabeth Chadwell, served delicious salads, cakes and drinks for refreshment to all present which included four visitors.

After the close of the meeting, Miss Fern Jones was pleasantly surprised by the group singing "Happy Birthday" to her, and showering her with birthday gifts, one of which was a birthday cake, made and decorated by Billie Lou Smith.

At the April meeting Organic Gardening will be considered.

Letters To The Editor:

Dear Editor, Powell Valley News,

It has been a long time coming, but it is finally here! The Stallard family history, entitled The Stallard Connection, will be ready for delivery August 1st.

The book will be printed by Graphic Communications Corporation, Lawrenceville, Georgia, of which a member of the family, Ann Stallard, formerly of Wise, Virginia, is vice-president.

These pre-publication notices are being sent out to secure money for the printing.

Each volume of The Stallard Connection will be 8½" by 11", and will contain approximately 1600 pages and 250 photographs. Included, also, are original documents, letters, wills, deeds, family anecdotes and traditions. The book will be hardbound, with a beautiful cover everyone will be proud to display.

The book is not being printed in order to make a profit. The compilers desire only to make information available to Stallards and related families. If there is any surplus, the Stallard Reunion Association will use the money for such projects as fencing in the cemetery at the Pioneer Samuel Stallard Monument, and placing markers at several of the OLD Stallard ancestors. The president of the Reunion Association at present is W. Kline Stallard, Box 220, Coeburn, Virginia 24230.

The price of The Stallard Connection is $35.00 if you plan to pick up the book at the Stallard Reunion at the Flatwoods Freewill Baptist Church, Friday night, July 31, and Saturday, August 1, 1981. Otherwise, include $2.75 extra for handling and postage, as mail deliveries will be made by UPS from the printers. For this reason, include both HOME ADDRESS and MAILING ADDRESS, if they are different.

Please reserve your copy, or copies, by April 30. Make check or money order payable to The Stallard Connection, and send to the address at the end of this letter. The number printed will depend largely on the number of orders received. NO REPRINTING IS PLANNED. Once they are gone, they are GONE!

Except for the orders sent out from the printers, the histories will be autographed by the compilers, Mrs. Bruce K. Stallard (Margaret), 3318 Price Avenue, Tampa, Florida 33611; Mrs. Bill Baker (Nancy C.), Box 1128, Wise, Virginia 24293; and Mrs. Clifford L. Stallard (Gladys), 1111 Virginia Avenue, Norton, Virginia 24273.

If you are a new contact, please let us know how you probably fit in, by giving us the names of parents, grandparents, great grandparents, and other ancestors, we can usually find where you belong. The information will be too late to go in the book, but it will be put in the Stallard files. Who knows, maybe, at some later date, there would be a supplement to this book!

Sincerely,
Nancy Clark Baker

April 4th Is "Burn Prevention Through Education Day"

April 4th has been officially recognized as "Burn Prevention Through Education Day" in Virginia by Governor John N. Dalton as part of the continuing effort by government and private industry to alert individuals about prevention of burn injuries.

According to figures tabulated by the University of Virginia Burn Center, more than 13,000 Virginians receive burns each year which requires hospital treatment.

"Burns can have a devastating impact on the victim and the victim's family. Treating severe burns requires sophisticated equipment, vast quantities of medications and a highly trained team of burn specialists. In dollars and cents the cost of this treatment is astronomical (as high as $2,500 a day). The cost of the pain, disfigurement and mental anguish cannot be quantitatively measured. Our objective is to significantly reduce the number and severity of burn injuries to citizens of the Commonwealth," stated Don Shannon of the Virginia State Fire Services Commission.

"Governor Dalton's interest in burn prevention is indicative of the emphasis being placed upon the matter at the highest levels of State Government and the private sector.

"An examination of the causes of most burn injuries indicates that many of these injuries are preventable if a little caution or guidance is applied, Shannon said. We believe that a special day set aside to draw attention to the problem is a major step in making people aware of the magnitude of the problem."

In the event of burn injuries, the UVa Burn Center prescribes the following emergency procedures:

1. Stop, drop, roll don't run as running only fans the flame. DO NOT PANIC!
2. Run cool water over the burn immediately. Cool water will help stop the burning process, ease the pain and clear the wound.

Sunday School Lesson

Matthew 26: 1 - 16

Christ was fully aware that His enemies would never be satisfied until they put Him to death.

The Announcement Of Christ
Matthew 26: 1 - 2

Previously Christ had told the disciples that He would be put to death, and that event was of great concern to them. Having finished the Olivet discourse, Christ for the first time informed the disciples when His death would occur, namely, in connection with the celebration of the Passover.

The Assembly of Christ's Enemies
Matthew 26: 3 - 5

Due to their hatred of Christ, the religious leaders of the Jews had resolved that they were going to put Him to death, but before they did so they used every method they could devise to discredit Him in the eyes of the people. With the failure of their various attempts, Christ's enemies plotted to kill Him, but they decided that it would be a mark of wisdom to delay His execution until after the Passover.

The Anointing of Christ by Mary
Matthew 26: 6 - 13

As an expression of his personal appreciation of what Christ had done for him, Simon the leper honored the Lord by having Him as the guest of honor at a feast in his home. Thinking that this might be her last chance to express her great love for Christ, Mary decided to pay Him homage before it was too late. Entirely disregarding what others might think or say, Mary went to Christ while He was reclining at the table, and acting in adoration and devotion, she anointed the Lord with precious ointment of spikenard.

As the fragrant odor of the perfume filled the room, there was astonishment and indignation on the part of the disciples. Expressions of criticism were voiced readily by them. Her discourteous, rude, and impudent critics, of whom Judas Iscariot was the leader, branded her spontaneous expression of her personal love and appreciation as an act of reckless extravagance. It was envy and selfishness that caused these advocates of economy to criticize Mary's marvelous exhibition of love and devotion. Christ quickly came to Mary's rescue with an expression of deepest appreciation and the highest possible praise for what she had done for Him. Christ hastened to use her act of fantastic devotion as an opportunity to speak another word about His approaching death.

The Agreement of Judas With the Religious Leaders
Matthew 26: 14 - 16

After Christ sternly rebuked Judas for his unkind and harsh remark about Mary's gift, Judas never recovered from the sting of it, but he became the victim of a smoldering resentment which literally consumed him. Judas immediately went to the chief priests, or religious leaders, and entered into an infamous agreement with them to the efect that, for the payment of thirty pieces of silver, which was the customary amount paid for a slave, he would lead them to the place where they could arrest Christ in the absence of the crowd. The betrayal itself revealed the resentment which was at the bottom of his dastardly deed. Knowing that Christ knew what was in his heart, Judas hated Him all the more for His knowledge.

Leading the mob to the Garden of Gethsemane, where he knew it was the habit of the Saviour to go for prayer and meditation, Judas hid behind the cloak of pretending friendship, and with a kiss of betrayal identified the Lord Jesus as the one whom they had come to arrest, according to the agreement which he had made previously with the enemies of the Lord.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

The House of Representatives voted last week to eliminate a scheduled April first increase in dairy price supports. This is a sacrifice for dairy farmers who face rising costs just as all farmers do. But the cost of the dairy support program has risen sharply, and something must be done to hold down that cost as part of our overall effort to reduce government spending.

Farm milk price supports are set at 80 percent of parity under the present law, with semi-annual price adjustments based on farmers' "prices paid" index. The government buys up excess butter, cheese, and nonfat dry milk to maintain the farm price support levels for milk, thus compensating for temporary bulges in production beyond commercial needs by taking them off the market. "Parity" is the relationship between the costs farmers pay for production and consumption items and the prices farmers get for their farm products. By law, the Secretary of Agriculture must support the price of milk to assure an adequate supply. But recently, dairy price supports at 80 per cent of parity, with semi-annual adjustments, are encouraging more milk output than the commercial market will take. The government is having to buy up so much butter, cheese, and nonfat milk to support the 80 percent support level that the surplus dairy products are piling up fast and government costs are skyrocketing.

Therefore, it has become necessary at this time to slow down the alarming increase in government purchases and holdings of surplus dairy products, thus lessening the burden overhanging future markets and easing the remedial action that would have to be taken later in dairy programs. The deferment will not cut the dairy support price, but will freeze it for six months. The issue of long-range dairy support policy will be handled as part of our consideration of the 1981 omnibus farm bill. I believe the Committee on Agriculture will insist on fair treatment for dairymen as part of that bill.

This legislation will save taxpayers $147 million this year, and will save consumers a milk price increase of about 7 to 8 cents a gallon. It is a necessary step in the fight against inflation.

PHS Opens Career Center

"Take a flight into your future!" reads the sign hanging beneath the bright blue mylar kite in the learning media center.

This is exactly what many Pennington High students have been doing since the Guidance Department announced the opening of the school's new career information center.

Guided by one of twelve student center managers, students visit the career center during study halls or other times pre-arranged by their teachers. Once there, they choose among some of the best and most up-to-date career resource material available on the market today.

Combining the career education systems of the Coordinated occupational information network (COIN), Chronicles, Appalachian Educational Laboratory (AEL), and Time Share, as well as several excellent Federal publications such as the Occupational Outlook Handbook (OOH), and the Dictionary of Occupational Titles (DOT), Pennington's career center provides information on literally thousands of occupations.

Some of this information can be absorbed by ear phones on modern audio-visual cassette and filmstrip viewers, a microfiche reader, or a viewdeck. Other sources include a large and complete occupational filing system containing hundreds of pictorial career briefs.

For those students who are considering a career in the Armed Forces, there is a special section in the Center containing free military catalogs and brochures, as well as other free information on job finding and job keeping skills.

Students considering post-secondary education or training have access to microfiche, which not only refers them to the college or school offering their major area of study, but provides the complete catalog of that school.

Other information refers to apprenticeships, the relationship of high school subjects to specific occupations, and current job openings. In fact, the Virginia Employment Commission provides a weekly microfiche listing of local job openings for the school.

Two extensive career information systems (AEL and Time Share), which are designed for the classroom, are available to teachers. These systems can be used by the individual, in small groups or in a 30 member classroom.

Later in the spring students and teachers will be guided by Pennington's counselors through the center for a more thorough introduction to the information available and to the equipment provided to use it. The Guidance Department at Pennington High School welcomes all interested persons in the community who are in need of career information or other assistance in planning a career to contact them at the school.

Family Notes

By Betty Jean Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

When you do your meal planning and food shopping, keep the basic four food groups in mind, milk group, meat group, fruit and vegetable group, and bread and cereals group.

The milk group includes milk, cheeses, yogurt, ice cream, and other foods made from milk. The important nutrients are calcium, protein, some of the B vitamins, and some other minerals

Adults need at least two servings from the milk group daily. (Pregnant or nursing women need four or more.) Teenagers need four or more servings, younger children three or four

One of the four food groups is the bread and cereals group. We need four servings of these foods daily. The major nutrients in this group are vitamins and iron. Breads and cereals are relatively inexpensive sources of energy and some protein. Whole grains supply us valuable roughage plus trace minerals.

Foods in this group include pastas, rice, and other flour and cereal products. Some refined products have been enriched with iron and three of the B vitamins. Protect these nutrients by not rinsing rice and pasta before or after cooking

Select enriched, fortified, or whole grain bread and cereal products. They give you more nutrition for your money

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service programs, activities, and employment opportunities are available to all people regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, handicap, or political affiliation

America's first parking meter was the Park-O-Meter, installed in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma on July 16, 1935. The charge was five cents.

The front panel pleated skirt was edged in cluny lace, a wide flounce of nottingham lace encircled the full skirt extending into a chapel length train.

Her two-tiered walking length veil was attached to a chantilly lace covered cap.

Kimberly Tabor, the bride's sister was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Tina Slabaugh and Terri Fox. Wendy Woliver, Cathy Woliver, Lushannah Pennington, and Tracie Carter served as flower girls.

Energy Credits Causing Refund Delays

An Internal Revenue Service report indicates that omissions on the form for computing energy conservation credits are delaying issuance of refund checks for many Virginia taxpayers.

According to the IRS, scores of taxpayers computing an energy credit on Form 5695, which is attached to the 1040 form, are not answering Item A at the top of the form to indicate that their "principal residence was substantially completed before April 20, 1977." Unless "Yes" is checked in answer to that question, no energy credit is allowed. The omission means that the return must be sent back to the taxpayer for completion This tacks an additional eight to ten weeks onto the normal time for issuance of a refund.

While on the topic of energy credits, the IRS says that many taxpayers continue to incorrectly claim the purchase and installation of wood burning stoves and fireplace inserts for the credit It was the most adjusted item last year by the Memphis Service Center. In fact, the IRS points out, neither wood burning stoves nor fireplace inserts are now or have ever been eligible for the energy credit. Part of the problem has been misleading advertising which surfaces from time to time indicating that purchasers of wood burning stoves and fireplace inserts "might" be eligible for the energy credit, the IRS says.

For further information concerning energy credits and to receive Form 5695 and free Publication 903, Energy Credits for Individuals, call IRS toll free (Richmond, 649 2361; Northern Virginia, 557 9230; Chesapeake, Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, 461 3770; elsewhere in Virginia, 1 800 where in Virginia, 1 800 552 9500) weekdays, 8:15 a.m. 4:30 p.m

Scout Show April 3rd, At Big Stone Gap

Final plans have been made for this year's annual scout show and a complete schedule of events has been released. The show will actually begin on Friday, April 3rd with the Boy Scout Order of the Arrow lighting an eternal council fire at a place designated in downtown Big Stone Gap. This will be followed by an Indian Dancing exhibition. The fire will be kept all night until transferred to the National Guard Armory on Saturday at 12:30 p.m. to open the Scout Show. The Friday night activities promise to be beautiful and exciting. The public is encouraged to attend this part of the show.

After the fire has been transported to the Armory, the actual show will begin at 1:00 P.M. Scouts will begin setting up their exhibits for judging early Saturday morning as not to throw the schedule off track. The Judging of the exhibits will begin at 2:00 P.M.

At 2:30 P.M. their will be a special treat for the old and young alike ... Officials of the Scout show have arranged for a special Karate Demonstration to take place at this time. We know you will enjoy this just as much as the rest of the Scout Show.

Awards for the displays will be presented at 3:00 P.M. There will be three ribbons available with Blue for exhibits scoring from 90-100 points by the judges, Red for 80-90 points and Yellow for 0-80 points. Each display will be awarded a ribbon.

Doctor In The Kitchen

Q. I have heard that your body can absorb the calcium in milk more easily than the calcium in dietary supplements. Is this true? What dairy foods are best? Any vegetables?

A. A recent study shows that lactose, a sugar found in milk, makes the absorptive cells of the intestine more permeable to calcium. Magnesium and zinc also may be more efficiently absorbed in the presence of lactose. Dairy foods are primary sources of calcium. You can get smaller amounts from broccoli, cabbage, and cauliflower. Certain vegetables -- spinach, beet greens and chard -- contain oxalic acid which binds the calcium so your body can't absorb all calcium they contain. They are however good sources of other nutrients.

Q. Are fast foods nutritious?

A. A study by Shannon and Parks at Pennsylvania State University indicates that fast foods are better than their press would indicate. According to the study fast food menus often contain items which, if properly selected, can furnish adequate protein, thiamine, riboflavin, vitamin C, and calcium. Just like any menu repeated over and over, though, fast foods don't supply everything. That's why we urge food selections from the four food groups -- milk, meat, fruit-vegetable, grain. So in short, there's no reason why fast foods can't occasionally be part of a well-balanced diet.

Q. What is folic acid? In what foods can I get it?

A. Folic acid (folacin) assists in normal blood formation in the body and helps enzyme and other biochemical systems function. You can get enough folic acid in your diet by choosing from green, leafy vegetables, liver, dry legumes, nuts, whole grain cereals and oranges.

Lee County Rescue Squad Makes History!

Reporter: Sarah McGee

In the early hours of February 25, 1981, three rescue squad members made history for the squad. Around 2:00 a.m that morning, Clarence Goins, Jimmy Osborne and Eddie Hilton were called at their homes and told that a rescue crew was needed to transport an expectant mother to the hospital for delivery of her baby. When they arrived in Jonesville at the home of Charles and Kathy Neeley they found that this baby had no intentions of waiting to get to a hospital. At 2:35 with help from Clarence Goins (assisted by Jimmy Osborne) Elissa Nicole came into the world, unaware that she was making history No member of the squad had ever before had the opportunity of delivering a baby. The mother and child were then transported to Middlesburg Hospital, where the crew was commended for doing such a fine job (Congratulations should also be offered to the mother!)

Also in February (on Valentine's Day, in fact) the Pennington Gap Rescue Squad held a dinner for its members to recognize four outstanding rescue squad volunteers. These men-Walter Quinley, Ray Mosley, Fred Quinley and L.C. Clawson - have been a vital part of the growth of the rescue squad. They deserve much praise for their commendable service. In order to honor them, the squad presented them with plaques recognizing them as life time members of the squad. These men also made history for the squad, in becoming the squads first life time members.

Plans for the new Rescue Squad building are underway. As donations continue to trickle in, we are filled with a sense of excitement that erection of the building can take place in the near future. The site of this perspective building is located on Kentucky Avenue.

The Junior Squad is continuing to seek new recruits. If you are fifteen to seventeen years old, and are interested in becoming involved in this vital service, you may receive more information by calling 546 1197 or 383 4261

The Thomas Walker unit of the Rescue Squad is running in full force. It presently has about 29 members, operating with two ambulances.

Keep in mind our Country Western Show, featuring that hot, country star Ronnie McDowell. We anticipate a really big crowd for this event, which will take place Memorial Day weekend May 23. See you there!

Well, that about wraps up our present news. As always, thank you for your continued support, as we do our best to serve you and this community.

Social Security News

Q. I was told at the social security office that I need to earn two more quarters of coverage before I can qualify for social security. How much will I have to earn?

A. In 1981, you will get one quarter of coverage for each $310 you earn for the year, but no more than four quarters can be earned in a year.

Q. My father was severely injured in an accident and may have to be in the hospital for several months. I want him to apply for disability benefits but he cannot go to the social security office. Can I apply for him?

A. Unless your father is unable to do so, he should file his own application. If he is unable to visit a social security office, he can either apply by telephone or request that a social security representative visit him in the hospital If he is unable to do either right away, you can notify social security that he intends to file a claim; then, when he does file (if within 6 months), his application will be treated as if it had been filed at the time of your notice

Q. I am almost 66 years old, but I have never gotten around to applying for social security retirement benefits. If I apply now, can I get benefits back to when I was 65?

A. Beginning March 1, you can receive retirement benefits for only up to 6 months before the month you apply. If you had filed your application before March 1, you could have been paid for up to 12 months before the month you filed as long as you met all the eligibility requirements for social security benefits

Q. I get SSI and I keep track of any money I make to tell social security. Should I tell social security about the income tax refund I just got?

A As long as you were eligible for SSI the month before you got the refund, you do not have to tell social security about the income tax refund because it is not counted as income

Q. My wife and I get SSI. Do I have to tell social security that our daughter is moving in with us?

A Yes, you should notify social security any time there is a change in your household

Q. I need an expensive new hearing aid. Will Medicare help pay for it?

A. No, medical insurance does not cover the costs of purchasing a hearing aid.

Q. When I reached age 65, I applied for social security benefits just to get Medicare. I make too much money to get any benefits, but I was told that my benefits would be figured as if I were receiving benefits. Now I understand it is possible to get Medicare only. Can I change my application?

A. Yes, you can withdraw your application for benefits and still keep your Medicare protection.

Q. I have been getting social security benefits ever since my husband died because I am caring for our disabled daughter. Now I am sick too. Can I get Medicare?

A. You will certainly qualify for Medicare when you are 65 but you may qualify sooner if you are 50 or over and you have a disability which lasts for 24 months. For more information, you should contact a social security office.

Q. I just applied for Medicare. How long will it be before I get my Medicare card?

A. If you meet all the requirements and your application is approved, it will be at least 6 weeks before you receive your health insurance card.

Q. How much money will I be allowed to earn in 1981 without losing any social security benefits?

A. If you are under age 65, you will be allowed to earn $4,080 before social security withholds any benefits. If you are 65 or older, you may earn $5,500 before any withholding. There is no limit on the amount you can earn if you are 72 or older

Mike Crumley started on the mound for Jonesville, but was knocked out after ⅔ of an inning. Oaks relieved him and went the next four innings, before Jeff Crumley came on to pitch the final 2⅓ innings. Oaks was the winning pitcher, with Jeff Crumley getting a save. Jeff Seabolt started for Flatwoods and left after only ⅔ of an inning, and was relieved by Darrell Vanhuss who went the next 6⅓ innings to finish up. Vanhuss was charged with the loss in relief.

There was a total of 24 walks in the game with the winners getting 14 and the losers 10.

Pennington Edges Cumberland, Ky. 3-2

In the Pennington Bobcats season opener, last Thursday evening, on the winners field, the Bobcats defeated Cumberland Kentucky by the score of 3 2

Pennington head coach Jack Rasnic started Gary Collier on the mound Collier gave up a leadoff single to start the game, but quickly fanned the next two men, and got the third out of the first inning on a ground ball to third base In the bottom half of the inning, with two outs Jerome Dean worked the court to three strikes and two balls He then fouled off the next pitch On the next pitch Dean drove the ball over the fence in right field, to give his team a 1 0 lead

The score remained the same until the top of the fourth when Collier gave up a single and a walk He was then relieved by Gary Pendergraft who gave up a hit that plated the tying run The run was charged to the starter Collier

The game then went to the seventh inning tied at 1 1 Cumberland jumped on top as left fielder Marshall led off the inning with a home run, that cleared the fence in center field

In the bottom of the inning with Cumberland leading 2 1, Mike Jones led off with a double for Pennington He went to third on a passed ball Roger Byington then bunted safely down the third base line to tie the game at 2 2 The next batter was walked Byington on second base at this point promptly stole third He then scored the winning run when Gary Collier laid down a bunt that was fielded by Marshall playing first base, after he was replaced in left field Marshall, instead of trying to cut down the runner coming to the plate, fielded the ball cleanly, but turned and threw to the second baseman covering first for the out, with the game winning run crossing the plate

Gary Pendergraft who is being counted on heavily to carry a big load this season, got the win in relief, despite giving up the lead run in the seventh inning He is now 1 0 on the season

Jonesville Bulldogs Top Dryden 7 - 5

The Jonesville Bulldogs got their second win without a loss, on Monday afternoon of last week.

The game was played on the Bulldogs home field, and they quickly got on the scoreboard with the runs in the first inning. Big hits delivered in both the first and second innings were a booming triple by Joey Chadwell. Gary Oaks who went two for four at the plate, is on a tear in Jonesville first two games. He has six hits out of his first nine trips to the plate. He also scored three in the game, with one run scored coming via a walk.

Also in the game, Mike Crumley had two hits, including a double. He drove in three runs also.

Dryden, which was allowed no hits in their opening game of the season, did manage to get nine base hits off the Bulldog pitching staff. The Crusaders scored single runs in the third, fourth, and fifth innings, while putting two runs up in the sixth inning.

One bright spot in the game for both teams, was the fact that they played errorless baseball. Jonesville started Lambert, and also used Crumley and Oaks on the mound with Lambert getting the win Dryden started Greg Peters again, and he went the distance. He has now given up 19 runs in pitching complete games in both of Drydens first two games

Keokee's Three Pitchers Combine To Shut Out Dryden 12 - 0

The Keokee Mountaineers opened up their Cumberland district baseball schedule last Thursday, as they trounced the Dryden Crusaders 12 0 at Keokee

Coach Roger Morris started his veteran left hander Kip Phillips, who worked the first three innings Kevin Pennington relieved Phillips and went the next two and shut out Dryden in both frames and also didn't give up any hits His relief was Mickey Hubbard worked the last two, and completed the no hitter

In high school baseball, they only play seven innings, which amounts to a total of 21 outs per game for each side Of the 21 outs, the Keokee pitching staff recorded 15 strike outs

There was one home run hit in the game and that came from the bat of Tim McElyea This was the Mountaineers 30th straight regular season win They are a strong favorite to repeat as district champions, as they have just about everyone back from last years team.

Kip Phillips and Mickey Hubbard are the bread and butter on the pitching staff and have played together for the last three years. Both will be counted on this year to lead Keokee.

Dryden, under first year coach Pat Jervis, saw his team commit nine errors in the game. He started Greg Peters on the mound and let him go all the way Peters was rocked fairly hard, as he allowed at least one run in every inning. Although he only gave up seven hits, they were sandwiched around some walks that kept upping the score

Cumberland Kentucky's team has now came to Lee County for games against Keokee and Pennington, and each time, lost by a final score of 3 2, but this time, against Keokee it was two brothers coaching against each other

It was a pitchers duel until the fourth inning when Cumberland took a 1 0 lead via an error. The lead lasted only until Keokee tied it at 1 1 in the bottom of the fifth Cumberland got a hit in the top of the eighth, to drive home the lead run at 2 1, but was tied again in the bottom half at 2 2. It went to the 11th inning before Kevin Estep hit a long home run to win the game for Keokee.

Cumberland started Morris on the hill, followed by McLaquham, and Boggs. The winners sent five pitchers to the mound, including two brothers in Dwayne and Kip Phillips Dwayne was the winning pitcher

There was only seven hits in the game, with Keokee getting four of the seven. Both teams made three errors.

Cumberland's record is now 0-2, while Keokee is 2-0. The Mountaineers have won 31 straight regular season games without a loss

DMV Titles Fewer Vehicles

During January and February, the Division of Motor Vehicles titled 181,450 vehicles, or 12.7 percent fewer than in the same two-month period of 1980, according to Donald E. Williams, DMV commissioner.

New vehicle titling was down 20.8 percent, while used vehicles titled for the first time in Virginia, either by newcomers to the state or Virginia residents and dealers who bought vehicles out of state, declined 14 percent. Titles transferred on used vehicles were down 8.8 per cent compared to January and February 1980.

Last year, DMV titled 4.6 percent fewer vehicles than in 1979. The continuing slump in vehicle titling reflects the overall depressed state of the economy, noted Williams.

Revenues collected from the $7 per vehicle titling fee are used by the Department of Highways and Transportation to maintain and construct roads in Virginia.

Mrs. Charleen Bays and Mr. Jerry Spence

Head Start Workshops

On Friday, March 27, Mrs. Charleen Bays and Mr. Jerry Spence (pictured above) conducted workshops with the Lee County Head Start staff at the Ruritan Club building in Dryden. Mrs. Bays, a supervisor associated with Project Follow Through, helped the teaching staff develop math readiness activities for use in their classrooms. She provided dozens of sample math games and activities designed to develop young children's skills in perception, association, classification and seriation, skills children need to perfect before encountering mathematics. Teachers and Teacher Aides selected those activities most suited to their students' specific educational needs and made copies to use in their Head Start centers

During the afternoon, Mr Jerry Spence met with the staff to detail the history of child abuse and neglect prevention legislation on both the national and state levels. Mr. Spence, who works with the Lee County Department of Social Services, especially noted those parts of the Virginia State Code applying to child abuse which went into effect during the 1970's. He pointed out the rights of parents suspected of abusing or neglecting their children and emphasized the responsibilities of the community toward its younger members. After reviewing the content of the law, Mr. Spence outlined how local caseworkers implement child prevention procedures - from the receipt and evaluation of complaints to attempts to reform abusive or neglectful parents to the ultimate possibility of court action and adoption procedures. Wrapping up the session with a discussion period, Mr. Spence fielded questions on a wide range of social welfare topics related to child abuse.

The Head Start Project wishes to thank the members of the Dryden Ruritan Club for allowing us to use their facility for these workshops.

New Well "Looking Good"

MILLERS CHAPEL OIL - Oil from the most recently drilled well in the Millers Chapel community is admired by Ewing Bledsoe, Earl Bledsoe, Joe Edds and William Edds, pictured left to right. The oil was discovered at 1947 feet. At this time it is standing some 1,000 feet. Pumping was planned to get underway today.

Oil, that magic word that spells $38.00 per 42 gallon barrel, was once more the big word in the Millers Chapel community last Wednesday night as a new well was brought in.

This new well, located on the Marse Williams property, is jointly owned by Ewing Bledsoe, Wil liams, John Allen, Mildred Mise and Grace Cobb.

The well was drilled by Danny Moore and Joe Edds who have had con siderable experience in the search for oil here in Lee County. Mr. Robert Speers, known as the "Dean" of the oilmen here in Lee County is also involved in this effort.

First signs of the strike came Wednesday night, when the drill bit cut to a depth of 1947 feet. Since that time oil has risen 1,000 feet, according to Joe Edds.

Last Monday, prepara tions were underway to get a pump installed at the well, which would put it into production.

Based on previous wells drilled in this area and their production over the years, this one should be profitable But, as those who search for oil well known, "oil is where you find it."

Just across the valley and atop the hill to the south of this recent find, stands evidence of the possibilities. Here, in 1962 a well was drilled that has produced down through the years. Until October of 1978, according to Ewing Bledsoe, this old well had produced some 30 tanker

Mobile Agency Proposed To Serve Railroad Customers

The Lee County Board of Supervisors, the Town of Pennington Gap and a number of business places over the county have gone on record with the State Corporation Commission opposing the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Com pany's application to estab lish a mobile agency opera ting out of Loyall, Ken tucky to serve its agency stations of Appalachia, Norton, Ewing Rose Hill and Pennington Gap and the non agency station under their control, to retire the agency station buildings at Appalachia and Pennington and fore go replacing the agency station at Ewing Rose Hill.

The L&N is not pro posing to make any changes in the train ser vices as presently opera ted.

The application proposes to establish a mobile agency on a six day per week basis, based at Loyall, Kentucky The re quest also includes the retirement of the station buildings at Pennington and Appalachia

The applicant proposes to use a mobile van equip ped with a radio in order to maintain contact with the base station at Loyall and also to contact the trains serving the area encom passed by the mobile agency The mobile agent would travel from station to station over the pro posed route

A representative of the SCC offered an alternate proposal which would es tablish a mobile agency based within the territory between Ewing and Nor ton

The hearing revealed that in the period July 1, 1979 to June 30, 1980, the stations at Ewing Rose Hill, Pennington, Appa lachia and Norton com bined served 18 customers which involved 189 cars The combined agents pre pared 42 waybills on out bound traffic and retired 180 waybills of inbound traffic

Stuart M. Duffer, rail road operating specialist, State Corporation Com mission, who had studied the question had the fol lowing alternative propo sal to offer

He stated that The applicant's proposal will result in elimination of two agents and a part time agent which could be ac complished by establish ment of the mobile agency based within the territory between Ewing and Nor ton thereby eliminating the necessity of trans versing the 52 miles of mountainous territory, each day, between Loyall and Pennington

This, he said, would reduce the travel time by an approximately one and one half hours

County executive secre tary Odell Wilson, who attended the SCC hearing on behalf of Lee County is awaiting the decision of the Commission

The time of the radio rama will be from 1 p.m until 6 p.m.

Petition Filed To Request Referendum On County Government

A petition which has been circulated over the county for the past several months has been filed with the Circuit Court Clerk of Lee County

This petition asks the circuit court judge to order that a referendum be held on the following question.

"Do you approve the adoption by the county of the form of government which existed prior to the county board form, under which the board of super visors consists of one mem ber elected from each election district and no member elected at large?"

The petition further re quests that the regular election officials "to open the polls and take the sense of the qualified voters of the County on the question submitted as herein provided."

The petition, submitted by Ezra F. Cooper, Et al, citizens and qualified voters off the county of Lee, as filed in the clerk's office, and bearing numerous signatures, is well over one inch thick. The exact number of signa tures was not indicated

The clerk, occupied with court duties Monday, was not available to answer questions as to how the list of signatures would be confirmed as qualified voters of the county, if such a requirement is necessary

It was understood that an election is hoped for sometime this summer

The Senior Class of Jonesville High School will present the class play, "Joint Return", a comedy in three acts by Craig Sodaro, on Thursday and Friday evenings, April 9th and 10th, at 8:00 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

The play involves the misadventures of the Mc Kinney household in which Professor McKinney has developed a miracle plant food; his wife Agatha, who wants desperately to get into the local garden club, and daughter Claire, a college student who is bored with small town life Events become anything but boring when Claire accidentally causes a fake Income Tax return to be sent to the I.R.S., which of course brings the I.R.S agent Dexter Whipple down upon the McKinney family

Further problems arise when a reporter for a national scandal sheet of fers the professor a "cool million" dollars for the formula and a robber ar rives to take the money and the plant formula after

Circumstances leading up to the death of one St Charles man and the wounding of his brother in a shooting incident in a Pennington Gap tavern are still not clear, according to Lee County Sheriff's De partment Investigator Charles Janeway

Janeway said Monday, that a number of people present in the Southwest Grill in Pennington Gap, when the shooting took place are yet to be questioned He hopes that some of the questions, yet unanswered, will be re solved in the near future

He said that Roy Dan Maness, 25, of St. Charles was killed when struck by three bullets from a .380 caliber pistol allegedly fired by Raymond Lester, 41, of Dryden. Dan Maness', 20 year old brother, John Maness, of Pennington Gap, was also shot three times. Janeway said He is making satisfac tory progress in the Lee County Community Hos pital, according to Jane way

Janeway said that Les ter is an employee of Westmoreland Coal Co. and Maness was an em ployee of the T & T Darby Coal Co. located in the Benedict section of the St Charles area

Janeway indicated that some of the witnesses may have sensed "some little commotion" prior to the shooting The source of an injury located at the back of Lester's head had not been firmly determined, Janeway said He did say that witnesses told police that Lester had stood up and walked a few feet to where the brothers and a third man had been sitting and allegedly opened fire from about five feet away

TO BILLY RAY

I once knew a man, who was a very dear son,
He kept a smile on his face
And love within

He brought smiles to us all,
His family and his friends
He had a way with his voice
And the words he would say

His talent was great,
A rose by the way.
You'd always get a kick;
From the things he would say

He's not there anymore,
We miss him each day,
My one of three sons,
My favorite Billy Ray
Sadly Missed By
Mother and Step father
Hattie and Virgil Clem,
Brothers, Rondal and Robert Smith, Son, Nieces and Nephews

THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mr. Harold Jerrell of the Va. State Forest Service, Mr Walter Quinley and the Pennington Gap Fire Department, all the friends and neighbors of Big Hill who helped put out the fire on my property. Without their help it would have been a great loss to me.

Morley memorial UMW Present Easter Program

Mrs. Georgia Gibson gave a unique presentation of a Twentieth Century Emmaus Walk at a meeting of United Methodist Women held at Morley Church in Ewing on the afternoon of April second.

An attractive Worship Center provided background for the Biblical Story of the two who were joined by Jesus on their walk to Emmaus, which had ended in rejoicing at the knowledge that their companion was the Resurrected Christ.

This was vividly portrayed in Readings by Mrs. Elizabeth Breeding and the Rev. Bill Porter, and included an inspiring Meditation by the leader entitled You Never Know When It's Going To Be Easter, accompanied by soft background organ music, and closed with a vocal solo "Evening at Emmaus" by Mrs. Henry Campbell, and prayer by Rev. Porter.

The next part of the program consisted of the group going by twos for a walk on the Church Lawn as they conversed on the meaning of Easter, and looked for evidence of something to share upon their return.

Inside the Sanctuary, Mrs. Alta Harris prepared the elements for Holy Communion. Then, after the sharing period by those "walking to Emmaus" and music "Take Up Thy Cross" by Mrs. Campbell and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Smith, the Rev. Porter administered the Sacrament of Holy Communion, a beautiful Worshop Experience.

Mrs. Gibson also related other experiences of Easter being in the heart which prompts the "giving of a cup of water in His Name," and shared copies with each one of Thoughts for Each Day. The group sang in unison, "Lead Me To Calvary."

Miss Fern Jones, president of the Morley Unit of UMW, added her appreciation for a fine program and for all those in attendance, and after a brief business session, called on Mrs. Gibson for the closing prayer.

Those of the seventeen present not already mentioned were Mrs. Mae Mink, Mrs. Fannie Crumley, Mrs. Ann Fugate, Mrs. Eileen Gibson, Miss Jess Dean, Mrs. Flora Jones, and visitors, Miss Florence Bayless and Mrs. Viola Emmett of Rose Hill, and Mrs. Grace Gilley of Rio Vista, Ky., who has spent the week with Mrs. Eugene Jones and Fern.

United Methodist Women Of Morgan Memorial Meet

Fifteen members of Morgan Memorial United Methodist Women met in the family room of the church on the evening of April 2nd for an evening of inspiration and challenge.

Mrs. Georgia Hounshell, president, called on Nancy Gibson for the opening prayer, and conducted important business in an atmosphere of love and fellowship.

Mrs. Judy Hounshell, program leader, chose the Easter program, "A Twentieth Century Emmaus Walk" for presentation. Its purpose was that participants might identify with the first two who walked the lonely road to Emmaus and live again their experience as they encountered and recognized the risen and living Christ.

For the worship center Mrs. Hounshell arranged a table setting around which the eyes of the two had been opened, as they recognized Jesus as He broke the Bread. They remembered how their hearts burned within them as Jesus on the way had explained the Scriptures to them. They at once returned the seven miles to Jerusalem to share the Great News with the eleven Disciples and others about the Resurrection.

The program consisted of a Meditation read with background music by Mrs. Snyder Harris entitled, "You Never Know When It's Going to be Easter", Scripture read by Mrs. Ruth Gibson, and Responsive Reading by the Leader and the members divided into two groups facing each other, ending with the joyous news that The Lord Is Risen, Indeed!

This was followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Henry Campbell "An Evening at Emmaus" accompanied by Mrs. Oscar W. Smith, and prayer by the leader.

To live again and understand the despondency of those taking the first Emmaus walk when Jesus was thought to be dead, and to realize how today many things keep one from seeing Jesus and rejoicing at His Resurrection in one's own life a walk was taken through the Sanctuary of the Church remembering with gratitude the Resurrection.

A period of rejoicing through music followed. The songs, He Lives, and Christ Arose, were sung in unison, and the Hymn "Take Up Thy Cross" was rendered by Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. Oscar W. Smith, accompanied by Henrietta.

A poem "Resurrection" was read by Billie Lou Smith, and the meeting was closed by singing the Doxology in unison. Then all went by the Parsonage to sing "Happy Birthday" to the Rev. Wright.

His birthday gift from the church had been an old fashioned "pounding" on the preceding Sunday, March 29th.

In addition to nine members already mentioned, others present were Mrs. John Seale, Mrs. Ruth Wright, Mrs. Paul Poulston, Mrs. C.M. Lawson, Mrs. Charles Emmett, and Miss Mary Stickley.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

There are many notable and historical days to be remembered during the month of April.

Thomas Jefferson the third President of the United States was born on April 13, 1743, at his father's home "Shadwell" in what is known as Albemarle County.

At seventeen he entered college of William and Mary He read many books which taught him to love freedom and he studied all aspects of life and nature. His reading made him one of the most broadly educated leaders of his time.

On January 1, 1772 he married Martha Wiles Skelton of Charles City County, and they began their married life at "Monticello." Jefferson's home in his native Albemarle County

Jefferson was chosen in 1800 as the candidate for the Presidency and won the election. He was the first President to be inaugurated in Washington, the Capital City of the United States. He served eight years as president of U.S.

He was a man of many accomplishments and interest He was a great statesman He loved music and languages He liked to experiment with new plants and crops, and was also an inventor

He directed the founding of the University of Virginia in 1819

Thomas Jefferson wished to be remembered for greater achievements than public honors

So today we remember Thomas Jefferson as the Author of the Declaration of American Independence, of the Statue of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and the Father of the University of Virginia.

April is a beautiful month of Springtime. April 12, is Palm Sunday, which is the Sunday before Easter, commemorating Christ's entry into Jerusalem.

Now we had better get back to Keokee and the news of the week.

—Mrs. Keith Strevel and daughter, Janet and son, Chris of Strawberry Plains, Tn., were guests during the week end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James E. McDaniel.

Mrs. Strevel is the daughter of Mrs. McDaniel.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kennedy of Hot Springs, Ark. were visitors in Keokee last week. Sorry we missed seeing them when they stopped by the home of Iva Clarkston and I on Thursday. Thanks to the Kennedys for the nice gift, a beautiful rock from Hot Springs, Ark. which was left by the door. The rock contained crystal and quartz. My sister, Iva, who is very interested in rocks from different states was pleased to add it to her collection. We hope to see Mr and Mrs. Kennedy when they return to Keokee this summer

—A baby shower was given in honor of Mrs. Randy Hamm on Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Joe Rogers.

Games and contests were the diversion of the hour Mrs. Hamm was pleased with many nice gifts

At the conclusion of the party refreshments were served by co hostesses, Mrs. James Ramey, Mrs. Roy Flanary, and Mrs Hilda Craft

Mrs Cora Howard of Pennington Gap is a patient in the Lee County Community Hospital in Pennington Gap. As reported she suffered a stroke a few weeks ago.

Those from Keokee visiting Cora at the hospital were Mr. and Mrs. James E. McDaniel, and her niece, Mrs. Beulah Estep.

Also Cora's sister, Mrs. Lola Vance came from Melburn, Fla., and spent a few days. Lola has now returned to Florida.

—Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Darrell Wayne Williams, 13, of Exeter, Va., who died in the tragic apartment fire in Big Stone Gap, Va., recently.

He was the son of James Williams of Exeter, Va., the Williams family resided in Keokee many years before moving to Exeter. Darrell was a native of Keokee. His mother, Mrs. Nora Stidham Williams preceded him in death about two years ago.

Thoughts are with the family in the loss of their loved one.

A son, Bruce Williams flew in from Texas to be with his father, James Williams and other family members during their hour of sorrow.

—Sincere sympathy is also extended to the family of Henry Roberts, 33, who also died in the apartment house fire. Thoughts are with his family also in the loss of their loved one —Iva Clarkston and I visited our friend, Ruby Newton at Exeter, Va., one day recently. We were glad to know she is now getting along fine after having surgery. Ruby spent her younger days in Keokee and attended school here. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs Press Newton.

—Get well wishes to Richard Hazelwood of Exeter, Va., who is reported to be a patient in the Veterans Hospital at Mountain Home, Tn. He formerly resided in Keokee —Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Willard Elmer Payne of Keokee, Va., who passed away at age 65, at his home here on Sunday, March 29, after a long illness.

He was a lifelong resident of Keokee and had many friends in this area. He attended the Hoover Hill Freewill Baptist Church at Keokee, Rt. 1. He was a retired coal miner and member of U.M.W. Local 1405.

Willard who had a sunny personality was a friend to everyone and a good citizen will be greatly missed in our community.

Thoughts are with his family in the loss of their loved one.

On Thursday evening of last week, the Flatwoods Eagles got their first win of the season by rolling by Dryden 6 1

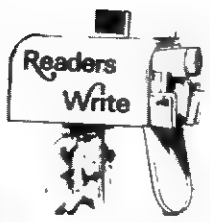
Renee's



Dear Sir:

Last October, at the request of friends, I initiated a drive to reinstate an early muzzleloader deer season. This would be a three day season for bucks only, and would not interfere with the longer late muzzleloader season.

At the outset, it appeared the Commission of Game was firmly opposed to a return to the early season. With the help of Charles Bryant, of Clintwood, Bob Bryant, Roanoke, Robert Huffman of Buena Vista, and others, we began to gain momentum, by writing letters and circulating petitions.

By the February meeting of the Commission of Game, we had nearly one thousand signatures on petitions. On February 19, Bob Bryant and Bob Huffman took our case before the Commission. I was unable to attend that meeting.

We have progressed to the point that the Commission has placed our request on their proposal list. The final vote on this matter will be made on May 1, by the Commission.

Now, anyone interested in the return of the early season should write to the Commission of Game. It is only necessary to say:

"Please let me go on record as favoring the early three day muzzle loader season for deer.

"I request each of the Commissioners be made aware of my feelings, and that this letter be present at the May Commission meeting."

Letters should be mailed directly to Mr. Richard H. Cross, Assistant Director, Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, Box 11104, Richmond, Virginia 23230.

You may, of course, express your reasons for wanting the early season, but the above will be sufficient.

Thank you.
Sincerely,
Bill Anderson

Dear Sir,

I am in the process of putting together a family history and some of my forefathers came from Jonesville and Wise County, Va. I would appreciate it very much if you would run the following letter in your paper in the hopes someone will have information concerning my great grandfather and beyond.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am in the process of establishing a family history of the Thomas Clan. I am especially interested in locating anyone with any knowledge of a John Thomas who was married to Mollie Breeding, lived in Wise County, Va and died sometime during the late summer or early fall of 1867. His wife moved to Roane County Tn soon after his death. If you have any information concerning either of the two or their families, please contact me at Route 2, Box 115, Telford, Tn 37690 or 615 257 6907. I would hope that all the Thomas and Breeding descendants would pull out their family Bibles and check for these names. Thanks ahead of time.

Thank you ahead of time for your assistance in this matter and I certainly hope that among your readers there are some who might have this information stored away and willing to share it with a "long, lost" relative. If it is at all possible, I would appreciate a clipping from your paper when you run this letter. Thanks again!

Yours truly,
Gerald W. Burns

Financial aid in the form of a grant was awarded the Jonesville Chapter after successful review of its application. Art Club

On Saturday, April 4, the Art Club went on an all day field trip to Gatlinburg, Tn. Included in the trip was a visit to Christus Gardens. The wax figures depicting the life of Christ were very realistic and truly a work of art.

The club members also toured Gatlinburg and visited various shops and amusement places.

The trip allowed the members to view many different types of art and each received a greater appreciation for art. The trip was a tremendous success. Both Art Club members and the chaperones had a great time. It was a trip that was both educational and fun.

Pennington Shells Flatwoods 10 - 5

The Bobcats met the Flatwoods Eagles on Tuesday afternoon of last week, in a district baseball game, and the Bobcats came out winners 10-5, to remain unbeaten.

Head coach Jack Rasnic sent Gary Pendergraft to the mound to start the game. Gary walked the leadoff man, and then gave up a single to right field. After striking out the next batter, another single brought home a run to make the score 1-0 Flatwoods. The Bobcats got three runs of their own in the bottom of the first inning, with Pendergraft, Ledbetter getting singles in the inning.

With Flatwoods leading 5 4, in the bottom of the fourth, the Bobcats got a single with one out. After the runner stole second, a base hit by Bobby Ledbetter tied the score at 5-5.

In the sixth inning with no outs the Bobcats put a runner on second, and Mike "Hoggie" Reynolds lined a hit to centerfield. The ball bounced over the centerfielder's head and rolled to the fence with the lead run scoring. Mike legged out a double on the play, but being a big man of his size, finally slowed him down enough that he was thrown out at third trying to stretch it into a triple.

Pennington put the game away in the sixth with four more runs, as walks and errors, coupled with a long homerun to right center by Ledbetter upped the score more.

The Bobcats got a route going performance from Pendergraft on the mound. He struck out 14 batters, and got three hits in four trips at bat. Ledbetter also had a three for four day at the plate, including a double and the homerun. Mike Reynolds had two hits, including the double that drove in a run. That was also the game winning run batted in.

Flatwoods started Seabolt on the mound, but he was relieved by Darrell Vanhuss, in the sixth who recorded the last out. Seabolt took the loss. The Eagles are now 0-2 on the year.

Pennington is 2-0 after the win. Gary Pendergraft has been the winning pitcher in both games so far this year.

It would sure help all the schools, and the players, if the area fan support would pick up more than it is now So lets all get out and support the local baseball teams as much or more as we do any other sport.

Keokee Mountaineers 10 Twin Springs 0

On Thursday of last week, Keokee shut out Twin Springs 10-0 for the Mountaineers fourth straight win of the year.

Roger Morris sent his star left hander to the mound in Kip Phillips. Phillips responded by throwing a complete game victory over the Titans.

This was the Titans opening game of the year. They stand 0-1 on the season and will host Flatwoods in a doubleheader tomorrow

Phillips, a fine looking left hander, fanned 14 batters while only allowing five base hits. Keokee got three hits from Jeff Collins.

This was the 33rd straight win in regular season play for Keokee who now stands 4-0 on the year.

The Mountaineers have one right handed pitcher in Mickey Hubbard, who has yet to start a game, but has saw action in relief. He is the shortstop when not pitching. You can bet Roger Morris will be calling on him before long.

Keokee will take their winning streak to Thomas Walker this Friday to face Ronald Skeens Pioneers.

Jonesville Senior Citizens News

Something for today
There is a secret I tell and tell
Christ is alive and He is well
You know the secret as well as I,
He died, they say, yet did not die.
He hid in our hearts, where treasured low,
He ever abides, wherever we go.

—Rev. Terry Williams, the new pastor of Friendship Baptist Church, was the guest minister at the Senior Center, Monday. He is from Etowah, Tn. which is 60 miles south of Knoxville. He spoke on "What are you looking for?" Three great decisions we make in life, as told by Rev. Williams, were: 1. Whom shall I marry? 2. What will I do with my life? 3. What will I do with Jesus? Rev. Williams was celebrating his birthday this day, March 30, and we joined in the celebration during the covered dish luncheon. It was a good hour of fellowship.

—Guests of Mrs. Golden Gilley last Thursday, were her sister, Mrs. Mae Dixon, and her niece, Mrs. Reba Yeary, both of Big Stone Gap.

Mrs. Jerushia Burchett, daughter Mrs. Georgia Roy, son Buddy Burchett, and Mary Lou Martin motored to Bean Station, Tn., Sunday, to visit Mrs. Burchett's sister in law, Mrs. Rosie Burchett.

—Mrs. Donna Martin underwent surgery in the Baptist Hospital, Knoxville, Tn. on Monday.

—Mrs. Cora Howard and Millard H. Robbins remain patients in Lee County Community Hospital after each had suffered a stroke. Our prayers are with them and their families in this time of crisis.

—Mrs. Lola Vance, Melbourne, Fla., who has been visiting the Cora Howard family, was dinner guest of Louise and Jim McDaniels of Keokee last Sunday.

—Mr. and Mrs. Ewing Mink of Savannah, Mo., and Rev. and Mrs. Donnie Mink of Gordon, Nebraska, were visiting with Eva Rush, Catherine Huggins, and Grace Davis, all of last week. They visited with Mrs. Sallie Wolver during the week.

We extend sympathy to the family of Mrs. Carson (Lou Ann) Vannoy of Lone Mountain, Tn. The funeral service was held Friday at the Campground Methodist Church with burial in the Millers Chapel Cemetery. She was the sister of Mrs. Sallie Woliver. Mr. Vannoy is a patient in Claibourne County Hospital, Tazewell, Tn.

—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Baumgardner made a business trip to Big Stone Gap, Friday.

—The Advisory Council on Aging for Mountain Empire Older Citizens held their regular meeting Friday, April 3, at Mountain Empire Community College, Big Stone Gap. Mrs. Mary Emily McKinney, president, called the meeting to order. Several items of old and new business were discussed by the council and staff members. Marilyn Pace and Nancy Jeffrey were on hand to give reports about the different programs for the elderly.

We are happy to welcome Mrs. Georgia Byington back home after spending the winter in Orangeburg, S.C. with her daughter Jean Lasley Ray, and family. Jean and Ray returned home with her for a few days.

The Woman's Missionary Union of Powell River Association met March 3 at Jonesville First Baptist Church. Baptist Women and Baptist Young Women, and some men, came from several churches in the Association for the morning and evening sessions. The theme for both meetings was, "Bloom Where You Are Planted."

—Miss Beulah Johnson was the leader of the 10:00 A.M. Session. Mrs. Betty Harless, WMU Director, introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Jean Teague, WMU Baptist Women, Baptist Young Women Virginia State Director, Richmond, Va. Mrs. Teague brought the Missionary Message. After the business was conducted, hymn singing, and special music by Mrs. Carlotta Bush, with Mrs. Reba Graham at the piano, the meeting ended with a covered dish noon meal.

—Mrs. Clara Fugate of St. Charles was the leader for the 7:00 P.M. Session. The Roll Call found several churches represented. Mrs. Betty Harless gave the Welcome Address. Mrs. Helen Bowlin and two members from Beacon Light Baptist Church gave an interesting skit entitled, "They Bloomed Where They Were Planted." Mrs. Harless introduced Mrs. Teague, the guest speaker. Mrs. Teague told about her life spent as a missionary on the Gaza Strip, and showed colored slides of Gaza and Jerusalem. The slides and information concerning them was very interesting. Mrs. Teague brought several items from Gaza for us to see. Among these were items of clothing, the prayer rug, Gaza Baptist Hymn Book, and musical instruments, flutes and a drum, and several other items. While in the Powell River Association area, Mrs. Teague is the house guest of Mrs. Betty Harless.

WHO WAS THAT LADY?

Born a slave just before the Civil War in 1859, this woman lived to be 105, dying in 1964. She was a scholar and a teacher throughout her life, and served as principal of the M Street School in the District of Columbia for many years. Insisting on a rigorous classical education for black children at a time when other black educators like Booker T. Washington felt that vocational training was sufficient, this woman was driven from her position as principal, but she continued to teach and to study. At the age of 65, she earned a doctorate degree from the Sorbonne in France. Who was that lady? — Anna Julia Cooper

Drs. Bob (left) and Stan Botts, new Pennington Optometrists.

Brothers Open Local Optometry Practice

Drs Bob and Stan Botts, optometrists have recent[ly] opened local practice in Pennington Gap in the building formerly occupied by Dr Whipple

The brothers share a family heritage with strong ties to the medical field their grandfather William M Botts, Sr an ear nose throat specialist in the Big Stone Gap and Appalachia area for more than 50 years

Their great uncle, Dr George Botts was also an ear nose throat physician a dentist and an optometrist in Norton and Pennington Gap Uncle Wilson Botts Jr was a physician in Jonesville and Big Stone Gap and his son Wilson Nick Botts, is a practicing dentist with Dr Tom Hayes in Jonesville

Their father, Stanley Botts Sr is an optician and professor at [illegible] College [illegible]

The brothers received their degrees from East Tennessee State University and then received professional training at the Michigan Southern College of Optometry

Experience was gained [illegible] worked in the externship program at New Orleans Optometric Center and at Cardinal Glennon St Louis Children's Hospital then returned to Southwest Virginia to begin their practice in Big Stone Gap

They opted to locate in Pennington Gap with the two alternating Office Hours are Monday Tuesday Thursday Friday in Pennington Gap

[illegible] appointments are suggested but walk-ins are welcomed

The practice has been expanded to include high fashioned frames, with at least 400 styles in stock to choose from

Examinations, which generally take about 30 to 45 minutes, include vision analysis (distance and close up), eye coordination and muscle balance, as well as checks for external and internal ocular health

A non contact tonometer allows the optometrists to make quick, painless checks for glaucoma by measuring the pressure within the eye

In the near future, additional equipment will allow for routine blood pressure checks often a clue to possible health problems

As a usual rule, the doctors do not have to use drops for any of the eye testing a feature of eye exams which many individuals dread. If they detect or suspect a specific problem beyond their realm of expertise they are most willing to refer patients to the appropriate specialist

Both brothers are members of the First Baptist Church of Big Stone Gap, with Bob serving as choir director and Stan singing in the choir Both are active in the Big Stone Gap Kiwanis Club

The Drs Botts are both active in the local optometric association and Stan serves as vice president Both serve on an education committee of the state optometric association

Ewing Bledsoe recalls that in 1962 a 42 gallon barrel of oil sold for $2 89

The energy situation has changed the picture, making the search for oil more attractive today

According to Ewing Bledsoe, plans are already underway to drill several more wells in this immediate vicinity. One or more sites have already been chosen, he said.

Arrangements for an appointment can be made by calling one of the above listed numbers during regular office hours. Fees for services are based on one's ability to pay

Varney, director of Holston Mental Health Center, pointed out several advantages associated with this development Reduced operating costs, particularly administrative expenses as well as sharing the cost of their more expensive services, is just one of these advantages

The sharing of staff, particularly the more highly trained persons such as physicians should also be of mutual benefit In a time when public funds are becoming more scarce coordination efforts like this will become more common place

Black Lung

transferred to District of fices

Wallace Robinson Manager of the Charleston District of the Black Lung Division was the meeting's featured speaker He said that he had been notified that his division would be receiving about 2 500 additional claims from Washington However he pointed out that he had gotten no indication that he would be allotted additional staff to deal with the claims and was, in fact, fighting to retain the staff he now had.

In other remarks Robinson said that since the publication in March 1980 of permanent regulations for awarding Black Lung Benefits, the rate of denials had increased. He also said that regulations governing benefits for persons involved in the transportation of coal had been clarified. Persons who transported coal between the mine or the processing plant to the consumer are not considered to have worked in or around a coal mine and will not be eligible for benefits. This regulation will eliminate most railroad workers.

Bailey urged Black Lung Association members and others present to contact Congress and the Secretary of Labor about the need to avoid cuts in the Black Lung Program and the need to maintain an adequate staff in the Black Lung Division.

Job Hunting Tips To Remember

The most important thing to remember when job hunting is to know the job you want " That was the message to a group of Pennington High School students from representatives of the Virginia Employment Commission recently.

Members of Carol Mullins' English classes, along with other business and sociology students, received information on job seeking from Doris Young and Lee Mumpower from the VEC in Norton. The importance of career goals, completing an application correctly, and being prepared for an interview were among the topics discussed. Also mentioned were services available from the Employment Commission, such as free employment services, and future labor trends

The Pennington Gap office is located in the Municipal Building on East Wilow Road, with office hours from 8:15 AM to 4:00 PM Members of the Employment Commission are available for presentations to schools and civic groups. For more information, call Gary Hale, Norton office manager, at 679 1957.

The first pastor to be elected was C.B. Gray, whose salary was $25.00 a year.

John Vanhuss was elected as treasurer in 1904 this being the first one and later in 1906 he became the first ordained minister of the gospel.

The first deacon board appointed in January 1908. Those appointed were Caliph Seale, William Cunningham, Eli Davis, chairman and John Vanhuss secretary.

The church continued on in its work, and in 1908 the church voted to build a new church building. Eli and Nancy Davis deeded the land to the church so a new building could be erected.

On September 4, 1908 a motion was made that the pastor go ahead with the work of completing the church and raise money to buy the dressed lumber and have the work done. The church was to rally around the committee and pastor to assume the deficit.

In 1909 a motion was made that we as a sister church grant the privilege to Vanhuss Grove Baptist to organize a church at that place.

During E.C. Nicely's term of service, Silver Leaf organized its first Training Union known then as B.Y.P.U.

E.H. Testerman moved into the field with a great vision of expansion. In August, 1948 at a Wednesday night prayer service plans were laid for the building of a brick building at an estimate of from $8,000-$10,000.

Following the meeting Brothers Testerman, Rufus Jaynes, Charlie Sutton, and Lynn Williams turned the first dirt for the basement of the church. All of the digging of the basement, all of the unskilled work and much of the hauling was given free. Much work was done at night by men who had worked on regular jobs throughout the day. The church was completed with the Sunday School classrooms in the basement.

The church was dedicated in October 1949. Brother D.M. Aldridge preached the dedication sermon, and Brother Earl Hopsin held the first revival in the new church.

When the church was completed it had actually cost $11,000 beside the donated time and materials.

In the last week of June 1951, the church purchased new pews and pulpit furniture which cost $1500.

Under the leadership of E.H. Testerman the church grew and organized the Royal Ambassadors and Y.W.A. Organizations for the young people of the church. These had been organized years before but had been discontinued.

The years 1949 and 1950 were good years for the Silver Leaf WMU. Their organization was the only one that met the Standard of Excellence. During these two years the Girl's Auxiliary, the Royal Ambassadors and the UWA's won the Stewardship contest in Powell River Association.

During the year 1972 the church called Marion Both of of Belgrade, Minnesota as pastor. The church felt the need for some additional Sunday School rooms, a new kitchen and a baptistry. The building was finished with twelve Sunday School rooms, a fellowship hall, a new kitchen, and a new baptistry. A new roof was placed on the church, the church was carpeted and a new piano was purchased for the church.

Every pastor of the church had dreamed of a bus ministry for the church. However, this was not realized until Brother Ronnie Owens became the pastor. Two buses and a van were purchased. Approximately seventy-five to one hundred people could attend church then because they had transportation Many of these transported were saved. Brothers Hubert Clouse and Murriel Gibbons were chosen as the drivers.

In 1981 Brother Alonzo Dixon from Mousie, Ky was called as the pastor, he was ordained March 15 at the Silver Leaf Church. Rev. Tommy Holtzclaw preached the charge. Bro. Holtzclaw is an instructor in Clear Creek Preacher's School.

The present membership of the church is 129 resident members and 110 non-resident members.

Each pastor has made a contribution to the church. Six men have been called into the ministry from the church and one of the pastors is serving as a missionary in Bahia, Brazil. He and his wife have served in Brazil for fourteen years.

Activewear

Sportswear or active wear is the keynote for the new spring fashions for men and boys.

Activewear influences remain a strong theme with blousier, draped shirts, coupled with sharpened detailing in casual bottoms, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in clothing and textiles, Mary Helen Marshall.

The casual play pants are designed for active life with fully elastic waist and side or back elastic waist treatments creating a distinctive look.

Silhouettes in casual pants remain predominately straight, although some what fuller in some cases, said Miss Marshall who is a member of the faculty of Virginia Tech's College of Home Economics.

Lightweight sweaters, in cottons, cotton blends in light acrylics, are taking on more importance in young men's fashions. They will be available in a variety of styling treatments.

Short sleeve rayon shirts and basic western styling will play a more important role in the woven shirt market for spring the specialist said.

A popular look will be safari and bush jackets which have elasticized waists and novel zipper treatments.

Blazers will set the pace in sports coats with a variety of models including single breasted with button through square patch pockets, double breasted with plain patch pockets, and a classic hopsack blazer with flapped patch pockets.

The jackets are freely paired with casual slacks and a variety of shirts and sweaters for increased wardrobe flexibility.

County Auto Decal Closer To Reality

The Lee County Board of Supervisors in their regular monthly meeting April 8 voted four to two to publish as required by law an ordinance calling for the adoption of a county auto decal which could only be purchased upon verification of payment of personal property taxes.

The ordinance further states that payment of such personal property taxes must be paid up for the past five years before a sticker will be issued. Decals would cost $5 per owner for the first vehicle and $1 for each additional vehicle.

The motion also included rescinding an earlier resolution calling for a referendum prior to adopting such a decal ordinance.

Voting yes for the decal motion were Supervisors, Tevis Wilder, Sammy Massingill, Bill Thomas and Roy Lucas; voting no were D. J. Barker and Frank Freeman. Chairman Bascom Waddell abstained.

During the course of the meeting, Board members were presented a petition with about 200 signatures requesting that supervisors not pay the remaining balance for the recent real estate assessment to Carl Stallard and associates and demand that Stallard return any money already paid to him.

Chairman Waddell pointed out deadline problems and the fact that the reassessment process is not complete in that individuals can air their complaints to the Board of Equalization which will begin hearings on April 27. Members of the Board of Equalization are Carl Evans, Walter Jenkins and Pat Fortner.

Big Stone Gap lawyer and attorney for a local taxpayers group plans to file suit in Lee County Court in attempt to have the reassessment declared illegal.

In other action, the Board voted:

To amend the ordinance for tax relief for the elderly increasing net income from $8,000 to $10,000 and increasing financial worth from $15,000 to $25,000 excluding house and lot.

To retain a law firm to collect back real estate taxes. It was discussed that Joe Wolfe would be willing to contact the Lee County Bar Association to see if they were interested and if not supervisors would likely request Wolfe to undertake the job.

To approve $2,000 in supplemental appropriations for adult education and $96,000 for fixed charges, and $150,000 from the County's General Fund to the School Operational Fund by May 1981.

Set the stipend for members of the Board of Equalization at $60 a day.

To support the Virginia Association of Counties in Charlottesville.

Heard request by John Sturgill to pave Industrial Park Drive leading to Sturgill Funeral Home in Rose Hill

Voted that County Administrator Odell Wilson make proper publishment and posting to abandon a 600 foot section of State Route 634 in St. Charles near the new coal-washing plant

Voted to allow the Lee County Housing Authority to pay 10 percent of rent in lieu of taxes for a proposed 53 apartment complex for the elderly in Jonesville

Authorities Arrest 5 For Robbery

Sheriff R.V. Chadwell reports the weekend arrests of Daryll Lee Newton, 18, of St. Charles, and Jimmy Dean Taylor, 18, also of St. Charles for the recent robbery of Lilly Parks at her St. Charles residence.

Approximately $4,500 was stolen in the robbery which occurred about 8:30 p.m. on April 5.

Three juveniles were also arrested in connection with the robbery, Chadwell said.

Arresting officers were Janeway, Radcliffe and Elkins.

Local health director, Dr. G.C. Honeycutt, Jr., presents Mrs. Naomi Napier, of Big Hill, with a framed certificate commemorating her many years of service as a midwife in Lee County. Mrs. Napier has delivered 1,565 babies in 38 years of midwifing.

Local Midwife Retires After 38 Years Of Service

After 38 years of bringing 1,565 babies into this world, Naomi Napier, of Big Hill, has retired as Lee County's only remaining midwife.

Mrs. Napier was honored at a special retirement ceremony last week by the Lee County Health Department where Dr. G.C. Honeycutt, Jr. director, presented her with a framed certificate acknowledging her many years of service.

Actually Mrs. Napier turned in her license on March 11 due to health problems and recalled "it was just like sticking a knife through my heart to give it up."

Midwifing became her chosen occupation when she was about 21, learning the proper techniques and procedures by going around with local doctors to deliver babies.

In 1957, she applied and received her midwifing license through the State Department of Health

A Different 'Set Of Wheels'

By Diane Herndon

To the very small child, a bright, shiny penny is a treasure.

To the teenage driver who has just gotten his first "set of wheels," nothing could be more valuable than that polished heap of chrome and metal.

To 14-year old George Smith, his most prized possession is a brand, spanking-new, electric wheel chair. You see, George has muscular dystrophy and that wheel chair means the difference between mobility and being virtually bedfast.

Muscular dystrophy is a progressive disease usually attacking the body's appendages first - the feet, legs, arms and hands.

George, who was diagnosed with the disease when he was six, has gradually lost muscle coordination in his feet and legs and now his arms making it difficult to maneuver in the conventional manual wheel chair.

According to his teacher at the Flatwoods Regional Child Development Center, Mrs. Ada Fee, and her aide, Mrs. Pat Sexton, the new wheel chair has made all the difference in the world in George's attitude and outlook.

Prior to the February arrival of the chair, George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Smith, had virtually lost all interest in attending classes at Flatwoods as it was so difficult for him to maneuver about, always having to ask someone for help.

His mother, Mrs. Mary Smith, said he became content just to stay in bed most of the day and watch television.

Not so anymore. If anything, now his mom has a hard time keeping him out of the chair occasionally so he doesn't develop pressure sores.

George can go just about anywhere he pleases in his chair at school or around the family farm near Ewing. And it's quite apparent from his sunburned arms and face that he's been enjoying the warm spring weather kept company by the family pet duck, Dandelion, who has a penchant for pinching, and a baby pig whose being bottle fed by George's mother.

When asked what he thought about his new chair, George, sporting a blue denim cowboy hat, gave a grin and said, "I think it's neat."

As boys are prone to do, George has souped up his

Legal Aid Center Opens Doors

Low income residents of Lee County now have an opportunity to receive free legal services with the recent opening of Client Centered Legal Services of Southwest Virginia. Local offices are in the Lee Insurance Agency Building in Pennington Gap.

Staffed by two "paralegals," Elizabeth Munsey and Carol Johnson, both of Pennington Gap, Client Centered Legal Services deals only in civil cases such as domestic abuse, public benefits, schools, housing, consumer protection, consumer problems with health care, and civil rights. The agency handles no criminal nor fee-generating cases.

Federal funding which is under fire by the Reagan budget cuts is channeled through to the various local legal aid offices from the parent agency, the Legal Aide Corporation in Washington, D.C.

Legal aid offices have recently also been opened similar to the one in Pennington Gap in Wise, Scott, Russell, Buchanan, and Dickenson Counties and the City of Norton.

Local paralegals have a strong working relationship with the Southwest district headquarters staff in Castlewood, making daily phone reports concerning local caseloads.

Personnel at Castlewood, including nine attorneys on retainer, offer the final determination as to whether a case will be handled or not.

Munsey and Johnson will handle all client intake interviews which are the first step in determining eligibility according to specific income guidelines. Their jobs as paralegals also includes research of the cases accepted working closely with the client prior to court proceedings.

The establishment of the local legal aid agency came about as a result of a task force and needs assessment survey initiated about two years back. Various public meetings were held throughout the county to get citizen input and evaluate priorities and needs.

A countywide advisory board further keeps a pulse on local citizen response, consisting currently of Charles Bledsoe, Del Willink, Curtis Smith, president, Robert Herbison, secretary, and Madeline Carroll. There are two vacancies at present on the Council.

The legal aid office, which opened about two weeks ago, has received quite a few inquiries already, according to Munsey.

Another important aspect of Munsey's and Johnson's work as paralegals includes community education such as speaking to civic clubs or senior citizens groups on various wheels by buying a siren which sounds as he rolls along.

The motorized chair which is charged by a heavy-duty battery in the rear costs approximately $3,000 of which $800 was donated by generous local businessmen and professionals in Lee County.

The balance was paid by the Southwest Virginia Chapter of the Muscular Distrophy Association (MDA) in Roanoke.

The Smiths are quite grateful to MDA for all the help that they have given their son through the years by buying manual wheel chairs, a hospital bed and table and other supplies.

"Individuals who give to MDA should rest assured that their money does go to good usage," she said, citing her own personal experiences.

"They're a wonderful organization."

And judging from the grin on George's face as he rolled about the yard, he'd be the first to agree.

Easter

As Easter draws near consider anew the significance of Jesus' death upon the cross. When Jesus said, "It is finished," He meant he completed the work or mission that his Father ("God") had sent him here on earth to do. He knew that the final obstacle had been overcome and the last enemy had been destroyed. By his death and resurrection, Jesus Christ completed the task for man's redemption. He removed the barrier between God and man.

Midwife

"However, licenses are no longer granted for midwives in Virginia," she pointed out, so fewer and fewer midwives are around.

When she first began her career, there were several midwives in Lee County, but upon her retirement, none remain.

She delivered her last baby, Ennis Lee Freeman, on February 13, 1981.

Mrs. Napier, who turned 66 in January, said in all her years of experience, only five babies had died - quite a remarkable record all things considered.

Deliveries might last from two hours or all through the day and night. "Most babies, by nature, seem to be born at night," she said, "and most decide to come when it's the heaviest snow on the ground or the roughest weather."

Twins have been among her deliveries and often she has brought several children from the same family into the world - so much are her services preferred and appreciated.

Women who choose to deliver by a midwife say they prefer this method instead of going to a hospital and paying the terrific cost of health care. Mrs. Napier charged about $150 per delivery.

What was Mrs. Napier's favorite part about midwifing? "Getting to love all the babies, especially when I dressed them," she said.

"I appreciated my work and hated to give it up," she said, "but my health just wouldn't take it on."

Likewise, many an expectant mother will miss her faithful services and cheerful manner, while many a namesake bears testimony of her outstanding story of success.

The regular Lee County Singing Convention will be held at Valley View Church in Dryden, April 18th at 7:30 p.m. Everyone welcome.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Bobby Dingus who passed away April 19, 1978

The blow was sudden, the shock severe, to part with you, we loved so dear

We often sit and think of you, the things you use to say and do.

What would we give to see you smile, to sit and talk with you awhile

We miss you, oh our hearts do ache, but we know God makes no mistakes

Sadly missed by,
Nancy and Robin

In loving memory of Ed (Fred) Ball, who would have been 27 on April 14.

The ways of God are strange
At times we question such,
To ask in sorrow why he takes the ones we love so much?
But then, perhaps in Fred's case
God seeks a better life;
Within his kingdom filled with love and free of pain and strife.
So Lord, please take our Fred and hold him close to you,
That he may smile with angel's amongst the chosen few.

Greatly missed by,
Nert, Mom, Dad and Family

PARABLE OF JESUS

Then answered the Jews and said unto him, What sign showest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things?

Jesus answered and said unto them, Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.

Then said the Jews, Forty and six years was this temple in building, and will thou rear it up in three days?

But he spake of the temple of his body.

When therefore he was risen from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this unto them; and they believed the Scripture, and the word which Jesus had said.

Scout Show

April 4, 1981, was the Annual District Scout Show. Using the theme "Indian Jewelry", the Cub Scouts demonstrated how to make jewelry from simple things such as macaroni, beans, bottle caps, tin cans, and paper

Each booth was judged on its own merit Pack 384 was proud to receive a blue ribbon and also tied for first place with 97 points

The boys worked very hard during the show. Many people were on hand to see all the exhibits, including Congressman Bill Wampler. Our boys made him a necklace to wear and he gave a hand to a couple of them in hammering. All the boys enjoyed watching the District Pinewood Derby car race. The show was a big success.

Pack 384 of Jonesville wishes to thank all the leaders, parents, and boys for a job well done in fulfilling the Cub Scout Motto "Do Your Best."

Pennington High School Scholarship Program

Students at Pennington High School have been learning about scholarships this year. Periodically the guidance office prints a list of available scholarships and assists students with applications. Also during preregistration each student is advised to take the classes he/she needs to make him/her more competitive.

The process of applying for scholarships is time consuming but worthwhile. This process should involve both parents and students. If you begin planning early you can enhance your chances of receiving a scholarship. Parents can help by being aware of scholarship information and helping their children prepare for competition. There are several ways to prepare yourself to compete for scholarships. The first way is to take advanced level courses while in high school. Some of these courses are Algebra I and II, geometry, algebra and trigonometry, calculus, biology, Advanced Biology I and II, chemistry, physics, advanced typing, Advanced English, advanced physical education, sociology, journalism, and drama. Taking these courses shows that you are serious about your education and are willing to work. Scholarship committees will be looking for this type of course.

A second way to prepare yourself is to be involved in extra curricular activities Colleges are seeking well-rounded students who can balance their time. Since a scholarship is money for college, being a well rounded person becomes an important factor. A third characteristic you will be evaluated upon is citizenship or character. Having a high grade point average is of little or no good if you cheat to obtain it or can not control your temper. Keep this in mind and conduct yourself in such a way that someone would be glad to give you a good reference. Good references from people who know you well can carry a lot of weight Most scholarship applications ask for personal goals So a fourth way of helping yourself is to establish good personal goals. A student who knows what he wants to do and can show that he is a good investment will make a good impression

In order to receive a scholarship you must know its name, when to apply, where to apply, and how to apply. There are several ways of getting this information. Locally you need to check with the library, high school guidance office, civic organizations and large businesses. Another way of finding out about scholarships is to write to the colleges you are considering and ask for their scholarship list

Some scholarships are determined by financial need. Proof of this need will qualify you for some scholarships and enhance your chances of winning others. The number of children living at home and the number in college will help determine your need So be sure to include this information and make all your information as accurate as possible

Applying for scholarships is a process that can be profitable if you are willing to put the proper amount of time and effort into it. Begin early and help yourself to a better future

Last Friday evening on the Bobcat diamond, the Bobcats got their fifth straight win without a loss by scoring an impressive 14-2 win over the Rye Cove Eagles.

Gary Pendergraft, who is the heart of the Bobcat pitching staff, started the game on the mound and went the distance. He gave up two runs on six hits, while Pennington played errorless baseball.

The Bobcats who scored in every inning except the third, scored at least two runs in every inning, with the big inning being the first in which four runners crossed the plate.

Rye Cove, whose only win came against Jonesville, scored single runs in the fourth and sixth innings. They used Scott Bowen on the mound, relieved by Mike Bowen, with Joe Hutchins finishing on the mound. Scott Bowen took the loss

Gary Pendergraft who has a 4-0 won loss pitching record, is on a hitting tear of late, as he had four hits in four at bats. He drove in four runs and scored three himself. Gary Collier was two for three, with three runs scored. His big hit was a booming double which bounced one time in centerfield and hit the fence. Collier was cut down at third on the play trying to stretch it into a triple. Jerome Dean also had a two for three afternoon and scored three times.

The Bobcats will be out to stretch their win total tomorrow against Jonesville. Probable starting pitcher for Pennington will be Gary Pendergraft. Pendergraft looked awfully strong against Rye Cove.

The Bobcats will probably get their biggest challenge May 7th, when they travel to Keokee to play Roger Morris' Mountaineers, in a pair of games.

On Monday evening of this week, the Pennington Bobcats got their sixth straight win of the season, by coming from a 5-1 deficit, to beat Flatwoods 9-5.

Gary Collier got the nod from coach Jack Rasnic, as the starting pitcher. He went only two innings, giving up two runs in the first and three more in the second. He was pulled in favor of Mike Jones who went the last five innings to gain the win.

The Bobcats who scored their first run of the game in the first, got a run in the third, and fourth innings, and then got two runs in the fifth to tie the score at 5-5. Pennington then got three in the sixth and one in the seventh inning to make the final of 9-5

Flatwoods, who has now lost to the Bobcats twice this season, started Darrell Vanhuss, who went 5⅔ innings before being relieved by Jeff Seabolt who finished up. Both Seabolt and Vanhuss led Flatwoods with two hits apiece.

Leading the Bobcats in hitting was Gary Collier who had three hits in favor at bats. He got his first homerun of the year also. Gary Pendergraft also went two for four, including a triple

Jones, who pitched the last five innings raised his won loss record to 2-0 He didn't give up any hits in his work stint.

The Bobcats now 6-0 on the year will be at Jonesville tomorrow, while Flatwoods will be at Thomas Walker for a doubleheader.

The Lee County Rescue Squad

In 1959 a group of members from the Pennington Gap Volunteer Fire Department set out to start a Life Saving Crew for the county with two old Cadillac ambulances both donated and ran mostly emergencies as the local funeral homes did most of the transporting.

During the seventies the Squad saw a need for better and more up to date equipment and the need to get the members trained in a variety of special skills to enable them to better handle any type of emergency situation they might encounter.

A new ambulance, jaws of life (a extrication tool), a crash truck, and boats and motors were purchased by fund raising drives, the generous donations of the public and business people of the county and many long hours of volunteer time by the members.

As the county continued to grow, once again the squad had to set their goals higher to keep up with the forever changing pace of time and new methods of caring for the injured.

The squad has established a junior squad, a ladies auxiliary and the longed for goal of having a unit in the western end of the county. The Thomas Walker Unit of the Lee County Rescue Squad is now operating.

The non profit organization is made up of volunteers, most of them have full time jobs but still find time to help when a call comes in. The members are trained in CPR, first aid, EMT, defensive driving, vehicle extrication, and light and medium rescue standards to name a few of the skills.

The rescue squad is now taking on two more projects, the insulation of a modern communications system that will enable the members to respond to a call much faster and working toward the erection of a new rescue squad building to be located on Kentucky Avenue in Pennington Gap.

The Lee County Rescue Squad has a very close working relationship with the area hospitals, the Pennington Gap Police and Jonesville Sheriff's Department which do the dispatching for the squads.

The squad is ever grateful to the members of the Pennington Gap Volunteer Fire Department for starting the organization, to the businessmen and the public for their support of the Lee County Rescue Squad. And last but not least the many long hours of loyal dedicated service each member from the first president to the present who has given his time and effort to the squad.

May you never need us -- but if you do we will be here.

CVC Professor Certified As Metric System Specialist

Dr. William Hooper, professor of physics at Clinch Valley College, in Wise, Virginia has been designated a Certified Advanced Metrication Specialist by the U. S. Metric Association.

The certification program by the Association is a carefully monitored program for certifying two categories of metric specialist: Certified Metric Specialist (CMS) and Certified Advanced Metric Specialist (CAMS). It is under the direction of some of the nation's top metric experts, headed by the CMS Board chairman, Dr. F.H. Visscher of Lockheed Missile and Space Co., Sunnyvale, California. Dr. Visscher is Lockheed's metric coordinator and the metric advisory committee chairman. CMS and CAMS candidates are screened by an examining board headed by Dr. Gerald Hauson of the San Bernardino California Department of Weights and Measures.

The purpose of the program is to maintain professional standards in the field of metrication by providing metric experts with tangible evidence of their expertise in the field. To obtain certification, individuals must submit documentation of their proficiency in the use of the modernized metric system known as SI which the nations of the world have agreed to use. They must also submit proof of professional activity in the field of metrication over a five to seven year period. To certify that they have kept abreast of metric development, certificate holders must be recertified every three years.

Dr. Hooper has been involved with teaching and actively promoting the metric system since 1975 and has been using the metric system in his other teaching duties since he began teaching in 1959. He has attended numerous conferences and meetings on SI metrics and metric conversion and has published articles on SI usage in professional journals. He has spoken to many groups about metrication, from technical papers at professional meetings to informal talks in grade school classes.

Dr. Hooper teaches physics, astronomy, computer programming and metrics at Clinch Valley College where he has taught since 1959. State Awards Litter Grants; Lee, Pennington To Pool, $'s

Robert W. Slocum, Commissioner of Virginia's Division of Litter control, today announced that grants totaling $33,348 have been awarded to the counties of Scott, Lee, and Wise as well as the communities of Gate City, Pennington Gap, Norton, Wise and Big Stone Gap for local litter control activity.

The purpose of the grants program is to serve as a catalyst to new and expanded litter control activity at the local level. All of the state's cities, counties, and incorporated towns are eligible to receive grant funds.

Localities applying for 1981 grants are eligible to receive twice the amount of funding awarded in previous years. The Division of Litter Control is presently making a budget transition from a calendar year to the state's fiscal year. To accomplish this transition, the present grant period is being extended for one time only from 12 to 18 months. Localities awarded grants this year will receive two full years of funding for this 18 month grand period.

Lee County and Pennington Gap will combine their grant funds -totaling $8,689 to conduct a public speaking, essay and poster and bulletin board contest for young people. A litter cleanup contest will also be implemented for civic, woman's and garden clubs, youth groups, senior citizens and church groups. In addition, anti littering signs will be posted throughout the county and a roadside dump will be cleaned up.

Scott County will use $7 806 in grant funds to implement a citizen education and awareness program. Included in this program will be poster contests for the youth and cleanup projects. The county will hire a part-time litter control program coordinator to head-up the program.

$950 in grant funds will be used by Gate City to sponsor a fall litter cleanup day.

Wise County, the towns of Wise, Norton City, and Big Stone Gap will combine their grant funds--totaling $15,912--to conduct an area wide litter control program. The Wise County program is based upon the clean community systems approach to litter control developed by Keep America Beautiful, Inc. A clean community system program is a comprehensive year round litter control program.

The program concentrates on changing the attitudes of citizens toward littering, thereby drying up litter at its source and resulting in sustained litter reductions. The program emphasizes education, communications, improved technology, and litter law enforcement.

This year, the Wise Clean County Committee will continue to support the efforts of the litter law enforcement officers as well as conduct workshops for business people, distribute litter control information to the general public, and promote education programs within the schools.

In announcing the funding for these programs, Slocum states that his agency is seeing "A marked improvement in the quality of the local litter control programs being proposed and implemented. There is no doubt that the majority of communities now implementing programs have come to understand the important role of education in litter prevention. We're seeing fewer and fewer programs that revolve around litter cleanups alone, and more that incorporate plans for education and law enforcement."

The Division of Litter Control will be awarding $1,128,000 in grants to Virginia localities during the 1981 82 (18-month) grants program.

Tips On Toys

Helpful Hints for Fun, Safety and Economy

TOY TECHNOLOGY

They talk, they walk, they listen. They respond to touch and sound and continue to delight children of all ages everywhere. Happily, toys are as affected by technology as your new car.

According to the Toy Manufacturers of America, the introduction of electronics is only the beginning of many far-reaching changes that will affect the toy industry in the years ahead. Replacing the use of batteries in many toys will be solar power, using energy cells that never wear out.

With these new techniques, it is easy to see why such large numbers of toys are being bought year round. Whether it is with board games that teach and develop skills, or computer games that challenge and help us to think, toys and games are keeping pace with the advancing technology of the adult world.

Interest Rates Increased For 1981 - Crop, Storage Facility And Dryer Loans

Increases in loan rates to 14-½ percent for 1981-crop loans and farm storage facility and dryer loans, and other changes in the facility loan program were announced recently by a U.S. Department of Agriculture official.

Edward Hews, acting executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, said the increase affects all facility and dryer loans approved beginning April 1 and 1981 crop commodity loans. Further, he said, beginning next October, the interest rate on 1981 crop and facility loans made after today will carry a "floating" interest rate subject to adjustment each October 1 and April 1.

Previously, CCC had changed 11-½ percent on crop loans and 12-½ percent on facility and dryer loans.

The new interest rate and the variable adjustment procedure will not apply to 1980 crop loans and facility and dryer loans already in effect, Hews said.

Interest rates announced today are based on the cost to CCC of borrowing money from the U.S. treasury, Hews said. The change to a variable interest rate on outstanding loans will enable CCC to adjust rates in line with treasury borrowing costs, he said.

Hews also announced the following changes in the farm storage facility and dryer loan program:

An increase in the loan down payments from 15 percent to 25 percent.

Storage needs will be based on one year's production instead of two years'.

--All existing storage space will be considered in determining storage capacity. In the past, space already in use to store grain under the farmer owned grain reserve was not counted in figuring storage needs.

The maximum term of new loans will be five years; existing loans are for eight years.

The maximum amount a farmer may borrow or have outstanding under the program is reduced from $100,000 to $50,000.

Hews said the higher interest rate and the actions for making facility and dryer loans announced today are expected to result in a savings to the U.S. government of about $29 million for the balance of fiscal year 1981 and $145 million for fiscal year 1982.

County ASCS Offers Pre-Measurement Service

Premeasurement and other producer services are available from the Lee County ASCS Office to help farmers obtain accurate crop acreages.

At the request of the producer, ASCS will stake and measure acreages before crop planting time. To be certain of compliance, farmers are required to plant within the stakes when the land is measured. After planting, they are required to report their crop acreages to ASCS.

The service is offered at a minimum charge of $14.50. It includes measuring, referencing, and marking out fields with stakes prior to planting.

ASCS producer services include measuring total cropland, field or subdivisions to be planted and land areas for other purposes. Fees vary, based on the type of service rendered.

According to County ASC Committee Chairman, Roy J. Myers, with the importance of accurate acreage reports for corn, wheat, barley, Federal Crop Insurance reports and farm divisions, farmers should consider the benefits of measurement service.

The measured acreage is guaranteed and producers who take advantage of the service will avoid unnecessary worry about the loss of 1981 farm program benefits, "said Myers.

To request pre measurement service, call or visit the Lee County ASCS Office.

Veterans Administration

Q -- I am confined to a wheelchair and have been told I am probably eligible for a Veterans Administration clothing allowance. What is the clothing allowance?

A The clothing allowance is provided to veterans who must use a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance, including a wheelchair, as a result of a service connected disability. Currently, this annual allowance is $274.

Q -- I am now receiving social security and am covered by Medicare. Can I still maintain coverage under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veterans Administration?

A -- No. Any individual who is eligible for medical care under Medicare is not eligible for CHAMPVA benefits.

Q -- How much will the Veterans Administration reimburse the family of a deceased veteran who purchases a headstone in lieu of a government issued headstone?

A -- The VA currently pays $59 toward the cost of a non-government headstone for placement in any cemetery other than a national cemetery.

Q -- Can I change the beneficiary on my National Service Life Insurance in my last will and testament?

A -- No. An original designation can be made by last will and testament, but not a change. If you wish to change your beneficiary, contact the nearest VA office.

Fertilizing The Garden

Getting the garden ready in spring includes adding materials to improve the soil's fertility.

Organic matter is the most beneficial treatment for the improvement and maintenance of the soil, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture, Diane Relf, who listed some of its assets.

It loosens and improves the drainage and aeration of heavy clay soils while increasing the moisture holding ability of very light, sandy soils.

Organically rich soils warm up earlier in the spring and hold moisture longer in hot, dry weather. In addition to helping the soil structurally, high percentages of organic matter favor a build up of organisms which in turn help make available nutrients that were previously held in the soil in unusuable forms. The organic matter itself provides nitrogen and other nutrients as it decays

Fertilizer should be added to the soil in amounts based on recommendations from a soil test.

"Spread the fertilizer evenly over the garden area and work it deeply into the soil," said Ms. Relf who is a member of the faculty of Virginia Tech's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences. "It can be done at the same time the organic matter is added."

The ideal garden soil should have or be fortified to have about 60 pounds nitrogen, 120 pounds phosphorus, and 200 pounds potassium per acre.

For gardeners working with smaller areas or using containers, Ms. Relf recommended these proportions for mixing the soil.

Apply 25 pounds of 5 10 10 or 6 12 12 fertilizer per 1000 square feet, or two and a half pounds per 100 square feet; or one ounce or two tablespoons per bushel of soil.

Don't use a "weed and feed" type fertilizer in or near the garden. The weed killers will injure vegetables

Planting Strawberries

Strawberries are very efficient plants They can produce more fruit in a small space than almost any other berry crop

A 40 foot row, with 25 plants, should produce 25 or more quarts of berries the following spring, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture, Diane Relf

Strawberries are easy to raise on fertile, well-drained soil. They should be planted in the spring, several weeks before the average date of the last frost. Set the plants 18 inches apart, in rows four feet apart, the specialist said.

"The easiest way to set strawberry plants is to push a pointed shovel into the soil to the full depth of the blade. Pull the shovel to one side to make a V-shaped opening. Spread the roots of the plant like a fan and extend them to their full length along the exposed soil surface. Pull the shovel out and push the soil back against the roots," said Ms. Relf.

Be sure to have the crown of the plant level with the surrounding soil. If it is set too low, soil may wash over the crown during a rainstorm and smother the plant. If it is too high, the top part of the roots will be exposed and the plant will grow poorly.

The plants need a year before they are ready to produce fruit. Pick off any flowers that develop during the first summer so that the plant can use all of its food materials to form runners which will produce fruit next year.

A few weeks after planting, the strawberries will start to develop runners. If allowed to grow without interference, they will form a matted row two or three feet wide.

Or, the gardener can space them about six inches apart as they develop roots. After a band type row of plants evenly spaced about two feet apart has developed, all other runners should be removed as they form.

"The spaced row will produce somewhat larger and higher quality berries than the matted row," said the faculty member in Tech's college of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

Weeds and grasses must be controlled in the strawberry planting. Cultivate or hoe between the rows and pull weeds from between the plants. The cultivation must be very shallow to avoid damage to the roots of the strawberries.

After growing all summer, the strawberries will need to be mulched during the winter to reduce damage from freezing. Use clean straw or pine needles. Apply the mulch after the ground freezes in the fall when the plants have become hardened for the winter. That will be six weeks or more after the average date of the first fall frost.

Do not use a heavy mulch or material like leaves which would pack down and smother the plants, Ms. Relf said.

When the plants start to grow in the spring, about half the mulch should be removed from the plants and left between the rows. Inspect the plants under the mulch and when the center leaves start to grow, remove the mulch.

The plants will grow up through the light mulch left on rows. This mulch around the plants and the heavier layer between the rows, will keep the berries clean, conserve soil moisture, and help check weed growth.

Federal Crop All-Risk Tobacco Insurance Available

Are you worried about such perils as blue mold, drought, hail, and diseases damaging your 1981 tobacco crop? Over 500 Lee County burley tobacco producers have protected themselves against these and all other natural causes of loss to their crop by obtaining Federal Crop Insurance. The insurance is available at the Lee County ASCS Office.

Each policyholder is guaranteed a specific amount of dollars based upon his planted acreage and the pounds of tobacco he is going to try to produce. The premium rate is only $2.70 per each $100.00 of coverage and is not due until after the crop is sold.

Separate policies are required to protect the land owner's and tenant's share of a crop. However, family members living in the same household only need one contract.

In 1979 Lee County's tobacco crop was reduced by approximately one-third due to excessive moisture and blue mold. In 1980 drought damage caused the crop to be reduced by 20 percent.

"The ideal situation this year would be for everyone to have a good tobacco crop and Federal Crop Insurance not to pay any loss claims," said ASCS Director, Charles M. Ingram. However, the farmer who has Federal Crop Insurance is provided with a specific dollar guarantee on his crop as soon as it is planted. He knows that no matter what happens to the crop, he is going to recover at least his investment," Ingram added.

Farmers are encouraged to contact the ASCS office for more information.

Grandfather Mountains Highlanders To Perform At CVC

Each of the programs of song and dance to be offered at the CVC International Arts Festival on April 25 will feature Scottish dances and traditional music performed by the Grandfather Mountain Highlanders from Invershiel, North Carolina.

The Highlanders are scheduled for a morning performance at 10:30 a.m. and an afternoon performance at 3:05 p.m. The Grandfather Mountain Highlanders, with bag pipes, flutes and drums, perform for festivals throughout the Southeast, usually at competitions by Scottish bands, athletes and dancers. They are directed by Harvey Ritch, pipe major.

Competing with music from ten other bands, the Highlanders were named Southern Pipeband Champions in 1976. In July of each year they host their annual Grandfather Mountain Games in Linville, North Carolina.

The International Arts Festival, sponsored by the Clinch Valley College Humanities Division, will run from 10:00 a.m. until 10:00 p.m. Activities and demonstrations are free.

1978 Census of Virginia Agriculture Info Released

The preliminary results for the 1978 census have recently been issued for each Virginia county and the state. The data was primarily collected by mail

Forty percent, or 9.9 million, of Virginia's 26.1 million acres of land is in farms. Cropland accounts for 4.7 million or roughly half of the farmland, wood land, pasture and waste land account for the remaining half. Harvested cropland is 2.7 million acres or only 10 percent of Virginia's total land area and 27 percent of total farmland. Almost 40 per cent of Virginia's land suitable for cropping is used in a less intensive manner as pastureland

One-and-a-half million cattle and calves are raised on 33,521 Virginia farms. Beef cows are kept on 24,875 farms and milk cows on 7,892. Hogs and pigs are maintained on 11,623 farms and horses and ponies on 9,418. Chickens are raised on 8,410 farms and sheep on 2,271.

Hay is grown on more farms (55%) and occupies more cropland (34%) than any other crop. Corn for grain is harvested on 33% of Virginia's farms and occupies 23% of the cropland. Tobacco, the leading cash crop, is harvested on 29% of Virginia's farms but occupies only 3% of the cropland. Tobacco acreage per farm averages 6 acres.

Virginia has almost 1200 farmers that operate more than 1,000 acres and 6,000 farmers that operate fewer than ten acres. Three thousand farms have annual sales of $100,000 or more of farm products, whereas 18,000 sell less than $2,500.

The vast majority of Virginia's farms, some 88%, are organized on an individual or family basis. Partnerships account for 9%, family corporations account for 2% and non family corporations account for 0.1%

Yard Sale Planning Should Include Insurance Check

The growing popularity of yard sales in Virginia brings up a question often overlooked when planning a spring yard sale: are you properly insured?

A ruinous lawsuit could dispose of much more than unwanted items discovered in spring cleaning if the homeowner conducting the sale does not have the proper liability insurance coverage, the Insurance Information Institute points out.

It is unwise for the prospective yard merchant to assume that his homeowners policy will cover all losses and liability claims arising from any activity on his property. The facts surrounding the sale determine whether or not the homeowners policy provides liability coverage, according to the Institute.

In cases involving an occasional yard sale in which the policyholder sells his own property, the yard salesman generally can rely upon his homeowners policy for liability coverage since the policy extends liability coverage to situations which are related to normal, non business residential activities. The occasional yard sale is usually considered an activity related to home life and not to a business pursuit.

If the yard sale becomes a regular, profit-making activity, however, the homeowners policy would not apply. The individual in that case should purchase the necessary general liability insurance to cover a business pursuit. People who regularly make and sell craft items, for example, probably would not be covered under the homeowners policy.

Neighborhood yard sales may not be covered if the homeowner receives a substantial sum from the sale. If, however, the activity is for the benefit of a charity, and if the person conducting the sale receives no income, then the event may still be covered by the homeowners policy.

If a homeowner plans to host a profit-making sale for a particular organization, the best suggestion is to inquire about the liability coverage of the sponsoring organization. A church organization is likely to be covered under a policy held by the church while other groups may not have such a policy.

The liability coverage found in the homeowners policy does not apply at a flea market in which people rent a booth or lot on someone else's property to sell their wares. The Institute recommends that the liability coverage of the owner of the flea market be checked.

A good tip for anyone planning any type of yard sale, the Institute suggests, is to consult their insurance agent or company about insurance coverage. It's also a good idea to check with local authorities about licensing and tax laws.

Direct Deposit Easy To Arrange

It is easy for people who receive social security checks to arrange to have them deposited directly into an account in a financial organization, such as a commercial bank, savings bank, savings and loan association, Federal or State credit union, or similar organization, R.L. Kelly, social security manager in Norton, said recently.

All a person has to do to arrange for direct deposit is complete a direct deposit form SF 1199. The form is available at any financial organization. A monthly benefit check contains all the information needed to complete the form.

Completing the form only authorizes deposits into a person's account. Only that person, or someone authorized by that person, can make withdrawals.

Some advantages of direct deposit are:

No worry about a check being lost or stolen.

No need to be home when your check arrives.

Time and transportation costs are saved, and there's no standing in line to cash the check.

It is safer to keep money in an account than carrying a lot of cash.

A check book provides a written record of expenditures.

Increase Seen In Fertilizer Use

Improved economic conditions in the farming sector will undoubtedly mean increased fertilizer consumption, possibly boosting 1980/81 domestic fertilizer use to record levels, according to a recent report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Increased planted acreage will push nitrogen use 2 to 4 percent above the previous year's levels. Potash use will likely reach a record 6.4 million tons, up 1 percent, while use of phosphate could reach 5.6 million tons, a 3 percent increase. Total nutrient consumption is anticipated to reach 24 million tons, up about 4 percent from last season.

Although the outlook for increased fertilizer use in 1981 appears certain, USDA officials say a larger than expected increase in farm production costs, especially for fertilizer, or lower than expected improvements in farm commodity prices, could dampen gains in fertilizer application rates or cause smaller increases in planted acreage.

The report also forecasts an increase in fertilizer prices. "Farmers could pay from 8 to 12 percent more for fertilizer this spring than a year earlier," the report said.

Currently, farm prices for some fertilizer materials are below May 1980 levels and appear likely to remain below those levels for the rest of the year. However, supply adjustments are expected to increase prices.

Of all types of fertilizer, nitrogen could see the largest price rise between now and the spring. By May of this year, nitrogen prices could average 10 to 15 percent above a year earlier. Ammonia and urea prices will be up the most, the report stated.

The supply of fertilizer materials will range from adequate to plentiful.

Professor Takes Searching Look At Juvenile Justice System

The boy was a 15-year old high school dropout who was brought to juvenile court for making an obscene phone call to a neighborhood woman.

Exactly one week after he was picked up, the boy was taken to the State Industrial School to serve a six-year term. Had he been an adult, the offense would have gotten him at most a two-month sentence and a $50 fine.

The boy's name was Gerald Gault. In 1967, three years after his trial, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the decision against Gault, declaring that certain basic legal rights must be accorded juveniles accused in courts of law.

But the insurance of procedural rights for juveniles was only the first ripple in a wave of reformational trends still altering the juvenile justice system, says David Aday, assistant professor of sociology at the College of William and Mary.

"We've failed to make distinctions about the purposes we want to serve with our systems of juvenile justice," says Aday, who has done extensive research in the fields of criminology and juvenile justice. If our intention is to rehabilitate, to help people, I don't think we can tangle this up with punishing them. I think we can do both, but we can't mix them up."

Historically, rehabilitation and punishment have been intertwined since the first "medical model" of juvenile justice was created at the turn of the century. "The medical model approach treated crimes as symptomatic of the problems an individual child has," says Aday. "With this approach, status offenses, things like running away from home, drinking under age, and truancy, are approached in the same way as felony offenses."

"Under the medical model, we got some strange mixture of a court of law and social service agency," he continues. "This system was concerned with protecting the needs and interests of both the child and society, and tried to reconcile the two."

By the 1960s, many people doubted how well the needs and interests of children were being protected by a system where an individual judge, even if he were well meaning, was burdened with decisions about judgment, sentencing, and rehabilitation of an accused juvenile.

"People began raising questions about the legitimacy of the state intervening on behalf of a child," says Aday. "There was a growing sentiment among social scientists, judges and probation officers that juvenile courts might well be giving more of an appearance of concern for a child than actual beneficial help. The Gault decision was the turning point." After the Gault decision, social scientists began to question and chip away at the court's habit of calling everything it did "rehabilitative," says Aday.

Eventually, juvenile courts began moving toward a legal orientation and concern with due process, drawing a line between status offenses and more serious crimes.

But this shift in emphasis spotlighted the inability of courts to handle the tremendous load of juvenile cases that come in each day.

"In any jurisdiction, a judge can get through three or four cases a day if he goes through the procedural ritual," says Aday. But many jurisdictions have as many as 100 cases a day that need to be handled."

This burden of sheer volume of cases has shifted the emphasis of the juvenile justice system to probation officers and social case workers. Once merely considered arms of the court, they have moved toward more control over the disposition of juveniles in trouble.

"With the recent growth in professional training of probation officers, probation is pulling itself away from the court," says Aday, who worked for two years as a probation officer in Kansas.

"Probation officers have come to see a conflict of interest between being an agent of the court and being a counselor, and they have agitated for various kinds of structural changes. As a result, more status offenders are being dealt with by agencies outside the court.

But the relationship between the purposes of these agencies and those of the court is still a foggy one, he says. Sentences aimed at punishment and programs geared toward rehabilitation are still wound together, and the two do not mix, according to Aday.

"Whether kids are right or wrong, they perceive a lot of hypocrisy in the system," he says. "Most of what probation officers do is punitive, although they say their interest is the child's good. It's hard for them to mix up finding jobs and tutors with administering punishment or control."

Aday insists that concern for both the legal rights and the welfare of children must be shown by the juvenile justice system, but clear distinctions must be made between the two.

"I've been a probation officer and I've worked with kids," he says. "I know the kinds of problems they encounter, and these are problems that must be dealt with.

"But I'm also concerned with violation of law and protection of legal and procedural rights. Violation of law has to be treated as violation of law, with the rights of the individual (suspect and victim) protected and the provisions of the statutes enforced.

"The point is you can't do both at the same time."

Virginia Tech Biologist Still On Lookout For Cougars In Virginia

Cougars are making a comeback in Virginia, Donald Linzey predicted one year ago. Though Linzey, a research biologist at Virginia Tech, has not seen these large, brown animals, also known as "mountain lions," he still believes they exist and are roaming at least four areas of the commonwealth: near Blacksburg, in the Jefferson National Forest in Giles County, in Greene and Albermarle counties near Charlottesville, and in southwestern Virginia.

Supposedly the last cougar in Virginia was killed in Washington County in 1882, according to the book "Wild Mammals of Virginia." Linzey contends, however, that "since July 1970, there have been reports of 95 reliable sightings, 13 alone in the past year."

By "reliable sightings" Linzey means those he has investigated himself or those made by individuals familiar with the cat's characteristics. From these sightings he has obtained what he considers to be positive evidence.

"I have examined some tracks that appear to be from a cougar. I also have investigated deer kills and animal droppings that indicate cougars are present in this state," he said. However, the Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries, which has funded the research, and the National Park Service and the National Forest Service, want more positive evidence of the cougar's existence.

"Funds for this project ran out in June 1980. These state and federal personnel had been involved for two years without receiving what they considered to be clear cut evidence a photograpgh of the animal taken in an area that can be clearly identified as part of this state," Linzey said.

He hopes that a bill in the state legislature this session, designed to provide matching funds for research with non-game wildlife, will pass. In the meantime, when Linzey travels to the location of a sighting, he takes a camera with him.

A camera in the hands of one man in Charlottesville may have helped the biologist in his quest.

"I got a call from a man in Charlottesville who watched a cougar for five minutes. He called me about one hour later, which was ideal. Unfortunately, snow was predicted for that night. Since I couldn't make the drive up there, the man checked for cougar tracks. But the ground was frozen and there were too many cattle tracks in the way to make a good cast," he said.

Another man saw a cougar in an area a little closer to Linzey - about one half mile from his home in Elliett Valley, outside of Blacksburg.

"A man and his son spotted a cougar and watched it for about five minutes. But I didn't get the report until about two weeks later," said Linzey. "Apparently the man didn't know about my research interests, so he didn't call to make a report. One of my neighbors founds out and that's how I heard about it."

Despite the frustration involved and the increasing cost of traveling across the state to check out reports, Linzey cont nues his project.

"When I get a call, I grab my kit (which contains a camera and materials to make track casts), call my two boys, who like to come along, and jump in the car. We're going to see a cougar yet," Linzey said.

Jeannie Ingle Named Mental Health Chairperson

Miss Jeannie Ingle of Ocoonita was named Mental Health Chairperson for the May, 1981, campaign, announced Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor Warner, Honorary Chairperson of the Mental Health Association in Virginia.

As Chairperson, Miss Ingle will recruit volunteers who will go house to house during May.

"Proceeds will benefit the Mental Health Association in Virginia," said Mrs. Warner.

As a non governmental agency, the Association can and does speak for the consumer the person who needs professional help for an emotional disturbance.

"The Association is a moving force to get services established where there are none. It also serves as a monitoring agency to see that treatment services are doing what they were set up to do," Mrs. Warner further stated.

The Mental Health Association is a nationwide, voluntary, non governmental organization dedicated to the promotion of mental health, the prevention of mental illness, and the improved care and treatment of the mentally ill. Its 850 Chapters and Divisions, and more than one million citizen volunteers work toward these goals through a wide range of activities in education, volunteer services, social action and advocacy, and research.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

April 16, is Maundy Thursday which is the Thursday in the Holy Week before Easter.

Good Friday is on April 17, and it is the Friday before Easter. It is a Church fast held in the commemoration of the crucifixion of Christ. Easter is the Sunday after the full moon on or next after the vernal equinox. (March 21, in the Gregorian Calendar)

The Gregorian Calendar was first introduced by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582, and is now in general use.

Easter Sunday will be on April 19, this year, the Jewish Passover (first day) as listed on the calendar. Easter is a Sunday set apart in the ecclesiastical calendar for commemorating the resurrection of Christ

Easter is a day that is observed in the Churches with special sermons on Easter Sunday and the early Sunrise service which many people attend on that day.

The youngsters enjoy Easter egg hunts searching for the pretty colored eggs, and it is also fun to go on a picnic.

Some folks like to dress up in their new spring clothes and join the Easter parade. Now that the days are warmer it will be a good time to show their Easter finery. The early spring flowers are in bloom, the birds are singing in the trees, and everything seems to be coming to life again after the cold winter months.

"Enjoy a Happy Easter everyone!"

Thought for the Day

Life and love have the final word.

There's An Answer

By Norman Vincent Peale And Ruth Stafford Peale

Deserves To Feel Bad

Q. There are so many things that I have done in the past that disgust me now and that I wish I could take back. I know God has forgiven me and others have forgiven me. Friends and even a counselor told me that I have to learn to forgive myself, but they can't even suggest how I go about it. I've tried so hard, but it's like a battle going on inside. I feel as though I deserve to feel bad. How can I rid myself of this incredible guilt that goes back 34 years?

A. You will "deserve to feel bad" if you don't show some gratitude to God and to others who love you enough to forgive you. You have peace and joy offered you, but instead you sadistically flay yourself. Don't try so hard. Just let go and take the forgiveness offered you. Turn your back on the past -- toss away the guilt feelings and choose happiness.

We are sending you our booklet Try Faith and Watch What Happens which is free to any reader of this column. Write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Money Won't Buy Love

Q. I stood by my husband when he was an alcoholic, praying for him to quit drinking. He finally did. Hasn't touched it in 16 years. The problem is another woman. He told her on the phone that he loves her, but he says he doesn't want a divorce. We've been married 45 years, have a nice home. My husband is good to me and buys me anything I want. But money won't buy love, and it's his love I want. How do I get it?

A. You might go back in memory 45 years and beyond, and reconstruct how you got his love then. Be as lovable now, 45 years later, as you were then.

That he loves you more than anyone else is obvious for he does not want to let you go. Let him know how important he is to you and how much you love him. You can outsmart the other woman if you take a positive attitude.

Loves Both Of Them

Q. I am 16 and going with a 24 year old guy. We love each other. He is a respectable guy, and I am not just a silly teenager who has a crush. And it is not puppy love. I consider myself to be very mature for my age. Now the problem is, I'm also in love with a guy my own age. His parents had a grudge against me and made us break up and my whole world kind of collapsed. Then I started to date my present boyfriend. But I still love my ex-boyfriend. In fact, I love both of them, and it will not be easy to fall out of love with either one. Which one should I take?

A. If you are unable to decide which of two boys you love it suggests that you are not in love with either of them.

If you have to ask which one you really want, it means perhaps that you should wait for "the one" yet to come along. When that happens you will really know for sure.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale, write to them at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Urban Growth Seen Rapidly Changing Rural Life In U.S.

USDA Studies Impact

Population expansion in rural America is creating basic changes in the political, economic and social structures of communities and in the uses of rural land, natural resources and demands for services, says a U.S. Department of Agriculture sociologist.

"We have to try to understand the impact of this urbanization of the countryside and what to do about it," said David Brown of USDA's Science and Education Administration

Brown pointed out that the population rate is growing faster in rural areas than in cities but that it has taken years to convince people of this

"Now everyone is beginning to believe it," he said

The 1980 census showed a 15.4 percent population increase for rural and small town counties and a 9.1 percent increase for metropolitan and suburban areas, Brown said. All but 300 of the nation's non metropolitan counties are growing

For the past 50 years, Brown said, research in population distribution has been a valuable part of USDA's efforts to understand the problems, prospects and demands involved in the production of food and fiber.

Migration research studies are under way at the state agricultural experiment stations in the north central, north eastern and western regions of the country. The research has a long history in the federal-state cooperative system, which is made up of USDA, the land grant universities and the state agricultural experiment stations.

Demography is expanding as a discipline, Brown said.

"We started with a few scientists in the experiment stations. Now, there are several hundred social scientists using population data as part of their research These scientists are located not only in the land grant system but in other universities, federal agencies and private organizations as well."

Brown, who received a Ph.D in Sociology from the University of Wisconsin's Center for Demography, has written extensively on urban-rural demographic changes. During 1979, he served on the White House domestic policy staff providing information for rural policy. In 1980, he worked on the federally sponsored National Agricultural Lands Study.

Brown is continuing his research on the effects of urbanization on the use of agricultural land. He is coordinating regional migration research projects of the state agricultural experiment stations. Current research, he said, must evaluate the consequences as well as the causes of changing use of agricultural land.

SSA To Re-Examine Disability Cases

Many people receiving social security payments will have their cases re-examined in the near future to make sure they continue to be eligible for benefits, R.L. Kelly, social security manager in Norton, said recently.

Social security is required to review most disability cases at least once every three years starting in 1982 because of the 1980 disability amendments. The reviews are conducted to determine if a person is still disabled, Kelly said.

As an important first step in making the required reviews, social security is significantly increasing the number of continuing disability investigations it makes. About 350,000 cases will be reviewed during the remainder of this fiscal year. Next year, 500,000 cases will be reviewed.

The initial cases to be reviewed will be selected based on studies which show those cases most likely to result in recovery, Kelly said. These first investigations will provide more data which should indicate other types of cases that should be reviewed soon.

Social security disability benefits can only be made to people who have a severe physical or mental impairment expected to prevent them from working for at least 12 months or more or to result in death.

People found no longer disabled during the case reviews will have the opportunity to appeal the decision, Kelly said.

More information about social security disability requirements can be obtained at the Norton social security office, located at 630 Park Avenue. The telephone number is 679-2404.

Sunday School Lesson

VICTORY OF THE RESURRECTION

The glorious truth of the bodily resurrection of Jesus Christ is the very foundation of Christianity. Without the resurrection, there is no good news or gospel to be preached.

Matthew 27: 62-66

Joseph of Arimathaea obtained permission from Pilate to remove the body of Christ from the cross. He and Nicodemus prepared His body for burial and then placed it in the tomb in which Joseph had planned to be buried himself.

On the following day the shrewd chief priests and Pharisees, who recalled the earlier prediction of Christ that He would rise from the dead on the third day after His death, approached Pilate and urged him to take all the precautions necessary to prevent the disciples of Christ from stealing His body out of the tomb and then claiming that He had risen from the dead. Influenced by their reminder, Pilate ordered the religious leaders to seal the tomb and to have the soldiers to guard it carefully, thereby averting any such possibility. How foolish they were in thinking that the actions of men could prevent the accomplishment of the divine plan! Human attempts to counteract or prevent supernatural events are always futile, as this passage of scripture clearly reveals. Therefore, none should ever attempt to reckon without taking God's will, purpose and plan into account.

Matthew 28: 1-10

Even though the tomb was sealed, a huge stone rolled in front of the entrance, and a group of soldiers placed on duty to keep the tomb from being robbed, the efforts of men to thwart the purpose and power of God were not successful. The stone, the seal and the guard could not keep the Lord of life a prisoner to death.

Christ's body remained in the tomb until early Sunday morning. Then, God raised Him from the dead, and Christ laid aside His grave clothes and walked out of that tomb a living Lord, triumphant over death and the grave. His resurrection was one of the proofs of His deity. We are reminded of the little girl who had come to trust Christ as her Saviour and was approached by a so-called infidel who challenged her faith. With an expression for her credulity and of disgust on account of her faith, he said: "Little girl, do you know that there have been ten thousand christs? What Christ do you worship? Without a moment's hesitation, she replied: "The Christ Who rose from the dead, sir."

At dawn on Sunday morning, Mary Magdalene, Mary the mother of James and John, and Salome approached the tomb where Christ was buried in order to anoint His body with spices and perfume. That which they beheld was an impressive scene. An earthquake had occurred, an angel of the Lord had descended from heaven, the stone at the entrance of the tomb had been rolled away, and the angel was seated upon it, and Christ was not in the tomb.

Observing how terribly frightened the women were, the angel said: "Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here: for ne is risen, as he said." This declaration reminded the distraught women of Christ's various predictions that He would come forth from the grave. The angel urged these women to "see the place where the Lord lay. And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead." Immediately the women departed to carry to the disciples the good news that Christ was alive. The women were filled with joy. They were so eager to share the good news with the disciples that they ran instead of walking.

Before they got very far, Christ met the women and greeted them saying: "All hail." It was the presence of Christ that dispelled their doubts and brought them unspeakable joy. Always, when God's children are in the pathway of obedience to the divine will, they enjoy the delightful privilege of having fellowship with the Lord Jesus.

Optometrists Attend Conference

Drs. Bob and Stan Botts, Jr., recently traveled to Atlanta for the 58th Annual Southern Educational Congress of Optometry, sponsored by the Southern Council of Optometrists.

They participated in educational courses offered at the conference.

One highlight of the conference was a discussion by nationally known contact lens authorities on the disadvantages and advantages of extended wear lenses, both for the cataract patient and for the average contact lens patient

Different fitting techniques, lens designs and materials were explained.

The brothers, who have recently opened practice in Pennington Gap, have attended the Atlanta conference each year for the past four years in an effort to stay abreast of fast breaking developments in vision care.

Letter:

April 9, 1981
Editor

I could never bear to see anyone, be it human or animal, mistreated. It always rubbed me the wrong way.

Last Monday, April 6, I took several bags of trash to one of the dumpsters, located on Highway 58, about one mile from Jonesville coming toward the Dot Community. As I was putting my trash in the dumpster, I kept hearing the sounds of what I thought were kittens, meowing quite loudly. I couldn't seem to locate the sound, so I went to get a friend, Debra Poteet, who is probably even a greater animal lover than are my wife and myself.

We went back to the trash dumpster and after just a moments' time, we located the sounds I had been hearing. Imagine, if you will, our surprise in finding six adorable puppies thrown into a large dog food bag and placed with the trash. The puppies were apparently just newborn. They were still wet.

We took them to my home and placed them in a warm box and proceeded to figure out how to feed them. Since my wife and Debra are both nurses, I suppose we had somewhat of an advantage over many other people. With some warm SMA infant formula and the assistance of baby nipples, eye droppers, and a great deal of patience, we finally got them fed. Last night at midnight and again this morning at six AM, we were once again trying to feed our new boarders.

Since God created all things great and small, I naturally assume these puppies are God's handi work. I do not take this lightly. I look out the window now and see the flowers in bloom and the grass turning green and I can see new life taking hold. Well, new life is also trying to take hold in the form of six puppies found in a trash dump, and apparently thrown there by someone so cruel that they decided who and what had the right to live or die. The amazing thing about all of this, or so it seems to me, is that within the last 1½ years, we have had three short haired Persian cats and three dogs disappear. They never bothered anyone or hurt anyone, just like these newborn puppies. My wife and I were told once that we were prime candidates for anyone who wanted to get rid of an animal. Just drop it off at our house and it will find a home.

This is probably true. We are both "softies" for neglected or abandoned animals. I do not know whether our six puppies will live or die. If we have anything to do with it, they will live. Only God can decide that. If they live, we will try to find homes for them, if we cannot find homes, then here they will stay. I can guarantee you one thing, if they stay here, they will be spayed by a veterinarian, as all our animals are.

I just wish to say one more thing. To whomever abandoned these puppies, I really do feel sorry for you. These puppies probably would have either starved or frozen to death, had we not found them. They yet may die, but I am trying to see that they do not.

I truly hope you have many long and sleepless nights. Everytime you look at the puppies mother, remember that the milk she is carrying, without puppies to nurse on that milk, causes her pain.

May your conscience cause you that same pain.

Very sincerely,
John and Eleanor

Gas Pumps Must Display Total Price

The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services has announced that on July 1, 1981 pumps at all gas stations selling more than 120,000 gallons per year must display the total price that the consumer is charged.

Originally all gas stations in the state were to meet this deadline, but the Department has found that for some low volume dealers converting would not be technically or economically practical at this time. These stations will have until July 1, 1982 to meet the deadline. These stations, with sales less than 120,000 gallons per year, may still use half pricing, but the pumps must be labeled properly with half pricing information.

Some stations will also be selling gasoline by the liter using the metric system. This is permitted if the establishments selling by the liter post a chart convenient for customer viewing, showing comparable prices and quantities for the U.S. gallon. These stations may advertise by the gallon sales, provided the conversion factor is displayed on the pump such as "Price Per Liter x 3.785 = price per gallon," or display the comparable per gallon price.

The decision to extend the deadline for those stations with less than 120,000 gallon per year sales was made following meetings with Department personnel, various petroleum trade representatives, motor fuel dispenser manufacturers, motor fuel dispenser equipment suppliers and service representatives.

Questions concerning pump modifications or correct methods of sale or advertising should be directed to J.F. Lyles, Supervisor, Weights and Measures Section, P.O. Box 1163, Room 505, Richmond, Virginia 23209. Telephone, 804-786-2476.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

The American automobile industry is in serious financial trouble. Last year, their losses totaled more than $4 billion. Five hundred thousand auto workers, dealers, and suppliers are unemployed. This situation is important to all of us because one in every six Americans depends upon the automobile industry for his income.

Not only are sales depressed because of the stagnant economy, and high interest rates, but the U.S. auto industry has experienced a dramatic change in its markets, induced by escalating energy prices. As gasoline increased from 70¢ per gallon in January 1979 to $1.35 per gallon in February, 1981, consumer demand shifted dramatically to small cars. Partly as a result, imports increased from 18 percent to 28 percent of all auto sales during that same period.

The auto industry is also burdened with stringent regulatory requirements which add hundreds of dollars to the cost of each vehicle and billions to the industry's capital requirements. Regulation also diverts engineering and managerial talent from the industry's adjustment problems.

The Federal government cannot "bail out" every industry or business that is in danger of failing. Neither can we impose import restrictions impulsively, because of the danger of reciprocal trade barriers against United States exports. However, we can, and we should, remove the obstacles and restraints imposed by the government which have been major contributors to the industry's depression.

President Reagan has offered a relief package that includes the delay or elimination of some thirty four major regulations affecting cars and trucks. Of course, protecting health, safety, and the environment is important. Nevertheless, some of the regulations governing the auto industry's plants and products are unnecessarily stringent, and can be relaxed or rescinded with little or no cost to worthwhile regulatory goals. Others can be safely postponed until the industry recovers its productive momentum.

With general economic improvement, and regulatory relief, the first steps have been taken toward recovery. But none of this will help over the long term, unless management and labor of the companies involved, will work together to help themselves.

Be aware of the time limit and whether the lease can be resold. Reportedly, landowners have been offered an advance payment of $1 to $10 an acre and $1 to $4 per year thereafter. Before signing anything check out the company and the lease.

Make certain the lease is legible and easily understood. Check with neighbors who have dealt with the company. If the company is new in the area, ask for references including landowners and check with the references.

One independent farm cooperative group has outlined the provisions that should be in a lease. Here are some of them, but there are others, so those who are considering leasing their land should consult an attorney.

Virginia Cooperative Extension Service agents have information in publication VAE No. 309, entitled "Oil and Gas Leases in Virginia," by William Brant and Jake Looney.

The lease should include:

A provision stating the landowner must give approval before the company can sell the lease.

A provision that requires the drilling company to be responsible for all damage to crops, trees, fences, buildings, springs and water wells for home and livestock. It should also be in the lease if there is to be any reclamation by the company, such as restoring the natural contour of the land. If the land owner is to harvest the timber before the rig moves in or if the wellhead is to be fenced, it should be in the lease too.

A special clause requiring landowner approval of the site of the well, the tank, any access roads and pipelines. These should be agreed upon before drilling construction is begun. It should be stipulated the stakes can not be moved once they have been put at a site. The size of the well should be specified as well as the type and size of the access roads.

--A provision that would require the company to pay royalities within 30 days for the previous month's gas or oil.

A provision to guarantee at least 200,000 cubic feet of free gas with each well and a set price for any excess.

--A clause making payment of an annual fee due in advance or the lease will become void.

-Agreement on a lease fee. One group suggested a reasonable payment is usually more than $5 for the well site, but the pipelines could be included too.

Good Turkey Season Ahead

Jack Raybourne, Chief of the Game Division of the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries said today that "he expects a good to excellent spring turkey hunting season this year." Raybourne noted that the birds have had three years of good nesting conditions and consistently good hatches. This combined with a mild winter leads the Commission's game biologists to expect a good carryover of birds.

Reports from the field are of sightings of large (twelve to twenty birds) flocks of turkeys and the experts are predicting a harvest of over 4,000 gobblers this year.

Spring Turkey Season begins one half hour before sunrise on April 11, 1981 and ends at 11 a.m. on the 9th of May. The bag limit is one bearded bird per day, two per license year (this is a yearly bag limit and includes birds taken last fall). All counties in Virginia are open to spring turkey hunting this year.

Gas And Oil Leasing

By Glen H. Mitchell
Extension Specialist,
Consumer Education
Virginia Tech College of Home Economics

As energy prices zoom, many large, well known corporations and some lesser known groups are leasing Virginia lands for exploration. There are reports of gas leasing in areas which previously have not experienced much leasing.

Many of the firms leasing are attempting to "block up" areas so they have sufficient land to begin drilling and controlling the progress if the area becomes profitable.

Arguments abound regarding the probability of finding gas in these areas. The more optimistic refer to the higher prices being paid for fuel products and also the more sophisticated drilling techniques allowing the firms to dig deeper.

Beware of signing any lease. Consult an attorney familiar with gas and oil leasing. Otherwise, the landowner could easily be involved in a confusing, expensive and disastrous deal. Some farmers in other states have been the victim of disreputable speculators and have had to go to Federal Court to buy back their leases.

Insects have intrigued, benefited and irritated man for centuries. There are more different kinds of insects than all other living things — plants and animals — combined. Some insects help man because they feed on other insects that are harmful. Four-H'ers learn about insects in the entomology projects. There is even a project on rearing insects.

NUTRITION

Contemporary Pies: Less Fat and Sugar

Pies are frequently high in calories, fat, and sugar. But there's more than one way to bake a pie, and some can fit a lifestyle concerned with both food and fitness.

Quiche is a type of main dish pie that has been popularized in many forms. The traditional Quiche Lorraine contains Swiss cheese, bacon, eggs, milk, cream, and onion resulting in a rather high fat, high calorie dish. A few substitutions such as using low-fat milk instead of whole milk and cream and using different cheese can significantly reduce unwanted calories. And adding whole wheat to your pie crust recipe can add a little fiber.

A variety of vegetables can be used in Quiche and other main dish pies. Vitamin A is a bonus of deep green vegetables like spinach and dark yellow vegetables like carrots. Broccoli and cauliflower offer Vitamin C. Fiber is another health benefit of vegetables.

Vegetable sources of protein including whole grains, seeds, and legumes can be combined for hearty main dish pies. Legumes such as dry beans and peas are a less expensive source of protein than animal sources like meat and cheese. They also contain less fat and more fiber. Vegetable proteins offer the most protein value when combined in a meal or recipe: for example, beans and cornbread or beans and rice.

Calories, fat, and sugar can even be trimmed from servings of dessert pies. Portion control is one way that doesn't require any tampering with the recipe -- simply eat smaller servings. Preparing one crust instead of two crust pies offers some savings. Fruit pies are often loaded with sugar, but try experimenting with less in your favorite recipes. Avoid topping pies with ice cream and whipped cream -- both are high in calories and fat.

Stuffed Spinach Quiche

1-9 inch whole wheat pie crust
1 quart chopped fresh spinach
6 ounces mushrooms, chopped
1 medium onion, chopped
½ teaspoon oregano
2 tablespoons oil
⅓ cup provolone cheese, grated
½ cup skim milk ricotta cheese
2 eggs
1 cup low-fat milk
½ teaspoon salt
nutmeg

With fork prick bottom of pie crust and bake at 375° for 5 minutes. Blanch and drain spinach. Saute mushrooms, onion, and oregano in oil and place in pie crust. Add spinach and cheese. Beat eggs, milk, and salt together and pour mixture over vegetables and cheese. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake at 350° for 40-50 minutes. Let sit 10 minutes before serving.

Whole Wheat Pie Crust

1 cup whole wheat flour
1 cup white flour
1 teaspoon salt
4-6 tablespoons ice water
2/3 cup margarine

Mix flours and salt together. Cut in margarine with a pastry blender or two forks. Add water, a little at a time, mixing dough with a fork. Add just enough water so that the dough gathers into a ball. Makes two 9-inch crusts.

4-H Agent Attends Conference

Local Extension Agent Fred Herndon was a recent delegate at the 51st National 4-H Conference, April 4-10. Held at the National 4-H Center, the conference provided a forum for more than 300 4-H members, leaders and staff from 46 states, Puerto Rico, and Virgin Islands, District of Columbia and Canada.

A major portion of the conference was devoted to work sessions on specific concerns. Herndon was a member of the camping with a purpose consulting group.

During a session at the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, 4-H members heard from Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng and had an opportunity to ask him questions about agricultural policies.

Using the theme, "4-H Expanding Horizons -- You Can Make a Difference," the six day program also featured assemblies, theater presentations and field trips to historic sites in Washington D.C.

Conference delegates represented the almost five million youth and 575,000 volunteer leaders and 10,000 staff involved in 4-H nationwide.

Easter Seal Society Raises Funds

Easter is the season of the year when the Easter Seal Society raises funds to help men, women and children overcome disabilities and gain lives of independence and dignity.

Since its beginning in 1919 the Easter Seal Society has carried on a great tradition of helping people.

The fact that they are the oldest and largest voluntary health agency in the world speaks wells of stability, determination and dedication in meeting community needs.

The grassroots, community-based character of Easter Seals is further substantiated by the fact that 95 per cent of all revenue is retained within the state in which it is raised. And 73.3 per cent is used for direct service to clients.

Current estimates places the number of Americans with disabilities at 36 million, some sources say there may be more than 40 million individuals with handicaps that limit their activities. Regardless of the cause whether birth defects, illness or accident, disabled individuals can get professional help through Easter Seals.

Services provided by the Virginia Easter Seal Society includes residential camping, speech therapy, physical therapy, purchase and loan of prescribed rehabilitative equipment, education, advocacy for the handicapped, information, referral and follow-up. The Society operates Camp Easter Seal in Craig County and 11 out-patient centers.

USDA Nixes Crop Deficiency Funds For '80

The U.S. Department of Agriculture will make no deficiency payments on the 1980 crops of corn and sorghum, according to Edward Hews, acting administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Under current legislation, deficiency payments are made to producers when the average market price received by farmers during the first five months of the marketing year (October through February) is less than the established "target" price.

Farm Credit Has New General Manager

Jack D. Jennings

Mr. Jack D. Jennings has recently been promoted to the position of General Manager of the Southwest Virginia Farm Credit Association which has its home office in Wytheville.

Mr. Jennings joined the Farm Credit Association in November, 1970 as a Loan Officer in Lee, Scott and Wise Counties. He was named Branch Manager in 1975 and was promoted to Associate Manager in 1978. He moved to Wytheville in 1980 when the home office was opened. Mr. J.A. Rosenbaum, President of Southwest Production Credit Association had the following comment regarding the selection of the new General Manager. "Since Mr. Jennings served on the Board of Directors of Farm Credit for seven years prior to coming to work for Farm Credit and coming from a farming background, we feel he will be a great asset in this position, as we continue to serve the agricultural community of Southwest Virginia."

Mr. Jennings resides in Wytheville where he is still engaged in part time farming, raising tobacco and grazing steers.

A First For Southwest Virginia

For the first time in history, the Virginia Scholastic Chess Championship will be held outside the Tidewater. Pulaski has bid for and received permission to host three championships. For many years the western part of the state has not been heavily represented in these championships. The long hours and cost of travel has made it prohibitive.

The success of scholastic chess teams from Pulaski in state, regional, and national competition has made this year's choice of locale possible. The participation of other scholastic players from the southwest in this year's tournament will determine they will be scheduled again in this area.

Press coverage prior to the tournament, during play and afterwards will also play a part. Your cooperation will be appreciated.

Twin sisters, Lera and Linda Heatwole prepare meat during the seventh annual Harrisonburg, Va., Mennonite canning operation.

Mennonites Take Part In Community Canning

Horse drawn buggies are parked by pickup trucks today at Mark Shank's farm in this picturesque community.

Volunteers fill the large utility shed, each bringing something needed for the business at hand canning meat for shipment to refugees and disaster victims.

This is the 7th annual Harrisonburg Mennonite canning operation and the whole Mennonite community is taking part along with U.S. Department of Agriculture meat inspector Don Martz.

Martz is one of more than 8,000 such inspectors stationed in meat and poultry plants across the country to assure that meat and poultry products are safe, wholesome and truthfully labeled.

"We've extended USDA's consumer protection responsibility to the Mennonites food processing and distribution activities. Their efforts are part of the Mennonite Church's pledge to help refugees of conflicts and disaster victims around the world with food, clothing and bedding," Martz said.

The Mennonites have been canning food as part of this effort for years, Martz said. Today, they have a traveling meat canner that operates from a tractor trailer rig. It visits communities around the country for six months each year.

Martz lives and works in the Harrisonburg region of western Virginia. His normal assignment is to inspect the daily operations of four meat and poultry plants to insure that they comply with federal meat and poultry regulations. The Mennonite relief effort is a special assignment.

"The Mennonites have to meet the same federal standards with their meat products as everyone else," Martz said. "The standards insure that the cans are truthfully labeled and the product name is not misleading. The meat must be free of harmful bacteria and chemicals and prepared in a sanitary location.

Each year the Mennonites notify USDA of the coming canning. Because the operation travels through 12 states over a six month period, USDA's Food Safety and Quality Service sends inspectors from nearby regions to inspect the Mennonite's meat products and help assure the success of this project.

Just as with meat and poultry plants, inspection always starts with approval of the facilities.

When the Mennonites decide on the location, I look it over and make suggestions to insure it will comply with federal requirements," said Martz.

This year, the meat canning operation is being held at Mark Shank's farm because it is centrally located and has a large utility shed ideal for the work. Volunteers have brought in work tables, chairs, knives, containers and even a band saw from a volunteer's butcher shop.

I don't believe the people who organized this actually know how many cattle they will get until the cattle go to slaughter," Martz said. "There are 117 steers which will be slaughtered at a nearby federally inspected plant."

The 38 foot trailer housing the canner is parked beside the shed. The canner is operated by three volunteers who live in the trailer while it is in operation. The trailer has a boiler to generate steam, large stainless steel cooking vats, a machine to seal the cans and pressure cookers or "retorts," as they are called by the industry.

The Mennonite's trailer design had to meet USDA standards when it was built. Martz gives the trailer pre operation inspections every morning at 5:30.

Martz said the operation will run about 15 hours a day for 5 days and have 60 to 75 volunteers present each day.

Basically," said Martz, the operation consists of cutting up beef carcasses, deboning, removing fat, making beef chunks and labeling and boxing the cans. The process is designed to assure a safe, quality product which can be produced at the lowest possible price."

The week's work 5,000 hours of volunteer time will produce about 19,000, 28 ounce cans of cooked beef chunks, which will have a commercial value of $80,000. The canned meat will be shipped to Baltimore, Md., for distribution.

As quickly as the people came, they will leave, taking their equipment with them. The canning crew will pack their bags, thank the people who put them up, and head for Pennsylvania. Martz will return to his regular duties.

Biblical Gardens And Trees Of The Holy Land

Mrs. M.H. Robbins introduced Garden Club member Mrs. S.E. Bratton who chose, "Biblical Gardens and Trees of the Holy Land" as her topic for the May meeting of the Lee County Garden Club.

Mrs. Bratton began with the Garden of Eden - "And the Lord God planted a Garden eastward in Eden --- and he took man and put him into the garden --- to dress and to keep it." Gen. 2:8-15. This garden was perfect and contained every tree pleasant to sight and good for food. Every flower and shrub -- and the land was well watered. In this perfect garden man sinned and since that time we have many beautiful but no perfect gardens.

In speaking of the trees of the Holy Land she listed the following: poplars, apricots, cherries, almond, plums, apples, pears, walnuts, mulberries, olives, oranges and the famous cedars of Lebanon.

Flowers spoken of in the Bible include tulips, narcissus, lily. To quote, "I am the Rose of Sharon -- the Lily of the Valley" - Song of Solomon 2:1.

Horticulture was considered a royal occupation and many ancient Biblical Kings left writings telling of their gardens, places they had sent expeditions to get plants, the intensive irrigation systems built to water and the fabulous "hanging gardens."

In conclusion, Mrs. Bratton spoke of the Garden of Gethsemane with its great olive trees. A beautiful garden not far from Jerusalem in which Jesus, no doubt, stopped many times. "If we could hear those trees speak - I think they would say "That night in cool Gethsemane, Christ taught us immortality."

Hostesses for the meeting were: Mrs. M.H. Robbins, Mrs. R.E. Beeler, Mrs. Charles Newman and Mrs. Thomas Barr. The hostesses served cake decorated with green leaves, yellow and pink flowers, green punch and mints. The spring time theme was complimented by a table arrangement of daffodils, snowdrops and pussy willow.

Master, which is the great commandment in the law?

Report From Richmond

By Orby L. Cantrell And Ford C. Quillen

Redistricting leaves Lee, Wise, Scott, Dickenson and City of Norton the same.

The Virginia General Assembly after finishing its "short session" in February went back to Richmond on March 30 to attend the First special "Veto Session" which was approved by Virginia Voters during last November's election. While there, the legislators also had the task of reassessing the State's population increases and accordingly redistrict Virginia's House, Senatorial and Congressional boundaries.

The Governor vetoed 29 pieces of legislation passed by the General Assembly during the "Short Session", and sent back 36 with amendments. Of the 29 vetoes, 23 bills involved legislation that was similar, identical, or covered by other legislation. The remaining 6 bills received extensive debate, with the Teacher Grievance Bill, Medicade, Abortion Bill and Martin Luther King Holiday Bill producing the most controversy. However, none of the vetoes were overridden and all of the amendments were approved except the one regarding the Teacher Grievance Bill: It failed to win House approval.

Redistricting was the most difficult task for the legislators, and according to the Virginia Constitution, it was the most important task.

In the Redistricting Process, the Legislators had to comply with Federal Voting Laws. The U.S. Supreme Court's 1964 one-man, one-vote decision said a State's congressional and legislative districts must, roughly contain the same number of people.

In Virginia, which had a 1980 population of approximately 5.32 million, the legal ideal for Congressional Districts is 533,000 people, for State Senate districts, 135,000, and for House of Delegates Districts, 53,000. Courts have permitted greater disparities in size among Congressional districts. This is afforded due to geographic hardships based upon limited highway accessibility, pre-existing boundaries, and the "Community of Interest" concept.

The effects of the 1981 redistricting plan left the First Legislative district unchanged. This district includes the counties of: Lee, Wise, Scott, Dickenson, and the City of Norton, and are currently represented by Orby L. Cantrell from Pound and Ford C. Quillen from Gate City.

In other business, the General Assembly passed carryover legislation allowing the State to condemn property for a new port facility. Orby and Ford both voted favorably for this bill because it will enable the State to maintain the dominate position in coal exporting; this will be done without expense to the state.

Orby and Ford are honored to represent the people of Virginia's First Legislative District. We appreciate the interest you have shown in issues before the General Assembly and we invite you to contact us if at any time you have a question or a problem with which we can help. We are interested and concerned about your opinions regarding legislation that was passed by the General Assembly this year. When you write, please be sure to include your complete return address, so we can get back to you right away. You can reach Orby by writing to Delegate Orby L. Cantrell, P.O. Box 188, Pound, Va. 24279, or by calling 796-5250. Ford can be reached by writing to Delegate Ford C. Quillen at Box 337, Gate City, Va. 24251, or by calling him at 386-7023.

Webb Trial Opens; Jury Selection Begins

Circuit Court Judge Samuel Coleman overruled Attorney Tom Rasnic's motion for continuance in the Tuesday, April 21, opening of the trial of Bernard Chester Webb, 34, of St. Charles, for the alleged "murder for hire" of a Georgia businessman.

Webb, a part-time coal miner charged with the murder of David Hill, 46, of Swainsboro, Ga., pleaded not guilty to the charge and stated his preference for a trial by jury. He also told the judge that he and his attorney needed additional time to check out certain things before the case came to trial.

Attorney Rasnic further clarified Webb's remarks, after private consultation, citing several witnesses that his office had not been able to track down due to limited manpower and financial resources, which could shed considerable light on the case.

After Rasnic's lengthy explanation as to why he and his client weren't ready, prosecuting attorney, Cynthia Kinser, Lee Commonwealth's Attorney, accused Rasnic of "grabbing at straws" and trying to manipulate the court system. "If all you have to do to get a continuance is say you're not ready, how could the Commonwealth ever get a case tried?" she asked.

In denying the motion of continuance, Coleman did qualify by saying that he would further investigate questions raised by Rasnic concerning availability of witnesses and the filing of a medical examiner's report concerning the approximate time and date of Hill's death.

Jury selection was to begin later in the day after a brief recess for lunch.

Security was tight in the courtroom with only one set of doors accessible to the general public and Sheriff R. V. Chadwell and members of his force on constant duty. All persons entering the courtroom are subject to search and no one is allowed to leave except during recess.

Chadwell is being assisted in security efforts by the Virginia State Police and the federal marshall's office.

According to authorities, jury selection could be quite a lengthy process lasting upwards to a week while the trial itself is supposed to be long and complicated.

Webb, has twice been stopped by local authorities in what they termed escape attempts from the Lee County Jail.

Prosecutor Kinser will attempt to link Webb and Robert L. Herring, 37, of Albany, Ga., in a plot to kill Hill, a business associate of Herring whom authorities believed was involved in interstate heavy equipment thefts.

The indictment against Webb states that Hill's

Local School Board Reaffirms Stand On School Improvement

The Lee County School board in its regular April 14th meeting passed a resolution asking local supervisors to provide funds and give permission to obtain an option on 50 acres of land for construction of a new high school for Jonesville and Flatwoods residents, and simultaneously allowing for a reorganization of elementary schools resulting in the permanent closing of Jonesville Elementary.

Under such a proposed plan which has previously been presented to supervisors as part of the School Board's total school improvement plan, the newly-built high school would house eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade students from Flatwoods and Jonesville.

The existing structure at Jonesville High would accomodate fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades from Jonesville and Flatwoods, while Flatwoods' present facility would house kindergarten through third graders from Flatwoods and Jonesville.

DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME BEGINS... April 26

The only School Board member voting against the resolution was Terry Estep who explained his position by saying that since this Board of Supervisors, as well as previous Boards, have failed to take any affirmative action toward local school improvement, perhaps the only way anything can be accomplished is to look at building a new elementary school.

In other action, Bill Huber, a representative of Help Education Lee Priority (HELP), distributed individual letters to each of the Board members requesting that they consider holding their regular meeting during the evening hours when it would be possible for more citizens that they represent to attend and participate in such meetings.

The letter further encouraged Board members to make their reply at the regularly-scheduled May meeting.

Superintendent Bob McCoy reported.

--That paint bids for summer work will be taken and discussed at the May meeting.

--Flatwoods teacher, Pridemore Sewell, has been suspended pending outcome of litigation due to his recent involvement in a shooting.

A warrant has been served against Jonesville Elementary principal J. C.

Suit Charges Recent Reassessment Illegal

Eight Lee County property owners are suing the Lee County Board of Supervisors and the Board of Equalization on grounds that the recent reassessment by Carl Stallard was conducted in an unlawful manner with disregard of certain minimum standards.

Paul H. Jernigan, Big Stone Gap attorney, filed the suit in Lee County Circuit Court last week on behalf of C.P. Giles, Leonard Johnson, Elbert Neal, Steve Middleton, Lovell Sturgill, Stover Willis, Jr., J.E. Crabtree and Adrian David Kelly, plaintiffs.

The suit states that the plaintiffs "pray that the Board of Supervisors be restrained and enjoined from enforcing any ordinance in furtherance of the illegal tax assessment; that the Board of Equalization be restrained and enjoined from conducting hearings based on the said reassessment; that the assessment be declared null and void as a law; and that the Board of Supervisors be required to conduct a lawful appraisal in accordance with legal guidelines as set out by the Circuit Court.

The plaintiffs also seek monetary damages to pay their attorney fees and other costs pursuant to the trying of this case.

The certain minimum standards referred to in the suit involve physical examination of the property to be appraised, a determination of value of like property, location of the property and best use of the property, the document goes on to explain.

The plaintiffs contend that the recent appraisal did not meet those standards and therefore violates the fundamentals of due process and the principles of equity. "The tax appraisal is causing the plaintiffs to undergo undue hardship and suffer irreparable damage."

Furthermore, the plain

Sheriff's Office Reports Near-Fatal Shooting

A family argument resulted in the near fatal shooting of Jerry Allen Smith, 28, Puckett's Creek, late Saturday night, April 18.

According to Lt. Charles Janeway, Smith and his wife, Daisy Norene, had recently been living with her brother, Anthony Ely, 23, Puckett's Creek, who allegedly shot Smith.

On the night of the incident, Smith came home and began arguing heatedly with his wife, loud enough it seems to awaken the sleeping Ely. Ely came out of his bedroom and told Smith that he wasn't putting up with that kind of racket and Smith, in turn, retorted that he would "whip both of them," Janeway said.

At this point, Ely apparently went back into his bedroom and got his gun which, according to Janeway, he never used to threaten - just kept it by his side.

The argument between Smith and his wife became more intense with Smith threatening to take the baby and then to get an axe and split his wife's skull.

Janeway said Smith then went out on the porch and returned with an axe in his hand advancing toward his wife. Ely can't remember whether Smith had raised the arm with the ax as if to strike his wife, but he fired, the bullet hitting Smith under the right armpit, puncturing a lung, damaging heart vessels, and lodging in the other lung.

Ely and Smith's wife took him to the local hospital immediately where he was later transfered to

Pennington Names New Football Coach

James A. "Bucky" Meade has been named the new head football coach at Pennington High School by the Lee County School Board.

The former Carson Newman grid standout will move over from Pound High School where he served as an assistant football coach for the past seven years, and head track coach the last five.

He replaces Jack Rasnic, who resigned at the conclusion of the 1980 season.

Cancer Residential Crusade Proved Successful

Mr and Mrs. Joe Lyle, County Co-Chairman wish to express their appreciation and thanks to the area captains, neighborhood crusaders and each person who made a donation to the 1981 Cancer Crusade.

Through the efforts of approximately 175 Crusaders to date $4,680.00 has bee reported. Three areas have not reported at this time. We have a goal of $5,000.00 for the Crusade and hope that by the time all reports come in we will reach our goal.

The Crusade was two fold for education as well as fund raising. It is hoped that the educational leaflet that was distributed by the Crusaders giving the seven Warning Signals will be read and kept for future reference.

The American Cancer Society, Inc., is a national voluntary health organization of 2½ million Americans united to conquer cancer through balanced programs of research, education and patient service and rehabilitation. Its symbol is the Sword of Hope.

Reassessment

tiffs state that having to go before the Board of Equalization will cause them undue hardship and the Board of Equalization does not have the authority nor the power to have hearings based on an unlawful appraisal.

Serving on the Board of Equalization are Chairman, Carl Evans; Vice Chairman, Walter Jenkins; and Secretary, Pat Fortner.

Jernigan will move for a temporary injunction against the appraisal on May 1 in Circuit Court

County Administrator Odell Wilson, when asked to respond to the suit, said that there is nothing in the State Code that makes this process -- motion for an injunction against the appraisal - legal and that the law has made sufficient allowance for the airing of grievances through the Board of Equalization

Commonwealth's Attorney Cynthia Kinser will represent the County, Wilson said.

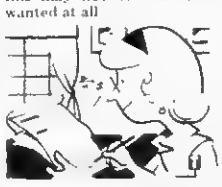
IT'S A FACT!

If you die intestate that is, without a will the state distributes your property according to state law, and this may not be what you wanted at all



If you want to do something for humanity in your will as by leaving money for The Salvation Army as an heir or in case other heirs don't survive you you may find interesting a free leaflet you can get by writing to Public Information Department The Salvation Army 50 West 23rd Street New York, N Y 10010

Facing Surgery: Why Not Get A Second Opinion?

Sometimes you have no choice about surgery -- an emergency appendectomy for instance. But, other kinds of surgery are not emergencies, and many people are taking the extra time to get a second opinion. This step gives you a chance to ask a second doctor if the surgery is necessary, or if there are other non-surgical, effective methods of treatment you can try instead And, today many health insurance policies pay for getting additional expert advice

To help you know when and how to go about getting a second opinion, the Department of Health and Human Services has a free booklet For your copy of Facing Surgery: Why Not Get A Second Opinion? just write to Consumer Information Center, Dept. 566J Pueblo, Colorado 81009

If your doctor recommends non emergency surgery, there are several ways to find a surgeon or another doctor who specializes in the treatment of your medical problem

*You can ask your doctor to give you the name of a specialist. Don't hesitate to ask; most physicians encourage patients to seek a second opinion;

*If you prefer to find another doctor on your own, contact your local medical society or medical school for the names of doctors who specialize in the field of medicine you need,

*You can call the government's toll-free number. (800) 638 6833 (in Maryland call (800)492 6603) to get help in locating a specialist near you:

*If you're covered by Medicare, you can call your local Social Security Office (listed in your telephone director under U. S. Government, Department of Health and Human Services).

*If you're eligible for Medicaid, you can call your local welfare office

Some people don't feel comfortable letting their doctor know that they are getting a second opinion. However, if you tell your doctor, you can ask that your records be sent to the second doctor. In this way, you may be able to avoid the time, costs and discomfort of having to repeat tests

When you get a second opinion, tell the second doctor what surgical procedure is recommended and also what tests you've had If the second doctor agrees that surgery is the best way to treat your problem, you can go back to the first doctor for the surgery If the second opinion disagrees with the first, you'll have to weigh the facts and make your own decision. Or you may want to talk to a third physician

When you order Facing Surgery: Why Not Get a Second Opinion?, you'll also receive a free copy of the Consumer Information Catalog. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the free Catalog lists over 200 selected low cost and free federal consumer booklets.

Gardening In Containers

Good things come in small packages and home vegetable gardens can come that way too.

Containers can be used to make a garden in a small space -- a window sill, a patio, a balcony or a doorstep, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf.

Use dwarf and miniature varieties, she said. Grow vegetables that take up little space, such as carrots and radishes; or crops that bear fruits over a period of time such as tomatoes and peppers.

"The amount of sunlight that the garden spot receives may determine what crops can be grown. Generally root crops and leaf crops can tolerate partial shade," the specialist said, "but vegetables grown for their fruits may need at least five hours of full, direct sunlight each day."

Containers can be a variety of things. They only need to be large enough to support the plants when they are fully grown, hold the soil and have adequate drainage.

If the container is made out of wood, it shouldn't be treated with creosote or pentachlorophenols as they may be toxic to plants.

"Redwood and cedar are the most rot resistant woods and make good containers," said the faculty member in Tech's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences.

The specialist recommended a lightweight potting mix be used in containers. Soil dug up from the ground is too heavy. The particles are small and the soil gets too compacted in the container when it is watered.

Soil must be porous in order to support plants because the roots require both air and water which fill the pore spaces.

Packaged potting soil is available. Ms. Relf offered the following instructions on mixing it.

For one bushel, mix one-half bushel of No. 2 six vermiculite, one - half bushel of peat moss, five tablespoons of ground limestone, two tablespoons of super phosphate and eight tablespoons of 5-10-5 or 6-12-6 fertilizer.

Fill a clean container which has drainage holes to within one-half inch of the top with the mixture. Thoroughly water the soil mix, then plant the seed according to instructions on the seed package

Echoes From The Hills

Memories Of Lee County
By Hampton Osborne
Recollections Of Jonesville

I must have been about twelve years old when my father allowed me to go with him to Jonesville on some kind of business. We rode in a wagon and it was a rough trip but I did not mind it, a bit as the pleasure of seeing a "city" outweighed any hardships of the trip.

The old road over Powell Mountain was quite different in grade and surface in that time as compared with now. It was almost straight up the mountain on the Blackwater side and on the Jonesville Wallens Creek side it slanted down the mountain near the John Ely place. It did not have the bad curve it now has near the top of the mountain. It was narrow and rough all the way and became almost impassible in winter. We forded Wallens Creek just below the bridge there and as well as I remember we followed the old road which went almost straight up the ridge and came out on the other side where a Mr. Seabolt lived and then followed the present grade pretty much as it is today except the new cut-off at the New Bridge over Powell River. We forded the river below the bridge where there is an island in the middle of the river

We went through the D.C. Sewell farm which I have heard at one time was 999 acres. I wondered why Mr. Sewell did not buy another acre to round it off to 100 acres. He had several renters on his farm. It seemed that he then lived on his farm near the present residence of Woodrow Lambert near the river. He had a home in Jonesville which I believe has been torn down recently. We passed Mr. Roop's home at the foot of the hill just below the old Bowhn Methodist Church. That old church interested me then and still does. I believe that in one of Pro. Cox's articles he said that they planned to build a new church there I kindly hate to see that old landmark destroyed.

Father showed me where Mr. Bonham lived and I believe the road ran by his house at that time. The last time I was there I saw it still standing Mr Bonham and father were close friends. My uncle Winfield would sometimes stay with Mr. Bonham. Mr. Bonham was a very religious man and of course asked uncle to say grace at the table. One night Dave Mahan, who resembled Uncle Winfield very much, both being baldheaded; he was uncle's nephew who had called and asked to stay all night. Mr Bonham could not see too well then and he thought Dave was uncle Winfield He said to Dave, "Well, Brother Osborne you know you are always welcome to stay with us." Dave was anxious to stay and so did not tell Mr Bonham that he was not "Brother Osborne". When breakfast was served Mr. Bonham said, "Please say grace, Brother Osborne " Dave had to think fast so he excused himself thusly, "Please excuse me Brother Bonham, I feel kindly sick this morning "

Father was well acquainted with many people in Jonesville and would point out where many people lived. He showed me the old Judge Duncan home and the one next to him There was an old sawmill on Town Branch at the foot of the hill going up in town.

In those days the way of the transgressor was hard. By the road side at the foot of the hill were men with chains fastened to their legs and a big ball of iron at the end of it, so the jail fellows could not escape. They were making small stones out of the large one to build the streets with Father told me to take a look at them and remember that it did not pay to do wrong and have to be put in jail. That had a most lasting effect on me For one thing I was kindly allergic to work and also I did not like the idea of staying in jail part of the time

When we were in town father took me up into the old jail He knew the jailer well, but I have forgotten who he was. I noticed that father winked at the jailer and he took a key from his pocket which looked to me like it was three inches wide and placed it in the lock and turned it It made a terrible unpleasant sound, that sounded like thunder to me. That added considerably to my decision when I saw the jail birds beating rock at the foot of the hill

I smelled my first coal smoke when I came into Jonesville and was new and strange to me I had never seen but one lump of coal at that time One night at the old Osborne's Institute there was some kind of political meeting I believe The next morning I found a small lump of coal and took it to the teacher and asked what it was. He told me that it was "stone coal." I had burned charcoal for father's shop

I remember the old Mayor Hyatt home the Judge Orr house below Jonesville, the old Presbyterian Church which was torn down a few years ago The old courthouse on the top of the hill which was burned several years ago and a new one was built during the W.P.A period Mr George Orr had a store at the top of the hill across the street from the courthouse Mr Hillsary McDowell operated a hotel and dining room ever since I can remember That has been a landmark many years Across the street where the drug store now stands was the old Brown Hotel, also a noted landmark in Jonesville

The old institute looked very familiar to me. In later years Mrs Dillion, grandmother of Mrs Hattie Williams and Mrs Hattie Mae Hines Williams ran a boarding house there several years. She and Hattie Mae came to visit us at our home on Blackwater when Hattie was a young girl

I remember the posts along the street with a lantern attached on top to give some light in the street I remember several years ago of seeing one near the old D C Sewell home in Jonesville Some of the heirs may still have it in their possession

There was an old tannery on Town Branch but I do not remember if it was then in operation

At the old cave about the tannery was a battering ram which pumped the water on top of the hill into the tank which supplied the town with water. The water still comes from this cave to give the water to Jonesville

A W Couk had a large clothing store on the corner opposite the Powell Valley National Bank and where the Sprinkle Super Market now stands Many of the old buildings of Jonesville were made of hand made brick Jonesville has as many or more old buildings still in use than probably any other town of its size Jonesville has had a difficult row to weed. A large portion of the town has been burned out two or three times and the courthouse twice

The Powell Valley National Bank, Jonesville has always been a strong institution It weathered the depression which few did

By: Charles M. Ingram, Lee County ASCS Office

What is Federal Crop Insurance? Federal Crop Insurance is a service offered by the United States Department of Agriculture through the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC). Its purpose is to help farmers protect their investment in their crops by offering financial protection against total or disastrous crop losses. FCIC policies provide protection against all natural causes of loss.

What does it protect? It protects burley tobacco crops against all unavoidable causes of loss such as drought, excessive moisture, freeze, hail, wind, fire, disease and all other natural causes. Theft and abandonment of the crop are not covered.

How Much Coverage Could I Obtain? FCIC offers policyholders a dollar guarantee You may compute your "dollar" coverage by using the following formula. Pounds producer is trying to grow X 65% X $1.57 (1981 Support Price) = FCIC guarantee. Example: Coverage on 2000 pounds. 2000 x .65 x $1.57 = $2041. FCIC guarantee.

What Does This Coverage Mean? It means that if you sell your tobacco crop for any amount under your cash guarantee, you will receive a check from FCIC to bring you up to this guarantee Example: $2041 FCIC guarantee. Crop sells for $1541. A check of $1541 A check of $500.00 will be issued

What Will My Premium Cost? The rate per $100 coverage in Lee County is only $2.70 The farmer's premium in the above example would be computed as follows: $2041 (FCIC coverage) X $2.70 per hundred dollars = $55 11 annual premium.

When Do I Pay The Premium? You do not have to pay the premium until after you sell the crop.

What About My Sharecropper? A producer can only insure his share of the crop. Your sharecropper will need his own policy to protect his interest in a tobacco crop.

What About Additional Hail Insurance? Additional hail insurance with private companies may be taken out on the crop to supplement FCIC coverage if the producer desires. This will provide double protection in the event of a hail loss Producers may also exclude hail coverage from their FCIC policy and obtain a reduced premium by purchasing an amount of hail insurance equal to their FCIC guarantee

Acreage Reports. Farmers who have a FCIC policy are required to make an acreage report of the amount of tobacco they have planted once their planting is completed The importance of this report cannot be overemphasized. It alone determines the dollar guarantee provided you by your policy for a crop year. A producer cannot insure more quota than his planted acreage times his ASCS burley yield will support Farmers will be mailed the reports and are encouraged to contact their County ASCS Office for assistance in completing them. July 15 is the final reporting date

When Do I Buy The Insurance? FCIC has to be taken out before you plant your 1981 crop but no later than May 20. Interested producers are encouraged to contact the Lee County ASCS Office

No Changes In Dairy Price Support Program

Secretary of Agriculture John Block recently announced the government's dairy price support levels will remain unchanged for the next six months

Block said this action comes after President Ronald Reagan signed into law legislation rescinding the requirement for the semi annual increase in the support price scheduled for April 1

The support price will remain at $12 80 per hundredweight for milk with a milkfat content of 3 5 per cent and $13 10 for milk with a 3.67 milkfat content, the national average, Block said

Block said rescinding the scheduled increase will reduce government expenditures by nearly $150 million during the remainder of this marketing year. He also said it will help bring milk production more in line with milk consumption

Block said the president's action would also save consumers approximately $270 million in lower retail dairy prices during the period April 1 through September 30

In another action, Block increased the sell back price for dairy products acquired under the support program The prices for dairy products offered for sale for unrestricted use will set at 110 percent of the current purchase price for these commodities, effective April 1 The previous sell back price had been 105 percent of the support level

CCC purchase prices for butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk will be announced later

SCC Is Department For Farm Incorporating

Virginia farmers may realize potential tax savings by incorporation, according to a recent news story in the Agribusiness Roundup by Jerry Lazarus of the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

To assist farmers who want to set up their own corporations, the State Corporation Commission Clerk's Office is prepared to send information and answer questions about the procedure in the Commonwealth

The Virginia General Assembly has provided for incorporation in this state with relative ease. Of course, the services of an attorney are valuable, but not absolutely necessary Guidelines for incorporation are available through lthe SCC, and the fees involved can be kept below $50

Lazarus, the Agribusiness writer, says that there are other advantages of incorporation By incorporating, a farmer can more readily assure that his farm will stay intact at his death. And assets can be passed to the next generation of farmers before death more easily by simply handing over stock

William C. Yound is the SCC Clerk, and his top assistant is George W. Bryant Jr. The Clerk's Office is the focal point in the Commission for applications and issuance of charters, amendments, consolidations and domestications of foreign corporations. About 100,000 corporations are on record, and the office collects about $5 million annually in registration fees and franchise taxes

To receive answers to questions farmers and others may have about incorporation, write to Clerk, SCC, P.O. Box 1197, Richmond, Va 23209. And there's a special toll-free number for all SCC divisions, including the Clerk's Office, utilities, insurance and financial institutions: 1 800 552 7945.

Congressman BILL WAMPLER Reports from Washington

The successful flight of the space shuttle, Columbia, was a remarkable demonstration of American technological genius and frontier spirit. It opens a door through which man can explore ways to use space to help solve problems on Earth.

Consider just a few of the possibilities: weather and natural resource patterns can be monitored with new accuracy. Space-produced materials will provide breakthroughs in medicine, communications, electronics and aviation. The sun's energy can be used by satellites which beam it to Earth. Scientists can gather new information from a vantage point in space. The possibilities are limited only by imagination.

The shuttle also has important defense applications, such as providing early warning systems, anti-missile capability, etc. It gives the United States a defensive edge that should help to preserve the peace.

In addition, it puts in place a space transportation system, which can eventually lead to the colonization of space. That seems remote now, but it is within the realm of possibility. By making space travel routinely accessible for all types of civilian, scientific, and defense purposes, the space shuttle will figure prominently in America's future.

In some areas, this great space achievement is being criticized as wasteful and inflationary. I believe such an attitude displays a lack of understanding of what basic science can do. Senator Harrison Schmidt, a former astronaut, said recently, "... investments in scientific understanding and new technologies, almost without exception, are deflationary. They create new productivity, goods and services far beyond the initial investment. They increase the gross national product without increasing the money supply, which makes them some of the very few inherently deflationary things the federal government can do."

Sunday School Lesson

IN MISSION WITH THE VICTOR

After the crucifixion and resurrection of Christ, He sought to impress upon His disciples, as well as all who would become believers in Him through the centuries to come, the importance of their proclaiming the gospel – the message of the death, burial and resurrection of the Saviour to all the people of the world.

Matthew 28: 11 - 13

At a personal risk to themselves for doing so, some of the soldiers who had served as guards at the tomb related the events that had transpired. to the chief priests, who were primarily Sadducees and avowed disbelievers in the resurrection. At a called meeting of the Sanhedrin, it was decided to offer the soldiers generous bribes for their testimony that the body of Christ had been stolen from the tomb. Of course, there were those who would believe their false report, as is true of all rumors that are circulated. Should it appear that the report which they were asked to make would get them into trouble, the religious leaders promised to intercede with their superiors on behalf of the soldiers. The willingness of the soldiers to commit that terrible deed did not nullify the truth that Christ had arisen from the dead. Repeatedly we are amazed at the depths of sin to which some people will sink in order to obtain money for themselves.

Matthew 28: 16 - 20

In obedience to the command of their Lord, the eleven apostles made their way to Galilee, and there they met the Master. They worshipped Him, and He readily accepted their worship. To the group assembled Christ spoke the Great Commission which is recorded here.

Christ's Power Was Announced – Matthew 28: 18

Quietly, but without hesitation or reservation, Christ announced that to Him had been given all authority over the entire creation: "All authority is given unto me in heaven and on earth." No greater claim than that was ever made. It is a claim of unconditional and unlimited authority. In the light of this claim, Christians need not be troubled by what they may encounter, for nothing can be done to them by men or demons without the permission of their Lord.

Christ's Program Was Advanced

Matthew 28: 19

As Christians go into all the world Christ has commanded them to make disciples for Him, baptizing them and teaching them His glorious truths. Christ expects us to evangelize the unsaved and to edify the saved. Christ's program of proclaiming the gospel is universal in its scope, individual in its appeal, practical in its purpose, and personal in its obligation. To the best of our ability we should strive to obey Christ's command to take the gospel to all. This task is the greatest which our Lord has committed to us. No greater work can occupy the thought, time, strength, or substance of the Christian.

Christ's Presence Was Assured – Matthew 28-20

Christ said: "And, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the age." If we long and hope to enjoy the blessed presence of our Lord, it is incumbent upon us to advance His program. The enjoyment of Christ' presence is conditioned upon our obedience to His commands. If we are obedient to Him, we may expect to enjoy Christ's glorious presence all our days. His presence with us guarantees constant companionship, fullness of joy, sufficiency in trial, and comfort in sorrow, all of which we need very much throughout our sojourn on the earth.

As stewards of the glorious gospel of Christ we occupy a position of trust, of honor, of influence, and of responsibility. Let us be faithful to this great trust and share Christ with all whom we can. The gospel of Christ has not been given to us for selfish consumption or distribution, but in order that we may share it freely with all who have never received it. As we obediently carry the message of Christ's redeeming love to the people of every nation, we shall most assuredly enjoy His blessed presence with us and His wonderful blessings upon us.

CPR — Know It ... Use It ... Save A Life.

You're shopping at a grocery store when the man at the checkout counter gasps, clutches his chest, and falls to the floor. He begins to turn blue and his breathing ceases. What would you do?

If you've taken a Red Cross Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) course, you may save his life.

Most cardiac fatalities occur outside the hospital. Many of the thousands of fatalities each year could have been prevented if basic life support emergency first aid had been given in the first few seconds after cardiac arrest.

The American Red Cross, a volunteer organization committed to the alleviation of suffering and the saving of human life, offers courses of instruction in CPR. The courses also increase awareness of early warning signs, risk factors, and symptoms.

WHAT CPR IS

CPR, or cardiopulmonary resuscitation, provides artificial circulation and breathing to a person whose heart and lungs have stopped functioning because of a heart attack, shock, drowning, or other cause. External cardiac compressions administered manually are alternated with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in order to stimulate the natural function of the heart and lungs, and so to save a life.

WHO NEEDS CPR TRAINING

You need CPR training, CPR is a skill that could save the life of someone anytime, anywhere, because cardiac arrests are a fact of daily life. But police officers, fire fighters, rescue squad members, paramedic groups, and families of cardiac patients especially should investigate and take CPR training now.

HOW CPR TRAINING WORKS

To meet the needs and desires of various people, the Red Cross offers two types of CPR Modular System courses:

A. The "RACE for Life" course, which uses the first two units of the workbook Respiratory and Circulatory Emergencies. This course covers one-rescuer CPR for an adult victim. (Length: Approximately 2½ to 3 hours.)

B. The complete CPR Modular System course, uses all seven units of the workbook. (Length: Approximately 7 hours.)

Certification
A CPR certificate is issued at the successful completion of each course. Certificates are valid for 1 year from the course completion date.

COST —

The only expense involved in receiving this training, is $2.50 to cover the cost of the workbook.

HOW TO RECEIVE TRAINING

There are 14 CPR instructors in Lee County, who are presently qualified to teach CPR. If you are interested call 546 4563 for further information on where to receive this vital training.

Roadside Theater's New LP, "Mountain Tales"

There are those who say that storytelling is dead, done in by television and other electronic media. Roadside Theater of Whitesburg, Kentucky, and Norton, Virginia doesn't agree, and in fact feels that the art is alive and doing well. Their original productions, RED FOX/SECOND HANGIN' and BROTHER JACK, have received national acclaim as innovative theatrical productions, and both of these plays rely heavily upon storytelling and the oral tradition. The Wall Street Journal reviewing Roadside's recent Atlanta, Georgia performances said, "the seven-year old company showed the wit and wisdom that have earned it a national reputation."

Roadside has now gone one step further to use the electronic media to produce a record of storytelling. "Mountain Tales", produced by Roadside Theater and released on June Appal records is a combination of traditional mountain tales and music producing a unique blend of the spoken work with musical highlights. This record captures, as nearly as possible, the spirit and casualness of impromptu storytelling in a fashion that makes you forget you are listening to a record. Old time favorites like "Three Gold Nuts," "Cat and Rat," "Cripple Creek," and "Fat or Lean" are included for the whole family's enjoyment.

"Mountain Tales" is a record for kids from 7 to 70. It is available now at your local record shop or by writing, June Appal Recording, Box 743, Whitesburg, Kentucky 41858. Include check or money order for $7.00 per record.

Resurfacing Contracts Okayed

Ninety-seven maintenance contracts totaling about $24 million have been approved for award by the State Highway and Transportation Commission for resurfacing 1,315 miles of interstate and heavy-duty primary and secondary highways throughout the state.

The annual resurfacing program is conducted to replace worn surfaces, restore skid-resisting qualities to heavily-used highways, and protect the existing road system.

Contracts for resurfacing 4,791 miles of light-duty highways, at a cost of $18.3 million, were awarded last month.

The contractors and the value of the resurfacing contracts in each highway district follows:

Litter – An Expensive Bad Habit

Despite all the attempts to stamp them out, litterbugs are still around and they cost Virginia motorists some $1.5 million last year.

That word came today from the Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation, which is in the midst of its cleanup preparations for the state's 48th annual Historic Garden Week April 18-26.

Litter cleanup on Virginia's interstate, primary, and secondary roads cost $1,543,534 in the 1979-80 fiscal year. That's $206,268 more than it cost the year before, according to C. O. Leigh, the department's maintenance engineer.

However, he found one bright note in the fact that this increase was about $40,000 less than last year's increase over the previous year.

That would seem to indicate some progress, according to Leigh. "But, he added, "it's discouraging to spend so much on cleanup when there are so many other needs at this time."

While the roadside cleanup is costly and trash mars much of the country side, it also adds a potential safety hazard for the motorist. Blowing paper and other trash easily can distract a motorist or impair his vision, while discarded cans and bottles sometimes are tossed in the paths of oncoming cars, Leigh noted.

Trash discarded alongside the highways can become a special hazard in the mowing season, when it can be thrown onto the highway by the blades of the large power mowers or can severely damage equipment.

Leigh pointed out some ways in which motorists could help cut cleanup costs. He said travellers should:

*Keep litter bags or containers in their vehicles and use them until trash can be disposed of in a proper manner.

*Use litter barrels placed at rest areas and other sites along the state highways. Some 1,400 such containers are provided by the department for litter disposal.

*Encourage officials to establish local refuse disposal facilities to help stop the use of roadside containers for household trash.

In addition to litter cleanup, which continues year-round, the department's spring cleaning chores include re-painting trash barrels and cleaning and repairing picnic tables and other facilities at rest areas, waysides, and picnic

Time To Prune Spring Flowering Shrubs

All spring flowering shrubs have faded by now – and it is time to prune them to get larger flowers the next year.

Spring flowering shrubs need to be pruned after the flowers fade and before new growth starts, said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home horticulture Diane Relf.

Here are some of the common spring flowering shrubs and their pruning requirements.

Azalea prune branches to promote new growth. Remove sucker shoots from the base of the plant.

Dogwood – prune three-year-old stems of shrubs to promote new growth. Trees may be grown to their natural shape without pruning.

Firethorn (Pyracantha) – Prune lightly to control the size and shape. Severe pruning reduces the number of berries on the plant.

Forsythia – Cut old stems to the ground as necessary to promote new growth.

Lilac – Remove suckers and old flowers.

Rockspray (Cotoneaster) – Prune branches to control size and shape.

Spirea – Some common early flowering types are bridalwreath, garland, reeves, thunberg, and vanhoutte. Remove three-year-old wood and prune branches to shape the plant.

Camping Has Dangers

With the advent of warm weather, Virginians are beginning to make their plans for camping. A Virginia Tech Extension specialist warned them not to forget the potential dangers of outdoor living.

Robert L. McElwee, Extension specialist in forestry and outdoor recreation, noted that campers should know how to take care of themselves and always use caution in handling their equipment.

Campers are advised to either arrive at their campsites during daylight or have lamps strong enough to show the lay of the land. More than one novice has pitched camp after dark to discover his tent borders on a ditch or cliff when the sun comes up.

"Avoid overhanging cliffs and dry stream beds that could flood in a sudden downpour. Stay away from marshy, low-lying areas that may harbor mosquitos and other insects. Pick high ground with natural drainage, away from trees with large dead limbs that could blow down," said the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty member.

He advised campers to tour the surrounding areas for possible hazards while there is light.

He reminded campers to take along their own water unless they are sure there is a nearby place with an approved source of pure drinking water.

Mountain weather is notoriously fickle so hikers should be dressed accordingly. A mild day can abruptly change to chilly and wet. Hikers who are poorly dressed for cold weather risk hypothermia, a gradual but drastic lowering of body temperature which can be fatal.

McElwee said campers should be alert to all weather signs. Distant lightning, towering thunderheads and low clouds moving rapidly all signal a storm.

"If you are caught in a lightning storm, don't stand under tall trees. Look for clumps of low trees, surrounded by taller ones, or find a low place or ditch to wait it out. However, avoid dry stream beds."

Thousands of injuries occur each year while campers are using portable cooking, lighting and heating equipment. Many of these would never have happened if campers had followed the manufacturers' directions.

But only flame-retardant tents. Umbrella or cabin-type ones that aren't flame retardant can burn in 40 seconds to three minutes. Sleeping bags should be flame retardant, too. Assume materials can burn unless they are labeled flame retardant.

Keep 20 feet or more between the tent and cooking stoves and heaters. Be sure the campfire is even farther from the tent because the fire will throw sparks.

McElwee advised that when filling and using lanterns, stoves and heaters, they should be placed on solid footing so they won't topple. Check connections for leaks and use a funnel to avoid spills.

Always fill equipment in the open; never in a closed room or tent, near sparks or a lit cigarette. Never refuel while equipment is warm. Wait a few moments after filling for the vapor to be gone before striking a match, he said.

If the camper has a hatchet or an ax, make sure it's sharp. A sharp cutting edge sticks when it hits while a dull one may glance off and wound someone. Kneel on one or both knees when using a hatchet and place a block of wood under the piece being cut.

A better alternative is to take a bow or folding saw which can be stored with a protective cover over the teeth.

Finally, he recommended staying with the campfire until it is out Smother it with dirt, douse it with water and then stir the ashes with a stick for a final check. At night, turn a lantern or flashlight on the area as live coals or embers don't always glow in the dark.

Research Shows Old Way Best

Retaining the exquisite taste of garden fresh vegetables is the goal of the person preserving food. Using a microwave oven for blanching may not be the way to do it.

Research in Virginia Tech's department of human nutrition and foods comparing conventional blanching and microwave oven blanching found that there is a difference in flavor between the two processes

The conventional method produced better tasting vegetables.

The two graduate students working on the project, Susan Glasscock of Morgantown, W. Va., and Becky Young, Westernport, Md., were interested in the effect of enzymes on frozen vegetables. Enzymes cause vegetables to mature. Blanching -- placing the vegetables in boiling water for specific periods of time -- is necessary to inactivate the enzymes.

"Enzymes have to be inactivated or they will continue to ripen the product causing loss of flavor and color," said Ms. Glasscock at a meeting of Virginia Extension agents. They were cooking on food safety with Jo Anne Barton, Virginia Tech Extension specialist in foods and nutrition.

The experiments included broccoli, cauliflower, carrots, green beans and zucchini – vegetables commonly grown in home vegetable gardens and frozen to preserve them.

The vegetables were divided. Half of each kind were prepared by blanching on the top of a stove for the time recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the other half were blanched in a microwave oven according to directions from the manufacturer.

They were frozen and tested after one month, two months and four months.

The graduate students tested the flavor both subjectively and objectively.

The graduate students tested the flavor both subjectively and objectively. Subjectively, a panel of 15 persons tasted the vegetables and rated them on sensory perception, color, texture and overall acceptability. Objectively, they used instruments to compare certain features of food such as color and texture.

Overall the vegetables blanched using the conventional top-of the-stove method were rated much better by the members of the taste panel and received comparably better ratings using the instruments.

The instruments used included a Hunter Color Difference Meter which compared colors. Color can be measured because color changes are affected by chemical changes such as the green from chlorophyll changing the pheophytin, which has an olive-gray color. The Warner Bratzler Shear measured the texture by calculating how much pressure it took to shear the vegetable.

The individuals on the taste panel tasted the vegetables in a side-by side comparison so they could be influenced by the differences in color and texture produced by the microwave oven and conventional methods.

10-Month Rainfall Record Low

Rainfall in the Tennessee Valley for the past 10 months is the lowest on record for any June through March period, TVA announced.

During the past 10 months, rainfall has averaged 29.3 inches across the Valley region, about 14 inches below normal. The previous low for such a 10-month period was 29.9 inches for June 1930 through March 1931.

TVA reservoir operations personnel have warned that, without a major change in rainfall over the remaining spring months, the prospect for reaching normal summer lake levels this year on tributary reservoirs is dim. The longer the drought continues the bleaker the prospects become barring near flood conditions.

Rainfall for March averaged 3.8 inches across the Valley. This was about 2 inches below the long-range mean for the month but was above the record low of 1.2 inches set in 1910.

In the eastern portion of the Valley, above Chattanooga, average rainfall in March was 3.2 inches, 2.3 inches below normal. Below Chattanooga, rainfall for March averaged 4.3 inches, 1.7 inches below normal.

Since January 1, rainfall across the Valley averaged 9.4 inches compared to a record low in 1941 of 7.3 inches. Valley rainfall was about six inches below normal for the first three months of the year.

As a result of the drought, tributary lake levels were also well below normal for this time of year. Douglas Lake was at elevation 962.6 feet compared to a normal for the end of March of 970 feet.

Norris was at 981.1 feet compared to a normal of 1004 feet; Fontana was at 1618.2 feet compared to a normal of 1657 feet; Cherokee was at 1032.5 feet compared to a normal of 1046 feet; and Normandy was at 859.0 feet compared to a level of 866 feet for this time of year with more normal rainfall.

Hydroelectric generation in March was 662,245 megawatthours, the lowest amount since 1943 when TVA dams produced 651,000 megawatthours of electricity.

In another comparison, for the week ending March 28, 1981, TVA's four nuclear units supplied 660,493 megawatthours in that single week.

For the period from June 1980 through March 1981, hydroelectric generation was 10,825,067 megawatthours compared to a normal generation for the period of 15,019,000 megawatthours.

A single integrated circuit computer chip can contain the electronic capacity of 100,000 vacuum tubes.

Dry Weather Harms Seedlings

Alfalfa, grass-clover and other forage seedings made last fall may come up in thin stands this spring.

The dry fall combined with the dry, cold, and open winter will likely take its toll on the small seedlings, said Harlan E. White, Extension forage specialist at Virginia Tech.

As soon as the seedlings begin to "green up" and the producer can determine the stand, he should decide if the stand is adequate. If it is thin and doesn't have enough plants to result in a productive field, consideration should be given to reseeding.

"If there is at least 30-40 percent stand with few weed problems, the stand can often be improved by simply seeding on top of the thin stand with a grain drill or sod seeder," said White. "The soil is usually in good condition from last fall and the plants that did survive can be saved."

Depending on how much of the stand survived, one half to three-fourths of the normal seeding rate should be used. This overseeding should be done as soon as soil conditions permit to give the overseeded plants every opportunity to become established. Additional fertilization should not be necessary if proper fertilization procedures were carried out last fall.

Some people once believed that mountains were formed by an enormous underground serpent moving about.

Pennington Holds Off Jonesville, Wins 6-5

Last Thursday afternoon, Jack Rasnic's Bobcats took a 5-0 lead after two innings, and a 6-3 lead after six, but had to kill a Bulldog rally in the seventh to win 6-5.

Jonesville outhit Pennington eight to six but couldn't make them count. The Bobcats only earned one of the six runs which was a homerun by Gary Pendergraft, his second of the year. Pendergraft also went the distance on the mound to get the win, raising his record to 5-0.

Lambert was the starter for Jonesville, but Gary Oaks finished up. Lambert took the loss.

The Bulldogs trailed 6-5 in the seventh inning, and had the bases loaded and nobody out, but couldn't get a hit as two ground outs and strikeout ended the game.

Jonesville will host Keokee Monday in a doubleheader, while Pennington will be at home tomorrow in a doubleheader against Thomas Walker.

Keokee Mountaineers Hand Rye Cove 16 - 3 Setback

This past Thursday evening, the Keokee Mountaineers got their seventh straight win, by handing Rye Cove a 16-3 loss.

Mickey Hubbard started the game on the mound and went five innings. He gave up three runs on four hits, giving way to Kip Phillips who worked the last two innings, allowing only one base hit.

The Mountaineers pushed across three runs in the first, and came back with seven more in the second. By the time Rye Cove managed to cross the plate for the first time, it was 15-0 in favor of Keokee.

Keokee hit the ball the whole game with authority, as they banged out seventeen hits, but coach Roger Morris feels the Mountaineers are still not hitting like they can.

Keokee hit five home runs in the game with Kip Phillips smacking two. Chig Davis, Jesse Robbins, and Dwayne Phillips hit the other three. Kip Phillips and Tim McElyea were the leading hitters for Keokee as they each had 3 for 5 performances.

Dennis Stanley who started on the hill for the Eagles went only one inning, giving up five runs. He was relieved by Scott Bowen who finished up, allowing Keokee eleven more runs. Stanley was the losing pitcher.

FmHA Raises Interest Rates For Farm Programs

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Farmers Home Administration will increase its interest rates for farm program loans effective at close of business on Friday, April 3, according to acting Administrator Dwight Calhoun.

Interest rates for Farmers Home Administration loans fluctuate closely with the cost of money to the U.S. Treasury, rates charged by private rural lending institutions, and those charged in the general money market, Calhoun said.

The interest rate for FmHA farm ownership loans will increase by one percentage point, from 12.25 percent to 13.25.

Farm operating loans and economic emergency loans will also increase by one point, from 13 percent interest to 14 percent.

The interest rate for loans to cover actual losses due to a natural disaster for farmers who can also obtain credit from other sources will increase from 13.375 percent to 14 percent.

The interest on farm disaster loans in excess of actual loss will also increase. For production loans the interest rate increases from 13 percent to 14.5 percent and for real estate loans, from 12.25 percent to 13.25 percent.

USDA Reports Major Funds In Agriculture

The United States Department of Agriculture recently released the results of a study on some of the major trends that are occurring in agriculture. For many years, trends in U.S. Agriculture have been toward greater technological advances, declining margins, declining numbers of farms, and increasingly larger farms.

-2000 farms per week have gone out of business since 1950

-9000 farm residents per week relocated between 1960 and 1976.

Average farm size increased from 175 acres in 1940 to 450 acres in 1979.

-Non-farmers may own as much as 50 percent of the farmland.

-2 percent of all farms control over 37 percent of the sales

-Of the people who own farm and ranchland, only 25 percent are classified by the Department of Agriculture as farmers.

The nation has generally benefitted from technological advances and growth in size, according to USDA, in that higher productivity has led to low and stable food prices. However, recent data has suggested that if the trends continue unabated, the secondary impacts may well be a loss of farm sector resiliency, a decline in rural viability, a cutback in efforts to conserve our fertile soil, and less competition.

Shaky Singer

Q. I attend a small country church and am the only alto in the entire congregation. Therefore I sing the leading parts sometimes where alto sings alone, and I get so frightened I shake uncontrollably. I can't keep my hands still. I've been told I sing well and I want to use whatever talent I have. But the trembling is so humiliating. Can you tell me a solution to this embarrassing problem?

A. Before your body shakes, your thoughts shake. So, to control your thoughts hold a picture of yourself as getting a lot of fun out of singing a solo. Form and hold a mental image of yourself as in perfect control and having a good time out of your choir work.

This advice works. I know it does for, as a public speaker, I have had a similar problem and I have practiced the above suggestions

Perhaps you will find help in our booklet Overcoming Anxiety and Fear which is on its way to you. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564.

Broken-hearted Grandparents

Q. Our son and his wife were divorced, and she remarried a very nice guy. We like him and he invited us to his home and made us welcome so we could see our two grandsons. Now our former daughter-in-law has turned on us and does not want us to write, call or see the children. The last time our son called she would not let him speak to his sons. What in God's name can we do? Which way can we turn? This is so heart-breaking as we had these children so much and now to be denied them is more than I can take.

A. It is indeed heart-breaking and further it seems an irrational attitude that is being taken by your former daughter-in-law. Usually the court allows visiting rights for the father to be with his children.

It is up to your son to press his rights. Then you will be able to see the children when they visit him. And perhaps in time the new husband, who seems a sensible sort, will convice the mother to be reasonable and human.

Does He Know?

Q. I lost my husband a few months ago. He passed on to live with God. Do you think he still knows who I am, that I am still his wife? And do you think he sees what I do in my mortal life? Does he know our children which he left behind? Does he still know we are his family and does he still love us? The Bible says there's no sorrow in heaven. Well, looks like if he knew us and knew we still loved him he would grieve over us and want to come back to us. We were together for 35 years and all at once he was gone. It is so hard.

A. I can only give you my personal opinion. Yes, I think your husband knows you and cares for you and your children. Time on earth and time in the afterlife may be very different, "For a thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past."

He doesn't grieve for you because he knows that where he is, the time until you come is but a fleeting moment. And you are all going to be happy together.

Tenderizing Meat

Price and color are the first features of red meat considered by consumers, but tenderness is the next - and it is on tenderness that the meat packing firm can have an effect.

"Meat packing firms go to some length to provide tender products to attract consumers," said Virginia Tech Extension specialist in food technology Norman G. Marriott.

Aging is the most common conventional method. Meat, held between eight and 14 days, will achieve a tenderness that is about optimum. Longer aging doesn't improve tenderness much more. This is an expensive process, he added, tying up refrigerator space, and so adding to the cost of the meat.

Enzyme treatments also have been used with some success, to increase the tenderness of some cuts of meat. In one, a combination of enzymes was injected into the animal just prior to slaughter. The enzyme had no effect until heat was applied in the cooking process.

"This had a few problems," Marriott said, "in cuts that were cooked quickly - steaks and hamburgers - there was an insufficient tenderizing effect. In slow cooked cuts such as a roast, there was too much tenderizing."

A later method introduced the enzyme after slaughter so that there was more control of the cuts involved.

Mechanical tenderization is a very effective method that primarily involves tenderizing the muscle fiber but it is not as effective on the connective tissue. One means used is to put the cut of meat under a series of small blades which shear the muscle fibers.

One of the most modern tenderizing methods is electrical stimulation. It involves the use of about 100 volts applied to the carcass for 60 seconds in a series of shocks about 1 second long. It reduces the aging period to about three days, said Marriott. The violent contraction caused by the electrical shock disrupts the muscle fiber and tenderizes the meat.

Research continues on other methods to make meat more tender and also to make more use of the under-used cuts to minimize cost increases. Tenderizing some of the less tender beef cuts is one way, said the specialist, who is a member of the Virginia Tech College of Agriculture and Life Sciences faculty.

Chairpersons For Mental Health Campaign Announced

Mrs. Evelyn Perkins of Pennington Gap, Mrs. Maxie Bailey of the Stone Creek community, Mrs. Sandra Janeway-Cayloy community have been named chairpersons for the May, 1981, campaign, announced Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor Warner, Honorary Chairperson of the Mental Health Association of Virginia.

Mrs. Perkins will recruit volunteers in the Ben Hur, Dryden, Jonesville, Keokee and St. Charles communities who will make a house-to-house drive.

Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Janeway will recruit volunteers in their respective communities.

"Proceeds will benefit the Mental Health Association in Virginia", said Mrs Warner.

As a non governmental agency the Association can and does speak for the consumer--the person who needs professional help for an emotional disturbance.

"The Association is a moving force to get services established where there are none. It also serves as a monitoring agency to see that treatment services are doing what they were set up to do", Mrs. Warner further stated.

The Mental Health Association is a nationwide, voluntary, non-governmental organization dedicated to the promotion of mental health, the prevention of mental illness, and the improved care and treatment of the mentally ill. Its 850 Chapters and divisions, and more than one million citizen volunteers work toward these goals through a wide range of activities in education, volunteer services, social action and advocacy, and research.

No. 805 -- Shedding New Light On Cholesterol

In recent years many of us have heard about cholesterol and saturated fats in our diet, and their supposed "connection" to heart disease. This issue has been stated through every available means, including television commercials and product advertisers. We have been told that by lowering our cholesterol intake, we lower our risk to heart disease Despite all the publicity, this is not an established fact.

Cholesterol is carried in the blood by several different types of large molecules called lipoproteins (from "lipid" for fat, plus protein). One type, known as low-density lipoproteins (LDL), has been associated with increased risk of heart disease. Research studies indicate that some people have 2-3 times the usual levels of LDL cholesterol in their blood. These people have an inherited disorder as familiar hypercholesterolemia.

High cholesterol in the blood causes fatty deposits to form on the blood vessels. If your body naturally produces double or triple the usual levels of cholesterol, then your risk of coronary heart disease may become as many as five times greater.

Recently, at the Cardiovascular Research Center at the University of California in San Francisco, Dr. John P. Kane directed a new research study on cholesterol levels among sufferers of familiar hypercholesterolemia. The study used the drug colestipol and niacin, one of the B vitamins. This combination of colestipol and niacin dramatically lowers the cholesterol level, cutting it almost in half. According to Dr. Kane, "with this group of people we finally have an effective treatment that can completely normalize the level of LDL-cholesterol."

Until now there has not been a treatment for "abnormally" high levels of LDL cholesterol in our blood. The advertising media, many writers, and, in fact, many scientists have confused us with the words "risk factors" as though they were the "causes" of heart disease. They have urged, and in some instances persuaded us to lower our potential risk to coronary heart disease by changing our diet.

Dietary reductions of cholesterol may be warranted on an individual basis, but it can still be achieved by eating a wide, balanced variety of foods from the four food groups - milk, meat, fruits and vegetables and grains. Lowering cholesterol does not necessarily warrant a drastic diet modification for the healthy adult population

Barter's Spring Festival Opens With "The Fantasticks"

One of the first signs of Spring in Abingdon, Virginia is the opening of Barter Theatre with busloads of students from the surrounding five state area arriving to experience the excitement of live, professional stage productions.

The Fantasticks, opening on April 16 will be the first of two Spring Festival productions. The Fantasticks is a romantic story about young love and the realities of life, ingeniously presented through clever staging. This musical classic by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt is now in its twenty first year in New York and was the best received production in the Barter Playhouse history when it was produced here in 1979.

The Fantasticks returns to Abingdon after a very successful five week tour of eighteen cities and towns in Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio and Tennessee.

Performances for The Fantasticks will include special early matinees on Tuesdays through Fridays for school groups and shows on Friday at 8:30 p.m., Saturday at 2:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and Sunday at 7:00 p.m. for the general public. The Fantasticks will run through May 9.

The second play of the Spring Festival will be Home of the Brave, opening May 12. This is a powerful story by Arthur Laurents concerning a group of American soldiers performing a secret mission on a Japanese occupied island during World War II.

Home of the Brave will also have early matinees on Tuesdays through Fridays for school groups and weekend shows for the public through May 24. The last week of Home of the Brave, May 26 through May 30, will begin Barter's regular performance schedule with evening performances Tuesday and Thursdays at 8:00 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., Sundays at 7:00 p.m. and matinees Wednesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 2:00 p.m.

Helmets, Big Safety Factor For Motorcyclists

Unhelmeted motorcyclists are twice as likely to receive head injuries and three times more likely to die of head injuries than helmeted riders, according to the Virginia Department of Transportation Safety (VDTS).

"The helmet is the most important lifesaving accessory for motorcyclists," advised VDTS Director John T. Hanna. "It greatly reduces the chance of brain damage, a fractured skull or a broken neck.

"Motorcycle fatatlities rose by 21 in Virginia last year, partly due to the increase of motorcycle sales and resistrations. That's even more reason for maintaining our mandatory helmet law," he added.

In 1979, riders ages 25 and under represented the majority of Virginia's motorcycle deaths. This group makes up only 23 percent of all licensed motor vehicles.

Recently VDTS has noted a shift toward more fatal noncollision and fixed object accidents involving motorcycles. However, in Virginia, most motorcycle accidents result from collisions with other vehicles on urban streets between noon and midnight.

"That's further proff for cooperation among cyclists and motorists on our high ways," Hanna said. "Each must be aware of the other's driving intentions."

Accidents involving unhelmeted riders also represent huge economic losses nationally. The 28 repealed helmet law states could annually save an estimated $16 18 million, mostly in medical costs, as reported by the "American Journal of Public Health."

Motorcycle deaths climbed over 4,800 nation wide in 1979, a 46 percent increase over 1976, when congress withdrew U.S. Department of Transportation authority to levy sanctions on states without helmet laws.

"Repeal of a state motor cycle helmet law is typically followed by a 30 percent increase in motorcycle fatalities," Hanna said.

When buying a helmet, motorcyclists should select a government approved one that fastens securely. It should be well ventilated, providing maximum peripheral vision.

A face mask or goggles aids against eye strain, glare, dust, insects and wind, which can seriously hinder a motorcyclist's ability to drive safely.

"Manufacturers recommend replacing helmets about every four years because of wear from stress after constant use," Hanna said.

1981 Virginia Campground Directory Available

In preparation for what is expected to be a banner year for the camping industry, the Virginia Travel Council has released the 1981 edition of Campgrounds in Virginia, a guide to major campgrounds in the state.

More than 75 campgrounds are featured in the Virginia Travel Council publication with information keyed to a state map showing the location of each. All of the publicly owned campgrounds also are described and smaller privately owned camps are listed.

Other useful information included in the publication is a list of major Virginia attractions and data on toll facilities in Virginia. The design of the map-guide permits it to be used in travel folder racks or to be used as a self mailer.

More than 100 thousand copies of the map-guide are being distributed throughout the eastern United States and Virginia. Chambers of Commerce and travel attractions throughout the State, the Virginia State Travel Service information centers in Virginia, Washington, D.C. and New York, travel shows and missions, travel offices and private information centers and campground members feature the publication in their distribution system

In addition, copies are available by sending 50 cents for postage and handling to the Virginia Travel Council, 7619 Brook Road, P.O. Box 15067, Richmond, Virginia, 23227, or by visiting the VT Council office

Pioneer Extension Homemakers Meet

The April meeting of the Pioneer Extension Homemakers Club was held at the Clinic Community Room, in Ewing, on the 15th, with Rozetta Crumley presiding.

Miss Fern Jones conducted devotions on the topic "What's the Width of Your Cross?" with Scripture reading from St. Matthew.

Mrs. Rachel Ramsey presented an interesting program on the Care of House Plants, and the members exchanged flower cuttings for Spring planting.

A report was also made on the planting of beautiful azalea shrubs in front of the Ewing Post Office.

Announcements were made regarding the County wide Spring meeting to be held on April 30th at Pennington Gap United Methodist Church from 9 a.m. to noon, followed by lunch.

Also, May 3-9 is National Extension Homemakers Week.

Among club members and community volunteers who will be starting on May 1st "ringing doorbells" in the area to solicit funds for the State and County Mental Health Program are: Bess Brooks, Ethel Crumley, Jean Hatfield, Louzana Marcum, Lisa Dean, Nancy Bellamy, Peggy Doyle, Mae Mink, Cecile Hoskins, Linda Lee, Renee Littrell, Lillian Brooks, Marie Feller, Rachel Ramsey, and Jewel Glass.

Hostesses, Mrs. Mary Bays and Mrs. Jean Hatfield, served refreshments to the twenty members present including new members, Pearl Harris, and Louise Crumley.

Women's Presbyterial Guest Of Mt. Carmel W.V.C.

Mrs. Claudia Turner, chairman of District II of the Women's Presbyterial, accompanied by Mrs. Eva Bryant, wife of Rev. Acie Bryant, pastor of Presbyterian Church, Gate City, were guests on Tuesday afternoon, April 15th, of the Mt. Carmel Presbyterian Women of the Church, in Rose Hill.

The regular Bible Study Program was conducted under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Emmett, president, on the topic Freedom of a Sovereign God, as found in Isaiah 45:1-13, and was held in the home of Rev. and Mrs. Harry Painter at the Church Manse.

Bible readings and discussions were contributed on the subject by those present, and followed by a circle of prayer. A quotation by a noted theologian, given by Mrs. Turner, stated that there may be a great person is the one great person who makes everyone else feel small, but, the really great person is the one who makes everyone feel great.

Devotions were conducted on the topic, "Thank You, Father, for a New Lease on Life", based on Revelation 21:15, "Behold, I make everything new", and included these thoughts: "Right now, I will release the past and begin everything new. With God's Spirit within me, I now forgive; I forget resentful and critical thoughts. I remind myself that I am made in the likeness of God, and can see and appreciate the good that is inherent with in me.

I see myself and others in a different light, so that I bless all people, and look for the Christ within them I see the possibilities for good where before I saw only lack and limitation.

There are new opportunities instead of closed doors. Now I feel a new strength and a new spirit of optimism; a happiness and joy I had not known before. I feel new creation, and a new courage ... Thank You, God, for a new lease on Life."

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Painter, hostess, served refreshments during a period of fellowship

Historical Homes In Virginia --- Topic Of Homemakers

Mrs Van B. Grabeel and Mrs. M. H. Shackleferd were co hostesses to the Rose Hill Homemakers Club at the Grabeel home on the afternoon of April 10th, with Mrs. C. Willard Davis, presiding

Devotions conducted by Mrs. P. L. Grabeel, centered on the Easter Message

An informative program on Historical Homes in Virginia was presented by Miss Bashie Kincaid, with special emphasis on two homes now standing at Ewing, Va.

She told of the George Gibson home which was originally built for or by James Johnston Gibson, probably soon after his marriage to Lucy Ann Ball in 1830, and is usually known as the George W. Gibson home as J. J.'s tenth son, born 1848 was George Washington Gibson, and the following three generations also had a George Gibson born in this house, making five generations living there, and a sixth generation who is now living in the state of Georgia, and is named Tom III, visits his grandmother there now.

This house was originally one large room, built of logs, and had a winding stairway to the second floor, and a kitchen which was built a few feet from the main house which had the traditional wide and tall fireplace where the cooking was done in earlier years.

A few rods from the house were a few slave houses, and J.J. had six sons who participated in the Confederate Southern Army

The kitchen was later joined to the Main House making two chimneys in the kitchen. Two additions were also added to the house, one being used for an office for Dr. James Gibson, son of the first George Gibson. Dr. Gibson later moved to Lexington, Ky. to live.

All the house has been weatherboarded or built as a frame house and kept painted. For several years, a saddle house stood in the yard, and many barns, cellars, cribs, smoke houses and graineries were near by.

The original owner, James Johnston Gibson was a merchant and farmer, and in 1842-43 he served one term in the Virginia Legislature.

The second home described by Miss Kincaid is now known as the Kincaid Home, and owned by Mr. Fred Stickley of Clintwood. Superintendent of Schools there. Originally, this house was a log cabin also, and probably was built by Moses Ball who married Elizabeth Yeary in 1789 and purchased land in this area which became Lee County in 1792.

The house was inherited by their son William Ball who married Elizabeth Smith Gibson. (granddaughter of the Major George Gibson who also came to this area around 1790 and lived in the area later known as Gibson Station). They were known as Betsy and Billy Ball, and it was their son, Smith Ball, who left the house a generation later to his daughter, Elizabeth Ball, who married Mr. Frank Kincaid.

Their son owned a brick plant in Rose Hill, and it was then that the house around 1900 1910 was veneered with brick and has been a modern and handsome building for years.

In recent years, huge, hand-hewn timbers were found to be in the foundation of the first part of the house.

After Miss Kincaid's humorous reminiscences of living in the home, the group showed appreciation by applause.

Mrs. Jewel Glass was in charge of Recreation and conducted a Bible Quiz game with Mrs. Snyder Harris getting the most correct answers.

The hostesses, Mrs. Grabeel and Mrs. Shackleferd served a dessert plate to the fourteen members present.

Study Seeks Heart Attack Victims

"Can heart attacks be prevented by lowering cholesterol?" is the question facing a team of University of Arkansas researchers conducting a study of the relationship between heart disease and cholesterol.

Most heart trouble results from atherosclerosis or hardening of the arteries. A clue to the cause of artherosclerosis may be that cholesterol, a fatty substance, is found in the diseased arteries. However, it is still uncertain whether cholesterol lowering can actually prevent heart attacks

The University is seeking persons who have only one heart attack in the past five (5) years and who are between the ages of 30 and 64. For more information, interested persons are requested to call the University of Arkansas Hyperlipidemia Program's toll free number 1 800 643 8719 Arkansas residents are asked to call 661 5291 collect.

Keokee News

By Eula Clarkston

The busy days leave little time for writing. But if someone did not take the time to write there would not be very many books and newspapers published.

As listed in history the first permanent American newspaper was published in Boston on April 24, 1704.

In those early years there was little to encouarge Virginians to be writers. There were only a few newspapers published at that time. Most of the people preferred books written by English authors.

Through the years the publication of newspapers and books have grown by leaps and bounds and today in our present time millions of newspapers are published every day. The newspapers bring to us world news and also many interesting news stories. The newspaper has become a part of our every day living.

The spring days have been sunny and warm the past week. The fruit trees are in full bloom, and in the woodland the red bud trees and white flowering trees make a fine showing, also a bit of greenery on some trees and soon the dog woods will be blooming. The grass is now a soft carpet of green dotted with purple violets and yellow dandelions.

"Oh, yes, springtime is a beautiful time of the year."

—Mrs. Ben Livsey of Kingsport, Tn., was a guest a few days recently at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Maude Barker. They enjoyed being together again and Maude was happy to have her visit at that time.

—Mrs. Maxie Morris has returned home after spending three months in Dayton, Ohio with her seven daughters and their families. Maxie had a delightful time while she was in Dayton but we are glad she is back home again.

Her son, Louie Morris came from Cumberland, Ky., on Sunday and Mrs. Morris accompanied him back home where she enjoyed dinner with his family. Then they returned to Keokee in the afternoon.

—Get well wishes to Rubye Barker of Alexandria, Va., who recently underwent surgery. We hope she will be well and fine again soon.

Rubye's niece, Rissie Cummings and three of her friends from Norton, Va., spent the Easter weekend in Alexandria with Rubye and they also visited Washington Temple with a Church group.

Reminders Offered By ASCS

Max Graham, Vice Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, offers farmers these reminders:

Land Ownership Changes - The County Committee has established May 1 as the final date to report ownership changes that require a cropland determination. For changes reported after this date, the division of the tobacco quota and normal crop acreage will not become effective until 1982.

Acreage Reports - Reports are now being taken on the fall seeded crops of wheat, barley, rye, and oats. By simply filing an accurate and timely acreage report, farmers will obtain (1) low yield (Free Insurance); (2) Target price benefits under the 1981 Wheat and Feed Grain Programs. There is no set-aside or planting limitation requirement for 1981. Farmers are encouraged to file a report of their corn acreage as soon as it is planted.

Federal Crop Insurance: Tobacco producers may protect their crops against all natural causes of loss by obtaining "All-Risk" Federal Crop Insurance through May 20. The premium rate is only $2.70 per each $100 of coverage.

Agricultural Conservation Program - Participants are encouraged to perform their practices timely. Most practices are due to be performed by May 15.

Battered Women Workshop

A free battered women workshop will be held April 28, 29 and 30 at the Pennington Gap Library at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m.

The film We Will Not Be Beaten will be shown. "This powerful documentary offers compelling stories from a wide variety of women who have suffered horrible abuse from their husbands ... contains much interesting material and helps to explain why some women stay with abusive husbands, why calling the police doesn't help and how shelters give abused women needed psychological support."

Ownership Changes Need To Be Reported To ASCS

Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, Roy J. Myers, reminds farmers to report land ownership changes promptly to the county office in order for the farm quotas and allotments to be divided effective for 1981 crop year. "May 1 has been established by the County Committee as the final date to report owner ship changes that require a cropland determination," Myers said. Changes reported after this date will not take effect until 1982.

Myers also reminds farmers that accurate acreage reports for corn under the 1981 Feed Grain Program should be filed. Also important is the acreage report for tobacco under the Federal Crop Insurance. Measurement service is available, at cost, through the ASCS Office for early measurement of crops. The minimum charge is $14.50 per farm. For more information and rates, farmers are asked to call or come by the ASCS Office.

Landownership Changes And Fall Crops Need To Be Reported To ASCS

Roy J. Myers, Chairman of the Lee County ASC Committee, reminds landowners of the need to report ownership changes by May 1, 1981. "In order for the farm tobacco quota and normal crop acreage (NCA) allotments to be divided effective for the 1981 crop year, ownership changes must be reported by May 1" said Myers. Landownership changes reported after May 1 will not become effective until the 1982 crop year.

Myers aldo reminds farmers who have acreages planted to wheat, barley, rye and oats of the need to file an acreage report of these crops at the ASCS office. By filing an accurate and timely report, farmers will be eligible to receive free insurance protection in the event they sustain a loss of 40 percent or greater to their barley, wheat, corn, and sorghum crops. Target price protection is also available

Under the terms of the 1981 Feed Grain and Wheat Programs, producers are not required to set-aside land or restrict their planted acreages.

Low yield and target price protection is available to all producers who file a timely and accurate acreage report.

White Rocks Garden Club Learns Landscaping Tips

"There are more different varieties of plants in this tri state area than anywhere else in the world," stated Harley Young as he addressed White Rocks Garden Club members during their March 23rd program meeting.

Mr. Young was introduced to the group by President Carolyn Davis at the home of Robin Doyle. His topic was "Landscaping," and he made many suggestions including types of grass good for lawns in this area, and a schedule for fertilizing those lawns.

He distributed landscape planting plans and a booklet - 'Guide for the Beginning Gardener," to each member.

Jewell Bays and Peggy Doyle assisted Robin Payne as hostesses in serving refreshments of chicken salad, crackers, relishes, cake and coffee or tea to Charlotte Brooks, Betty Brown, Carolyn Davis, Rita Graham and Andra Harris. Also, Jacinta Hensley, Judy Hounshell, Carol Skeen, Sue Welch and Harley Young.

The next meeting is scheduled for April 27 at the home of Peggy Doyle. Guest speaker Sandy Janeway will address the club on "Silk Flowers."

State Chamber Adopts Reapportionment Position

The Virginia State Chamber of Commerce will call on the Virginia General Assembly, during its re apportionment session to begin April 29, to draw the 10 Virginia congressional district lines so that no political unit of local government (city, county or town) will be divided into two or more congressional districts. The Chamber's position was developed by its executive committee, meeting April 14

The Virginia Chamber feels that the Assembly must make every effort possible to uphold the integrity of units of local government. Splitting a county or city into two or more congressional districts causes confusion among the public, difficulties in presenting problems and plans of local government to Congress, and is philosophically wrong, according to the Chamber

According to Chamber President Norwood W Wilson, Jr., (Hopewell), "Virginia's long-standing tradition of excellence in public service may be in jeopardy if the Assembly divides units of local government into two or more congressional districts. Such a system is wrong and creates great confusion among the voters."

Daniel Boone Trail Study Brochure Available

The National Park Service recently announced the availability of an information brochure explaining the details of the Daniel Boone Trail Study being conducted in Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia.

Neal G Guse, acting southeast regional director, said the park service is seeking opinions from the public on the route of the proposed trail and information about Boone's explorations

The study, authorized by Congress in 1976, will evaluate the possible establishment of a national scenic or historic trail following the westward route of the 18th century explorer The study area extends 350 miles from Statesville, N.C., to Fort Boonesborough State Park, Ky., crossing 34 counties in the four states

Virginia counties identified as potential Boone trail locations are Lee, Russell, Scott, Washington, Wise and Grayson

Copies of the information brochure can be obtained from the National Park Service, Southeast Regional Office, Resource Area Studies Division, 75 Spring St S W, Atlanta, GA 30303

Clean Up Car With Garden Hose

With winter's grime behind us, it's time to bring out the garden hose to lengthen the life of your car, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC)

You may have shined up the exterior of the car, but chances are you might have forgotten about the underfender areas, where moisture laden road salt and or mud cling to develop a breeding ground for rust

If left there, the debris can begin to eat away at the metal surfaces, despite the increased use of galvanized metals, zinc coatings, plastic inner liners and improved sealants.

That's where the garden hose comes in. Turn the nozzle on full force and saturate the under areas of the car. Then use an old broom or brush to loosen up and remove the grime. Spray again to rinse away the residue. Another brushing and spray might be required if the build-up is heavy.

It's a messy job, but will be well worthwhile in keeping away rust, AIC says.

Some automatic car washes have installed power washes to clean these under areas so if you have one nearby you can avoid the garden hose/brush routine, but however you do it get rid of the salt, silt and sand.

At the same time, a car owner might consider cleaning a grease-coated engine by applying a solvent available at auto parts stores. The garden hose then is used to rinse away the cleaner.

Then, of course, you'll have to finish the job by cleaning the driveway.

Tobacco Virus A Problem

Each year tobacco mosaic virus (TMV) is a wide-spread problem in Virginia fields where flue-cured, dark-fired and sun-cured tobacco is grown.

Dean A. Domm, Extension plant pathologist and physiologist at Virginia Tech's Southern Piedmont Research and Continuing Education Center, is reminding growers to use TMV control practices during transplanting operations.

"Tobacco mosaic virus is a body snatcher because it reduced weight and quality of the leaf," explained Komm. "The two major sources for infection by the disease are during transplanting operations and from crop residue from the previous crop."

During transplanting and while handling plants in the plant bed, the hands should be washed in phosphate detergent every 15 minutes. In addition, Komm said the plants should be sprayed with a milk solution before being taken from the bed

"Use five gallons of milk or five pounds of dried milk per 100 square yards of plant bed," recommended Komm. "Tests of the Southern Piedmont Center and on Virginia tobacco farms have shown a tremendous reduction of TMV infection from the plant bed when the plants have been treated with milk and the hands washed in phosphate detergent."

Other practices the Tech specialist recommended to reduce TMV infection of susceptible varieties are:

--Avoid use of tobacco products in the plant bed or field during transplanting.

--Avoid materials used in contact with harvested tobacco.

--Remove plants showing mosaic symptoms before first cultivation.

--Early stalk and root destruction.

--Rotation with a non-susceptible crop.

--Use of a resistant variety such as SC-72 (flue-cured) or VA 312 (dark-fired) will eliminate TMV infection in the field.

"There's no need for yield losses to tobacco mosaic virus," Komm stated. "I hope growers will try the recommended control practices to eliminate this disease."

Old Dominion Power To Upgrade System

Old Dominion Power Company plans to spend over $8,500,000 on several construction projects in the company's service territory during 1981. These expenditures will be required to maintain service reliability and provide capacity for future growth, according to ODP General Manager Harold Armsey.

A new transformer and associated facilities will be added to the Bond Substation at a cost of approximately $85,000. The new equipment will provide additional capacity for growth in the Coeburn area.

Commercial and residential development in the Castlewood area of St. Paul will require the company to construct a new 12,000 volt circuit out of the St. Paul Substation. Cost of this project is estimated at $43,000.

The Dwina Substation near St. Paul will be enlarged and converted from 22,000 to 69,000 volts. The $69,000 project will be necessary to serve new residential, commercial and mining customers.

A cost of $3,030,000 is projected to construct 16 miles of new 500 kilovolt transmission line. The line will run from a new substation at Pocket to the Virginia - Tennessee line, where it will connect with the Tennessee Valley Authority System. The substation is expected to cost nearly $5,000,000. Materials needed for the transmission line construction have been delivered and stockpiled at a railroad delivery point near Dryden.

An additional $300,000 will be spent on various smaller projects to improve and add to the company's distribution system.

"These projects represent the sizeable expenditures necessary to provide for the increasing demand for electricity required for new homes, new businesses, industrial expansion and for more jobs for the people of southwestern Virginia," Armsey stated.

Are You An Overspender?

To solve a problem, you first have to identify it. Here are some signs which may indicate whether you're a chronic overspender

1) Are you still paying bills from purchases made a year ago?

2) Do you use credit cards instead of cash, even when the purchase is small and you have the money?

3) Is your checking account frequently overdrawn?

4) Do you race the clock to get your paycheck to the bank before the checks you've written come in?

5) Are you often broke by payday?

6) Have you stopped having, or adding to, a savings account?

7) Do you sometimes wonder why you made a particular purchase?

8) Do you sometimes give away things you bought because you really didn't need or want them?

9) Are you depressed about your finances?

10) Do you feel "out of control" when faced with a purchasing decision?

11) Do friends or family kid you about your "champagne taste" and "beer budget?"

12) Do you juggle payments one month to the next, trying to keep your creditors satisfied?

13) Are your credit cards unusually at the maximum credit line available to you?

14) Do you shop for recreation?

15) Do you notice mood swings when shopping down before you go up while shopping down again after adding to you bill?

16) Do you sometimes think you will sink financially into bankruptcy if you don't stop spending?

17) Do you sometimes clean up a debt only to find yourself feeling free to spend more?

18) When you receive statements from creditors at tax time are you surprised at how high the interest figure is?

19) Would a small change in your income, or an unusual expense, throw your whole financial picture into chaos?

20) Do you hope your children will handle money better than you do?

If you answered yes more often than no, you are probably a chronic overspender In order to get your finances under control, you must first recognize that you have a very real and serious problem. And, you have to really want to change

Dryden Man One Of 3 Killed In Fiery Crash

Funeral services for Ben Allen Jones, Jr., 21, of Dryden, were held Sunday, April 26, at 2 p.m. at Sturgill Funeral Home Chapel, Jonesville, with the Rev. Darryl Blair officiating. Burial followed in Lee Memorial Gardens.

Jones was one of three victims killed in a fiery, head on collision near Elizabethton, Tenn., on Friday, April 24. Also killed were Bristol, Tenn., residents, Earl Wolfe, 59, and Jerry Trivett, 30.

The crash, which occurred on Highway 19-E about 1:30 a.m., Friday, also hospitalized Jones' wife of about two months, Carolyn Sue Jones, who remains in intensive care and is listed in fair to poor condition at Carter County Memorial Hospital.

According to Tennessee Highway Patrolman, Jess Arnette, who investigated the accident, Jones and his wife, traveling south in their tractor-trailer loaded with coal, apparently collied with a van driven by Wolfe.

Trivett was a passenger in the van. After the collision, the tractor-trailer burst into flames, however, Mrs. Jones escaped the flames having been thrown out of the rig upon impact.

Jones was employed by Roller Motor Company.

He is survived by his wife; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Allen Jones, Sr., Big Stone Gap; one brother, William J. Jones, Big Stone Gap; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. D. L. Jones, Jonesville; and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. E. C. Browning, Meadowview.

Use Of Latest Technology Reduces X-Ray Exposure

When the radiology department at Lee County Community Hospital recently began using Kodak Tonex rare earth intensifying screens and Kodak ortho G films, it immediately cut radiation exposure to patients by 66 percent according to Wayne Watson, R. T. Chief Technologist.

"The new Kodak Tonex screens can also save money and increase efficiency in the department," he said. "The speed of exposure helps reduce the number of x-ray examinations that must be redone if the patient moves. The less time it takes for the exposure the less likelihood of movement blurring the x-ray study, which reduces the number of retakes," he said.

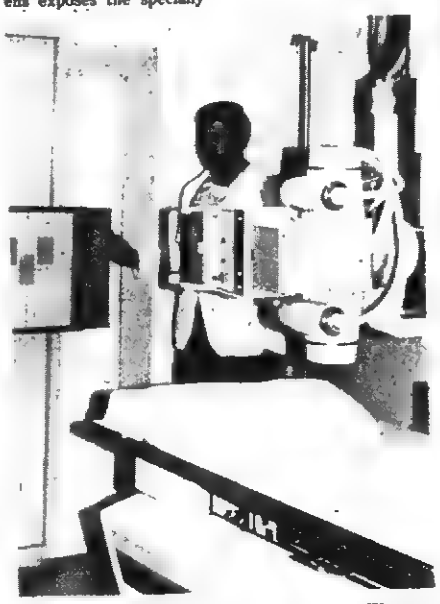
But it is the reduction in radiation exposure to patients and staff that Dr. Shir Navani considers most important.

Everyone involved in the use of diagnostic x rays is concerned with minimizing unnecessary exposures to achieve a diagnosis.

The opportunity to reduce x-ray exposure to the patient is one that must always be seized. We have seen the reports in the journals and noted the results of tests of Kodak Tonex screens and Kodak ortho G film, and they indicate that the combination reduces patients' exposure between three and four times that of conventional screen/film combinations.

He also noted that radiologic Technologists and others who work with x rays also are exposed to less radiation, one study indicating a 62-percent reduction to the staff. Protection of the staff has always been carefully controlled and monitored to maintain minimum radiation levels. The new screen/film combination makes it that much easier and provides greater protection.

The new Tonex screens contain phosphorus compounds based on "rare earth" elements "that absorb and convert x rays to eight times more efficiently than ever before. The light emitted by the screens exposes the specially sensitized film to form the diagnostic image.



Radiation Exposure Reduced - Wayne Watson, R.T. Chief Technologist, at the Lee County Community Hospital demonstrates the Kodak Tonex screens and film now being used to reduce radiation exposure.

3 Supervisors Attend Meeting To Discuss School Budget

Only three Lee County Supervisors, Sam Massingill, Bill Thomas and Tevis Wilder, took advantage of the local School Board's April 23 invitation to discuss the 1981 82 proposed school budget. Members of the School Board not present at the evening meeting were Charlie James and Evelyn Humphreys. County Administrator Odell Wilson was also present for the discussion.

During the brief meeting, Lee County Superintendent Bob McCoy, assisted by Phil Hensley, explained the various budget categories and expenditures comprising the School Board's total budget of $10,295,917 -- a 14 percent increase over the past year's budget.

Of this total figure, the County's portion to bear would be $2,798,280 as compared to last year's share of $2,117,000.

Calling the '81 '82 proposal a "subsistence budget," McCoy explained that roughly 78 percent of the request reflects salaries, employee fringe benefits such as hospitalization, social security payments, etc.

If the proposed funding requests are approved by the local supervisors, Lee County's 329 teachers would be among instructional personnel to receive a 12.4 cost of living "plus-a-step" salary increase, raising the current starting pay from $10,604 to $11,732.

The budget would allow for a 13.9-14.2 percent salary increase for non-professional school employees including clerical, janitorial, bus drivers, etc.

Under the category of Administration, $150,939 is being sought for salaries, $100 a month payment for six School Board members, postage, phone, travel, office supplies, etc. This category represents a four percent increase over last year's request.

In the category, Other Instructional Costs, School Board members are seeking $562,412 for such items as clerical, travel expenses, compensation of special education aides, educational television, professional improvement workshops, instructional supplies, library books and free textbooks. McCoy pointed out that Lee County is one of few school division in the state to continue to offer free text books, kindergarten through grade 12. This funding requests is 6.6 percent greater than last year's.

Under the budget heading, Attendance and Health, $23,520 is being sought for payment of a full time school psycholo[illegible] medical examinations for

Flatwoods Senior Class To Present 'Pick A Dilly'

The Flatwoods High Senior Class will present their play "Pick A Dilly" by Jay Tobias on May 1, 1981 at 7:30 p.m. in the gymnasium.

This is an exciting comedy thriller packed tighter with more laughs than anchovies in a tin. Young Rod Benedict will inherit a fortune from his late uncle, Jason Strong, providing he marries one of the three Dilly sisters, April Violet, May Lily, or June Rose.

However, if all the girls refuse Tod's proposal he'll still got most of the fortune. Rod doesn't want to marry and settle down until he is at least thirty. Accordingly, he disguises himself as an illiterate, boorish, wild-and wooly cowpoke, thereby hoping any and all of the Dilly Sisters will refuse to marry him.

From here on, riotous situations occur, each more hilarious than the last. Other hopeful relatives gather for the reading of the will: Opal Dilly, the Dilly sister's Matyr Mamma, Amanda Strong, an acidulous spinster, bossy Arvilla Garvey, her hen pecked husband, Otis and their eleven year old prankish brat, Wilbur.

The dreadful "ha'nt" of Old Betsy, the Horrendous Hag, enlivens the proceedings and when Azariah Coffin, the Mad Mortician, supposedly escapes from a mental hospital and starts to embalm the live ones, the action heads for a dramatic conclusion.

The other characters are June Rose's secret boy friend, Jack Purcell, Rod's sidekick, comic, Tex Larabee, Thaddeus Bleeker, the prim lawyer, Susan Clark, the housekeeper, and Purina Hogg, the maid.

PICK A DILLY will provide an evening of entertainment for all. Admission will be $1.50 and $2.00 at the door.

The cast of characters are: Susan Clark, Sharon Hounshell; Amanda Strong, Penny Pennell; Purina Hogg, Deborah Sexton; Arvilla Garvey, Angel Hensley; Otis Garvey, James Wilson; Wilbur, Michael Glass; Opal Dilly, Lisa Fugate; June Rose, Martha Barber; May Lily, Jennifer Marcum, April Violet, Pam Ayers, Thaddeus Bleeker, Tony Lawson; Rod Benedict.

Cancer Crusade Radiorama Is Successful

Wildel Canter, Cancer Crusade Special Events chairman, and Mrs. Canter are to be congratulated for their organization of the 1981 Cancer Crusade Radiorama. This program, which was organized on very short notice, turned out to be very successful by receiving $1,047.00 in pledges to the Cancer Crusade.

The Cancer Society wishes to thank David Hartley who was emcee for the afternoon, for the volunteering of his time and for the excellent job he did conducting the program. Thanks also to Charlie Province and Ty Harber, who assisted David during the entire program. Janie Holman and Dorothy Scott answered the calls for the radiorama and we appreciate their time.

Other Cancer Society members on hand for the radiorama were Miss Grace Davis, Cancer Society President, Joe Lyle, Residential Crusade Chairman, and Dr. John Sanders, Publicity Chairman.

The Cancer Society wishes to thank station WSWV of Pennington Gap for the donation of radio time for this program.

Debbie Davidson proudly displays her trophy for having the Grand Champion steer at the Lee County 4-H Beef Show held Saturday, April 25, at Hobbs' Polled Hereford Farm.

4-H'ers Excel At Annual Beef Show

By Diane Herndon

Saturday, April 25, was a perfect day for the 1981 Lee County 4-H Beef Show.

The weather was fine, the accomodations more than adequate, the hotdogs tasty, and best of all, 20 Lee County 4-H'ers exhibited some of the choicest cattle to be found in these parts.

It was an extra special day for 10 year-old Debbie Davidson, daughter of Junior and Judy Davidson, whose Angus steer achieved Grand Champion status after careful deliberation by Judge Dr. David Kirkpatrick, University of Tennessee.

Selected as Reserve Champion was the Continental Cross steer owned by Elizabeth Fannon and shown by sister Jennifer. Both girls are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Paul Fannon.

In heifer competition, taking class champion honors were Jeff Dean, Frankie Pennington and Jennifer Fannon. In steer competition, top-of-the-class, blue ribbon winners were Andy Rosenbaum, Debbie Davidson, Arty Dean and Elizabeth Fannon (animal shown by sister, Jennifer.)

The animals weren't the only ones being judged for excellence, as both junior and senior 4-H beef project participants were given the opportunity to compete for showmanship honors.

Dr. Kirkpatrick kept a sharp eye out on the youngsters who worked best with their animals, maneuvering them about the show ring upon instruction and simultaneously maintaining keen attentiveness of the judge.

Arty Dean so impressed Kirkpatrick in the junior showmanship competition that the judge commented on his remarkable poise and smooth handling of the steer.

In the senior showmanship division, Andy Rosenbaum caught the judge's attention for his skillful control of his Hereford.

There are a lot of ingredients that go into making a successful beef program and county shows such as was held Saturday.

Obviously there have to be leaders to coordinate the program guiding the 4-H'ers in current and respected techniques of livestock care and feeding, grooming and showmanship.

Rules and regulations have to be followed and proper forms submitted for later competition in the Bristol Show and Sale.

Some leaders have to handle the paperwork aspects of the project, while others are more adept in the physical demands of the program such as grooming and showmanship techniques.

Other leaders contribute their support of the program in the actual setting up of the show area itself or keeping hungry bellies from growling with their behind the scene sale of hotdogs.

Then there's the place of the show this year the Hobbs' Polled Hereford Farm outside of Jonesville so generously loaned by owner Earl Hobbs. Most everyone seemed to find the new location of the county show quite convenient and accessible, both from the standpoint of exhibitor and observer.

And what kind of a show could there be without a judge? Even though everyone can't be a winner and some will dispute the judge's final decision, without his expertise and ability to rank quality and effort, how would we honor the diligent achiever?

Consider also the fate of the Lee County beef program without the potential

Ponderin' And Putterin'

As I stepped out into the misty spring rain on the mountain today, I'm amazed at just how green things are beginning to look and the delightful smell of a blooming lilac. Granny always said "When the lilacs are in full bloom, plant your beans." Well, Good Friday sure was wet so I'll have to go with the lilacs. Mine even yielded an extra dividend this year - lo and behold I found three Hickory Chickens under mine. I hope everyone has been mushroom hunting. Just make sure if you've never been to take a seasoned veteran Hickory Chicken hunter with you! You just haven't lived until you've had your fill of Hickory Chickens, Bear Salad and cornbread. That's living high on the hog without the pen. The proper word for these mushrooms is moral or cup fungus but somehow it just doesn't sound as good! Of course, now is the time your poke salad just as it begins to shoot up around 1 to 2 inches high - wash it - parboil it - drain - roll in meal - fry - Delicious. Listen up Bachelors - if she don't know poke and wears long fingernails - you're not going to be eating greens and drinking cow's milk.

To get off food for a while - this time of year reminds me of the quote "God asks no man whether he will accept life. That is not the choice. You must take it. The only chance is how!" Henry Ward Beecher

Well, my long wish of a herb garden began recently, my contribution against ever increasing inflation. I'm starting small and working up. I sowed parsley, marjoram, dill and chives. But I'm a little worried about the parsley. There is suspicion that because its so slow to germinate it must go to Satan and back 7 times. Also that only a witch could grow it and that a good crop could be grown only if it were planted on Good Friday or by a pregnant woman. Never transplant the herb because it would displease the herb and bring Bad Luck to the household of the offender. Well, I think I messed up. I don't think I'm a witch, it rained on Good Friday and I didn't know any pregnant women. In Greek, the word parsley means "stone breaker". I surrounded the bed with stones, so we'll just have to wait and see. Later I'll explain how to harvest it. It is very rich in iron and Vitamin C. I hope you've enjoyed my column and if so, I've enjoyed it. Send any comments to me in care of the paper.

Webb Trial Proceeding

Jury selection is complete, alternate jurors have been retained and opening arguments are history as the trial of Bernard Chester Webb moves into its second week.

Webb, a Lee County coal miner is charged with the alleged "murder for hire" killing of Swainsboro, Ga. businessman, David M. Hill. Pleading innocent to the charge, the St. Charles resident faces a possible sentence of life imprisonment or death by a 12 man jury of six women and six men.

Two local coal miners' out checking their traps, found Hill's body on the side of an old mining road just off Route 68 at Keokee on the morning of December 23, 1977. Hill had been shot five times in the chest with a .38 caliber pistol.

The time of death in the case remains unclear due to the extreme cold weather and its effect on the process of rigor mortis. Medical examiner Dr. H.A. Kinser, has estimated that Hill was killed within 24 hours from the time he examined his body on the morning of December 23.

Exact time of death remains a vital support in defense attorney, Tom Rasnic's case for his client, as Webb says he can prove that he was in New Jersey on December 22 and 23.

The prosecution, Commonwealth's Attorney, Cynthia Kinser, must prove Webb's guilt beyond a doubt to jurors and argues that a Russell Cash, will soon testify that he called Webb on the 22nd to confirm that the job had been done.

Webb allegedly killed Hill for $20,000 paid by R.L. Herring, another Georgia businessman, in two payments through Cash, who has confessed his involvement for immunity from prosecution.

Herring also awaits trial in the local jail.

Pioneer Club Volunteers For Mental Health Campaign

Mrs. Rozetta Crumley, president of the Pioneer Extension Homemakers Club, who has been actively involved in civic affairs in her community for some years, has volunteered to be chairperson in the Ewing Area for the Mental Health Association Campaign.

Mrs. Crumley has chosen a large and dependable group of volunteers to assist her in promoting this most important citizen action project of education and fund raising.

They have accepted the challenge to arouse community counsciousness to the importance of, and need for, a greater effort in the promotion of mental health. The prevention of mental illness is seen as vital to the program by the Mental Health Association, in addition to the improved care and treatment of the mentally ill.

As the "Bell Ringers" call from door to door during the month of May, they will be equipped with Literature which gives staggering facts about the extent of mental illness in Virginia.

Also, according to the American Medical Association, mental illness is America's most pressing and complex health problem.

The volunteers feel that once citizens know what the problem is, and what can be done about it, they will want to DO Something to support the Mental Health Association in Virginia.

They will ask You to contribute generously to the operating costs for both in patients and out patients; and to research and education of this perplexing problem.

"Bell Ringers" who will be contacting you in the Ewing area are: Mrs. Jean Hatfield, Mrs. Bess Brooks, Mrs. Ethel Crumley, Mrs. Louzana Marcum, Mrs. Nancy Bellamy, Mrs. Ann Brown, Mrs. Peggy Doyle, Mrs. Mae Minks, Mrs. Cecile Hoskins, Mrs. Linda Lee, Mrs. Billie Hubble, Mrs. Lillian Brooks, Mrs. Marie Fellers, Mrs. Bobbie Mangus, Mrs. Evelyn Ayers, Mrs. Kay Edds, Mrs. Rachel Ramsey, Mrs. Jewel Glass, and Miss Verlinda Crockett.

Jonesville High School Burglarized

The Lee County Sheriff's Department reports the April 22 break in of Jonesville High School.

According to the investigating officer, Deputy Ed Preston's report, the school was broken into sometime during the night of April 22 and the cafeteria, office and a supply room were all apparently burglarized.

Window panes were broken out of each of these room's doors although the contents of only the office seem to have been greatly disturbed.

Listed as missing are one tool box, a hammer, a pair of vice grips, audio speakers and several items from the cafeteria. The incident was reported by Holton Roberts.

Coal Strike

Sheriff R. V. Chadwell also said that any disruptions at the strike areas in the County had been minimal and that he was well pleased with the way local union members had stuck to their spoken agreement of non violence.

The strike is now over a month old with no signs of contract agreement in sight.

Spring is the time when most of us feel like "doing something." This has been true of our club. We're getting a head start on our next year's activities!

On April 18 and 19, we sponsored our annual Portrait Project. We would like to thank everyone who helped make this fund raising event a success.

Mr. Gary Bumgarner of MECC Business Education Department gave an interesting and informative presentation to our club members on April 23. Mr. Bumgarner works in the area of management and accounting. He spoke to us on the topic, "Small Business As a Career." His presentation included information on the rewards and sacrifices of operating a small business, how small businesses can grow into a large and rewarding operation, and major causes of success or failure, and some of the main requirements and considerations for opening your own small business.

New visiting hours are: Medical/Surgical Floor 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m., Pediatrics 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.; Obstetrics 11:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. (Only husbands may visit while the babies are with their mothers in the room.)

Visiting hours in the Special Care Unit have not changed. Visitors may see SCU patients at 9:00 a.m., Noon, 5:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. for up to fifteen minutes at a time.

Patients in private rooms may have up to three guests in their room at a time. Two guests may visit patients in semi-private rooms simultaneously. Guests should remember to check in at the Auxiliary information desk in the main lobby to pick up guest passes whenever they visit a patient.

As part of the new visiting hours, expectant and new mothers may be visited by their children while on the obstetrical unit.

According to Tom Rice, Administrator, Lonesome Pine Hospital, "The new hours will be very convenient for our patients and guests and should eliminate the need for exceptions that make the present policy unenforceable. The cooperation of all guests that visit the Hospital is necessary if our patients are to receive the full benefit of their Hospital stay."

USDA Cancels Settlement Date For Reserve Corn

Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block said recently he is "helping move agriculture closer to the market oriented goals of the administration's proposed farm bill" by granting farmers an indefinite extension on repaying their reserve corn loans.

Under Block's action farmers who previously had until May 15 to repay loans on reserve corn can continue the loans at the same 15 "5 percent interest rate.

Farmers will immediately feel some benefits that go along with the market oriented objectives that are woven into the administration's farm bill," Block said.

"With this action," he said, "farmers can make their own marketing decisions on farmer-owned reserve corn. They should fare much better under this philosophy than they would under programs that have outlived their usefulness, such as target prices and deficiency payments.

Normally when the market price for corn reaches a specified call eve farmers with grain under government reserve loans are notified that they have 90 days in which to either repay the loan or to turn the grain over to USDA.

Corn reserve loans were called effective January 16, with the repayment date set for April 15. However Block authorized a 30 day extension with the stipulation that a 15.25 percent interest be charged effective April 15. Previously reserve corn loans were interest free.

Block said farmers will continue to be responsible for the condition and storage costs of their corn under new

DMLR Will Supervise Pound Landslide Emergency

The Division of Mined Land Reclamation will assume the supervision of an emergency landslide project located on old Route 23 approximately one mile south of Pound, Virginia. DMLR Commissioner Danny R. Brown said the troublesome slides which have occurred several times within the past ten to fifteen years originate from an abandoned surface mine site located above the slide area.

While administrative work to secure Federal Priority I status for the area has been in progress since September of the past year, the heavy rains which fell during the night of April 19, Easter Sunday, caused massive mud slides shoving the project from priority to emergency status. DMLR Abandoned Mine Lands and Federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) personnel visited the site on April 22 at which time it was judged to be of emergency project proportions by OSM.

The sliding which occurred Easter Sunday totally blocked old Route 23 with a thick slurry of mud preventing the passage of most vehicles. Virginia Department of Highways and Transportation personnel worked the following day removing slide debris and opening the road to traffic. Officials from DMLR stated that further sliding may occur if there is additional substantial rainfall.

OSM has solicited bids for the reclamation work and visited the site with bidding contractors on Thursday, April 23. If bid arrangements proceed as scheduled the contract could be awarded by Wednesday, April 29 with work to begin later that week.

Commissioner Brown further commented that the Pound Landslide Project was the first emergency project supervised by DMLR in Virginia.

Larger Tobacco Crop Expected

A further recovery of yields and acreage at the 1980 level could increase this year's U.S. tobacco crop about 6 percent above last year's 1.8 billion pounds. A larger crop would offset smaller beginning stocks and keep the 1981 82 tobacco supply about the same as this season.

Effective farm quotas for 1980 are down 6 percent for flue-cure and up 11 percent for burley. The quotas suggest that U.S. tobacco growers may keep this year's plantings about the same as the 916,000 acres harvested in 1980.

Because of increased prices for fuel and labor, production costs may rise as much as 15 percent from last season. Price support for eligible tobacco will be about 12 percent higher than last year because of the formula that reflects changes in prices farmers pay. USDA will likely announce grade loan rates for the various kinds of tobacco before the marketing season begins.

Despite a larger 1980 crop, smaller carryin stocks pulled this season's domestic leaf supply down to 3.04 billion pounds, 2 percent below the previous year. Total use of U.S. tobacco should remain close to 1980, however, by the end of the marketing year all tobacco carryover stocks will still be down.

On January 1, stocks were slightly below a year earlier. By end of this marketing year (July 1 for flue-cured, October 1 for burley and other kinds), stocks should total about 2 percent below the 3.27 billion pound carryin.

Last year's cigarette output, a record 714 billion cigarettes, increased 1 per cent above 1979. Both domestic use and tax exempt categories gained. Also, consumption of smokeless tobacco products (chewing tobacco and snuff) grew again in 1980. Use of both smoking tobacco and cigars fell below a year earlier; another drop is expected this year.

U.S. smokers consumed 630 billion cigarettes last year, about 1-1/2 percent above the previous year. Consumption per adult remained about the same as 1979 196 packs. Total cigarette use may remain steady this year, as increasing population offsets reduced per capita use.

Exports of U.S. tobacco leaf and products increased 13 percent in value last year to a record $2.43 billion. Both manufactured tobacco totaled 599 million pounds (272,000 metric tons) or 721 million pounds, farm sales weight. This year, exports will do well to maintain last year's level, because export grades of U.S. tobacco are in short supply.

Women's Car-Care Clinics Popular

The apprehension many women feel about automobile service, coupled with repair costs, are drawing women in droves to car care clinics to learn more about how their cars work, says the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

An industry study has found more women than ever before are responsible for the repair and maintenance of their own vehicles. The study shows over 47 per cent of women now decide when their car needs servicing and in 40 per cent of these cases they alone decide where to take the car for maintenance or repair work.

Car care clinics for women are sponsored by car manufacturers, tire companies, parts manufacturers, dealerships and repair shops. They usually are free.

In addition, "powder puff" mechanical classes are taught at many community colleges, through school district adult education programs and at some YWCAs.

Sponsorship may vary, but the goals are the same ..to teach how to care for a car, but not to turn the students into mechanics. All the clinics teach the basics of an automobile, such as how the various components of a car work, and how to perform routine maintenance like checking the oil and other fluids, belts, hoses and tires.

Participants have the opportunity to ask questions of the instructor and many clinics allow the women to gain hands on experience with the automobile.

Students learn how to give symptoms of automotive difficulties which can help any service facility disgnose the problem and repair it properly the first time.

Some also teach how to react in emergency situations, such as changing a flat tire or how to jump a battery.

Brucellosis Program Unveiled

S. Mason Carbaugh, Commissioner of Agriculture and Consumer Services, announced today his agency's plans for initiating a broad based program to eradicate brucellosis, or Bang's disease, in Virginia. "In the past we have tolerated a little bit of brucellosis, but we can no longer allow its presence in our state," stated Commissioner Carbaugh

"Brucellosis is a cattle disease that causes serious economic losses each year for those producers with infected herds and is a threat to the state's entire industry." Although this disease is little known to the general public, it is a threat to public health in that it may be transmitted to humans in the form of undulant fever

In his statement Carbaugh indicated that the program is being launched under the direction of Dr George B Estes, State Veterinarian, as a renewed effort to rid Virginia of this disease within two years. "In the past decade, the number of infected Virginia herds has been as low as four, but we currently have a total of 31 beef and dairy herds in the state infected with brucellosis, and that represents a tremendous investment in jeopardy."

Under the broad based program outlined by Commissioner Carbaugh, the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (VDACS) will concentrate on five major activities

1 Monitoring the movement of cattle into and through the state with the cooperation of the State Police to assure that cattle being brought into Virginia are accompanied with proper health papers that certify they are free of the disease;

2. Testing of all cattle sold at Virginia livestock markets that are going back to the farm as breeding or replacement animals to assure they are free of brucellosis,

3. Completing the depopulation of badly or chronically infected herds with the cooperation of the owners where this is determined to be the best course of action;

4 Widening the area of testing surrounding known infected herds with the purpose of protecting cattle close by and detecting any spread; and

5. Immunizing as many of the potential breeding calves as possible through a statewide program of calfhood vaccination for cattle between the ages of 4 12 months

Commissioner Carbaugh emphasized that calfhood vaccination is the cornerstone of the brucellosis effort.

GOD'S ULTIMATE WORD

The Epistle to the Hebrews opens with a matchless declaration of the existence of God, Who at various times and in different ways has revealed Himself as the God of power, justice, holiness, truth, love, and mercy.

Hebrews 1: 1 - 4

God has spoken to men through His work of creation, through human conscience, through various messengers whom He commissioned to be the bearers of His will to men, through the written Word, and through Christ. Earlier revelations were fragmentary and incomplete, but the revelation of God in and through Christ is complete. When one sees Christ through faith, he beholds the very attributes of God, for He is the express image of the Father. Christ is the complete revelation of God. He is the perfect representative of God, the upholder of the universe, and the preserver of all things. Moreover, He is the Redeemer of all of God's people, and has the power to forgive sin and cleanse its consequences. He supplies peace for the mind, satisfaction for the soul, and joy for the heart.

Seated "on the right hand of the Majesty on high," where He intercedes for us, He has received higher honors than any that have ever been bestowed upon angels. By inheritance He has obtained a more excellent name than any angel, or any other person. It was very important that the readers of this epistle realize that Christ was superior to the angels. Christ is as far above the angels as the Creator is superior to any of His creatures. That truth needed to be impressed upon the Hebrews for they were inclined to exalt the angels unduly.

Hebrews 2: 1 - 8

This passage contains an important warning which is based on the revelation of God in His Son. The opening word, "therefore," refers to what God has revealed regarding the greatness and the supremacy of Christ. Careful heed must be given to what has been revealed to us, and to the things which we have heard lest we drift away from them. Having been urged not to drift away from the truth, we must never forget that anyone who does so must give an account to God for so doing.

While the message of the angels was steadfast, that of the Lord Jesus was far more so. The validity of His message was confirmed by miracles, signs, and wonders. Just as the miracles were to be seen, the message was to be believed. Every Christian is expected to give earnest heed to God's great salvation, and to the obligations which grow out of the rightful relationship to the Lord.

This salvation, which God wrought out for lost sinners, deserves to be called "great". It is great in its conception, cost, and content. It delivers the soul from death to life, sin to righteousness, and defeat to victory. When we come into possession of it, through God's grace, with it we get new desires, new motives, and new aspirations. It is the only salvation which is available.

Quoting the Psalmist, who was overwhelmed with awe at the grandeur of the universe, and who marvelled that God thought of man, had anything to do with him, or cared for him, the writer rejoiced in what man might become.

Made in the image of God, man is the crowning piece of God's creation. God endowed man with the ability to think, dream, hope, aspire, reason, grow, invent, and build. The recognition of the fact that we are God-made should elevate our conception of manhood, dignify our lives, and deliver us from worthless thoughts, mean motives, and ungodly deeds.

1941 U.S. SAVINGS BONDS REACH FINAL MATURITY

For many years Lee Bank and Trust Company has offered its customers the opportunity to purchase United States Savings Bonds. The purchase of these Bonds has helped the people of Lee County save for the future and, in turn, helped the country have a strong and growing economy.

Now, after forty years, final maturity is arriving for the first Series E Bonds ever issued ..... those sold in 1941. Those Bonds will stop earning interest exactly forty years after their date of issues. If you still own any of the 1941 Bonds, now is the time to act to keep this money earning interest.

You will want to consider exchanging these out of date Bonds for a higher yielding investment. You may exchange your 1941 Series E Bonds for Series HH Bonds. Such an exchange can be made with continued deferral of federal tax on the earned interest until the HH Bonds are redeemed. The HH Bonds pay a flat 7.5% interest per year, sent directly to you by Treasury check, for ten years. The minimum denomination is $500.00. Lee Bank and Trust urges everyone in Lee County who owns Savings Bonds to take inventory. You could be losing interest!

ABC Commission Hearing

A formal regulatory hearing has been scheduled for 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, May 12 to consider changes in regulations of the Virginia Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission

The public hearing will be held at the Commission's central offices at 2901 Hermitage Road, Richmond

ABC Commission Chairman Robert W. Jeffrey noted that some of the proposed actions results from changes in laws that were passed by the 1981 session of the Virginia General Assembly, while others are of a technical nature

Jeffrey also noted that several of the proposed changes are a result of the ABC Commission's efforts at continuing deregulation of the industry

Among the proposals is a new regulation which would prohibit deliveries of alcoholic beverages to persons in vehicles at "drive through" operations.

The Commission also is proposing a number of changes in its advertising regulations

One proposal would allow all licensees to sponsor charitable or civic public events as well as athletic and sporting events and teams

An additional advertising proposal would no longer make it a requirement to have the Commission's approval before advertising in publications that are not of general circulation

The proposal changes would allow licensees to advertise "Happy Hour" on exterior signs, but increase requirements for certain types of record keeping of sales.

Persons interested in submitting their views on the proposed actions can do so either orally at the public hearing, or in writing. Tentative drafts of the proposals are available from the office of the Secretary of the ABC Commission

To a photographer, an inferior lens is a "pop bottle."

Dear Editor,

The following letter was sent to civic and senior citizens' organizations across our area. The letter announces the designation of May as Older Americans Month and urges the planning and organization of local events to celebrate Older Americans Month.

I would appreciate it if you could run the following letter in your newspaper. This would help us to spread the word to more people about Older Americans Month. It is our hope that this will result in greater local involvement in Older Americans Month.

Thanks so much for your assistance.

Sincerely,
Marilyn C. Pace
Executive Director

Dear Friend,

It won't be long until May which, among other things, is recognized as Older Americans Month. Older Americans Month gives all of us an opportunity to recognize the talents and skills of older people in our area, to generate support and public awareness of the special needs of the elderly population, and to reach out to isolated older people who need assistance. It is a time of celebration, reflection, and understanding.

I am writing to ask your organization to plan something special for the month of May in honor and recognition of our area's elderly. (There is no set way to celebrate Older Americans Month, so whatever is appropriate for your organization is appropriate for Older Americans Month.)

If you are able to plan anything, I would appreciate it if you could let me know. Mountain Empire Older Citizens, Inc. is putting out a special edition of Mountain Empire News in May in honor of Older Americans Month and we would like to include information on all of the special events planned.

I am enclosing a poster and Older Americans Month Information Packet put out by the U. S. Department of Health and Human Services. Our office will be running many of the press releases in the packet as part of our special efforts to raise public consciousness to the elderly in our population.

I look forward to hearing from you and help your organization becomes actively involved in promoting Older Americans Month. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Marilyn C. Pace
Executive Director

To whom it may concern:

And it should concern all taxpayers in Lee County.

First let me make it clear that I am not against paying a wheel tax in Lee County. But should the payment of personal property taxes be a prerequisite to acquiring a wheel sticker? No!!

We pay tax when we buy our vehicles; on gas, oil, etc. everything bought for it to keep it in running condition; plus we must have a state inspection twice each year.

We gained our independence for this very thing - double and treble taxation. I'm not for giving the rest of money, after printing costs, to the Rescue Squads and Fire Departments. If I give a donation to either of the above; well and good but don't tax the people for their support. If I need and use either of the above I must pay for it. Who says give it to the above? Taxpayers certainly had no vote in it.

I'm sure there would be many citizens (i.e. voters); if a vote were taken that would feel same way.

Have you ever stopped to think how many people in Lee County live on a limited income and how many are in the low income bracket? We're existing -- not really living.

People on welfare are better off than the taxpayers, who are helping to keep them up.

Taxpayers, think about it!!

R.O. Moses
Jonesville, Va.

It's time for another Folklife Weekend at Cumberland Gap National Historical Park May 2 and 3. Just like last year except a little more. The folks who do crafts and live lifestyles in the old fashioned way will be here as usual: James, Janice, and Hazel Miracle with their handmade brooms, wood flowers, dough bowls, and dulcimers; Bud Carr with his edible and medicinal plants, Sarah Bailey with her big spinning wheel; Martha Cramer with her small spinning wheel; Chet Cramer with his springpole lathe, Dick and Anne Albin with their mountain music; Chester Thomas with his board riving; Ollie Hubbard with her soap making

Most programs will operate from 10 a.m. - 4:00 p.m at the visitor center. Dick and Anne will play 11:00 a.m., 1:00 p.m. and 3:00 p.m at the visitor center both days and 8:00 p.m. at the campground amphitheater Saturday evening.

This year Donna Clore and Elwood Combs from the Bell County Extension Agency will be here to show some compromises between total self sufficiency and total dependency on others. They have some excellent ideas to help you save energy and money

Also on hand will be the Home Energy Cost Savings Calculator from the U.S. Department of Energy. Just think of all the money you'll save by doing some things for yourself and cutting energy costs!

special education students and tuberculin tests for teachers This figure is 12 percent higher than last years

Funds for pupil transportation have increased 20 percent to a figure of $678,742 The biggest single item other than salaries for bus drivers is cost of gasoline, oil and lubricants This category also includes repairs, tires and insurance payments repairs being a sizable chunk of the dollar due to the fact the School Board has to make do with school buses normally scheduled for retirement.

McCoy cited the constant problems with bus repairs, with 10 motors having to be replaced during this past year. He lauded the work of the garage employees who manage to keep the fleet operable as best as the situation allows.

Approximately, it follows that in the area of Replacement of Transportation, the School Board is asking $220,000 to purchase 11 new school buses that are desparately needed, according to the Superintendent.

The bus situation is critical, McCoy said, partly because of lagging behind the replacement schedule due to supervisors' failure last year to fund the bus request.

Under Food Service Category, $35,632 is requested McCoy is still unclear as to how much USDA reduction and reimbursement cut of the food service program he can expect for the coming year, but he pointed out that a recent food service official had predicted the only way to keep the food service program financially stable in the schools was to raise the price of a school lunch to perhaps as high as $1 25 per meal. Noting the greatest percent of food service participants receive either free or reduced lunches, 'the burden," McCoy said, "of such an increase would fall on the paying student "

Under the budget category Operation of School Plant, $561,636 is being requested to pay for custodial personnel, electric service telephone, water, sewage disposal cleaning supplies, etc This is a 12 3 percent increase over last year's request

Maintenance of School Plant has earmarked $429,516 including payment of six maintenance personnel, repair and replacement of equipment and vehicles, building materials, buildings and grounds, etc

Among the many items needed to be paid for out of this category Supt. McCoy listed were a water line for Flatwoods, new furnace at Elydale, repair of eaves at Jonesville Elementary, shades and desks, a booster heater for Pennington Elementary, just to name a few

Under the budget category of fixed charges, $1,204,041 is requested for insurance, workman's compensation, employer's share of fringe benefits, rent of land, buildings, vocational school business machines, etc

Summer School and Adult Education budget hearings requesting $18,250 and $19,250, respectively, are primarily instructional costs with most of the funds for adult education being federally reimbursed

Other Educational Programs, a budget category requesting $77,000 includes a juvenile delinquency program for the county and a veteran's class offered at Thomas Walker and Jonesville Both are 90 percent federally reimbursed McCoy said.

Under the final budget category, Capital Outlay, $30,000 is requested for band equipment, matching funds for purchase of equipment for the vocational school, and other items mentioned such as a chain link fence for Keokee and removal of the transformers in the basement of Pennington High School buyers those individuals or businesses who are willing to encourage these youngsters to work even harder with financial incentives. Lee County steers are generally sold at a higher than market price and for more than other counties participating in the Bristol Sale primarily because local buyers are willing to go the extra dollar for top quality beef and conscientious youth.

Finally, we come to the most important ingredient of all the 4 H'er and his family. The beef project, to be successful depends largely on the effort made by the youngster and the willingness of his parents to help him along the rough spots Any beginner in the project will soon discover that you can't just start working with your animal two weeks before the county show and expect to be able to win any ribbons for showmanship.

Likewise, constant attention to feeding and grooming must be given all through the course of the project, if hopes of a grand champion are ever to be realized

But the work pays off in the long run and even though everyone won't make it to grand champion, hopefully there will be some parent child relationships more permanently cemented, and some friend to friend associations built in the spirit of healthy competition

Participating in this years beef project and going on to competition at the Bristol Livestock Show and Sale are Jeff Dean, Frankie Pennington, Julie Young, Debbie Davidson, Jennifer Fannon, Elizabeth Fannon, Charles Carter, Keith Moore, Andy Rosenbaum, Scott Wolever, Todd Hines, Billy Wilbs, Tim Dean, Hank Fannon, Donnie Carter, Brian Shoemaker, Jimmy Shoemaker Arty Dean, Alan Ingle and Kevin Slemp

Don t miss the Bristol Show and Sale on May 6 at the Tri State Livestock Market in Abingdon, beginning at 8 a m until 12 noon The heifer show will follow at 2 p m at the Southwest Virginia 4 H Center with the star sale beginning at 7 30 p.m., back at the Livestock Market The sale is sponsored by the Greater Bristol Area Chamber of Commerce.

Family Notes

By Betty Jean Moore

Virginia Tech Extension Service agents provide continuing education — programs, information, services — for everyone. Miss Moore is with the Lee County office at 346-1522.

Most people prune their trees, shrubs and evergreens too much. Limit how you use your pruning shears and have healthier plants.

The best way to start pruning is to remove all dead, diseased and interfering branches. In most instances, this will probably be all the pruning a plant will need. If the plant looks natural after this minimum pruning, your best bet would be to leave it alone.

If you're removing an entire branch, cut it flush with an adjoining stem. Then treat all pruning wounds an inch or larger in diameter with tree wound dressing to protect the cut surface from diseases and insects.

If spring flowering trees and shrubs are pruned at this time of the year, you'll lose the spring bloom. Actually, these plants should be pruned immediately after flowering.

Broad leaf evergreen plants usually need no pruning at all, except to remove dead or diseased branches or to keep the plant within bounds.

Most needled evergreens should be pruned prior to the appearance of new growth. Pine trees are the only exception. Prune them by pinching off the tips of the "candles" or new shoots when they are about 2 inches long. This will encourage branching, making the tree more dense.

4-H Scholarships Listed

Present and former Virginia 4-H'ers may be eligible for $5,750 in college scholarship grants if they meet requirements set by the Cooperative Extension Service.

All but one of the grants are valued at $1,000 and are primarily for young people planning careers in agriculture, or such related fields as forestry, veterinary medicine or animal science. The other scholarship, valued at $750 has no limits placed on choice of study.

The Warren scholarship, established in memory of Gertrude L. Warren, a pioneer 4-H leader often described as the "Mother of 4-H," is a $750 grant awarded to one present or former 4-H member enrolled this fall at an accredited college, university, technical or trade school. The recipient can major in any recognized field of study and must have been influenced by 4-H in selecting a future career.

A $1,000 scholarship, donated by Education Foundation of Alpha Gamma Rho, goes to a current 4-H member who will be enrolled as a college freshman this fall. The recipient must be planning to major in agriculture, forestry, veterinary medicine or a closely related field.

Allied Mills Inc. donates scholarships to two present or former 4-H'ers who will be enrolled as college juniors this fall and plan to major in animal science.

Two former 4-H members currently enrolled in a college of veterinary medicine can each earn $1,000 scholarships provided by Champion Valley Farms Inc., Recipe Division.

All scholarship applicants must have completed at least one year of 4-H work. Winners are selected by the Cooperative Extension Service and are announced before the 60th National 4-H Congress, Nov. 29 Dec. 3, in Chicago.

Present and former 4-H'ers interested in applying for these scholarships should contact their state 4-H leader at Virginia Tech or county Extension offices for more information and special application forms.

W.I.C. Program To Provide Increased Benefits

Despite recent news stories of proposed budget cuts in Federal food and nutrition programs, the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC Program) can provide benefits to approximately 5,000 more eligible Virginians, according to Paul Matthias, director of the Health Department's Bureau of Nutrition

"Although maximum caseload levels have been assigned to all of the State's health districts, and will be effective until October 1, 1981, the following areas of the State can still accommodate large numbers of additional participants, most local ities in Eastern Virginia, including the Eastern Shore and the Tidewater area, Lynchburg and surrounding counties, Petersburg and surrounding counties, most counties in Southwest Virginia, and a limited number of counties in the Piedmont and Northwest sections of the State," Matthias said

The WIC Program provides nutrition education and prescription food packages to pregnant, postpartum or breastfeeding women, infants, and children up to age five who are low income and who are also determined to be at nutritional risk. Nutritional deficiencies during pregnancy or early childhood can lead to lasting damage to a child's mental or physical development

Participants who continue to demonstrate medical and financial need may be assured that WIC benefits will be delivered at the current level at least until October 1, 1981, when the budget cutbacks currently being considered by Congress could become effective and result in a slight reduction in caseload

The present level of WIC funding is available from the U.S Department of Agriculture until that date Matthias said, "and it's still too early to tell what the extent of budget cuts will be after that"

The WIC Program is available in each of Virginia's local health departments After determining that an applicant meets both the income and nutritional requirements, a physician, nurse, or nutritionist prescribes a food package tailored to meet the individual's needs. Women and children receive food packages which include milk, cheese, eggs, vitamin C-rich fruit juice, and iron fortified baby cereal and fruit juice. For infants, WIC provides iron fortified infant formula, iron fortified baby cereal and fruit juice.

Nutrition education is also provided through the WIC Program to teach participants or their caretakers the foods which, in addition to the supplemental foods provided in the food package, meet their total dietary needs. Also, nutrition education teaches participants to develop sound dietary habits which will benefit them and their families for a lifetime

Of all programs in the federal government, few if any are supported by so impressive a body of medical evidence A series of studies show that the WIC Program results in substantial reductions in the incidence of low birth weight infants, reduces anemia, and has a significant effect on infant mortality rates

WIC is also cost effective A study conducted at the Harvard Sencol of Public Health found that each $1 spent on the prenatal component of the WIC Program results in a savings of $3 in hospitalization costs, due to the reduced number of low birth weight infants needing extended hospital care. Since low birth weight babies have a higher incidence of birth defects than normal babies, WIC also reduces cost in subsequent years in Medicaid, special education, and disabilty payments.

The WIC Program is available to eligible person regardless of race, color, religion or national origin. For more information contact your local health department or the WIC State Office at (804) 786 5420

There are many days we celebrate and every country has its special days set apart from routine work in the year to hold in remembrance a great man, an important event, or performance of some public duty to the state.

Arbor Day is a special day set apart for planting trees and shrubs in many states. There is no uniform date set aside for Arbor Day and it varies in different states according to the differences in climate.

In our present time the beautiful forests all over the country are being destroyed as the trees are cut down and the wood used for fuel, building material, making paper, and many other uses.

The first Arbor Day was observed in Nebraska on April 10, 1872, the State Board of Agriculture of Nebraska, offered prizes for the counties and persons planting the most trees. According to history a man by the name of J Sterling Morton began the movement to plant trees after the Civil War had ended. Over one million trees were planted the first year and 350,000,000 trees and vines within the twelve succeeding years. After that many other states became interested in planting trees. In the West there were many treeless plains.

The celebration of Arbor Day originated in the western prairie states where there were few trees.

It is interesting to teach the children the different kinds of trees and how to recognize them, also to tell them the importance of trees. Arbor Day is a day for planting trees and boys and girls who plant trees find it interesting to watch them grow year after year. It takes many years for a small sapling to grow into a large tree.

I recall hearing my uncle, Travis C. Riddle laugh many times as he told about planting black walnuts in the Little Black Mountain near Keokee when he was a young man and came to this area in the early 1900 years. He and his friend, Hop Slemp of Dryden, Va., were hired by the Stonega Coke and Coal Company to plant the walnuts. He said they carried a big sack of black walnuts on their backs and with a stick sharpened on the end punched holes in the ground and dropped a walnut in the hole and covered it with dirt. In later years the walnuts sprouted and grew into large trees.

"Plant a birthday tree this year and watch it grow."

This is a telephone.

It may look a little strange. But it does everything your phone does. And more.

We designed it for people who can't move their legs to walk to the phone. Or lift their arms to reach for the phone.

All they have to do is blow on the card to dial. Then speak into the speaker. To call the fire department. Or talk to friends. Or take part in the world of business.

And it's only one of many remarkably designed phones that C&P Telephone offers.

We also have phones that can help the blind. The hard of hearing and the mute. Special phones for special people.

If you'd like to find out more about them, consult the Consumer Guide in the front of your White Pages. Just look for the number of the Telephone Service Center for Disabled People.

Then we'd like you to call.

Because no matter how strange some of our special phones may look, they're all designed to let people do one special thing.

Communicate.

Students Must Complete Social Security Report

If you have been getting social security checks as a full-time student 18 to 22, you should soon receive a "Report of Student Beneficiary at End of School Year." It asks about school enrollment, possible work activity in 1981, and whether you have married.

Make sure you promptly complete the top three-fourths of this form when you get it. Then ask your school registrar or other official to fill out the bottom one fourth to certify your enrollment and have that person return the form to the Social Security Administration.

The form must be completed even if there has been no change in your situation. If this is not done or if the form is returned late, your benefits may stop. Also an investigation may be made to see if all past payments were correct.

Benefits can continue during the summer months if you were a full time student before vacation started and you plan to go back to school in the fall. If your plans are indefinite now, you should have benefits stopped to avoid having to pay back some checks not due. Then if you do return, back payments can be made later for months you missed.

If you have a summer job lined up, remember that earnings can affect your benefits. In 1981 you can work and earn up to $4,080 and receive all your social security checks. If you earn more than this, $1 in benefits will be withheld for each $2 in earnings over $4,080. Earnings for the entire year must be counted. Let social security know if you think your earnings might exceed $4,080.

Oral cancer strikes approximately 24,000 persons in the U.S. each year and causes 8,000 deaths.

Jonesville And Keokee Split Doubleheader

On Monday of this week, the Jonesville Bulldogs hosted Keokee in a pair of games with each team winning once.

Jonesville took the first game 5-3 behind the four hit pitching of Bill Lambert. Keokee was leading 3-0 in the bottom of the fourth, and riding Kip Phillips no hit pitching, when the Bulldogs exploded for five runs. Jonesville only had one hit in the game, but it came off the bat of Joey Chadwell who drove in the winning run.

Walks killed the Mountaineers, as did two errors which came at an opportune time for the Bulldogs.

Kip Phillips had two of the four hits off of winning pitcher Bill Lambert. In the second game, Jonesville was leading 5-4, before the Mountaineers got two runs in the fourth inning to take a 6-5 lead. The Bulldogs tied the game 6-6 in the bottom half with a single run. Keokee then scored six times to take the win 12-6 and gain a split.

Mickey Hubbard started for Keokee, but needed relief help from Kevin Pennington to get the win. Jonesville used a trio of pitchers in the game with the starter Gary Oaks taking the loss, his third against one win.

Kevin Estep had a 2 for 3 day at the plate, while Hubbard was 2 for 2, with two runs batted in.

Keokee now 10-2 overall and 9-1 in the district will be at Flatwoods tomorrow, and will need a win to set the stage for what will probably be the games (doubleheader against Pennington May 7th) to decide the districts regular season champion.

Roger Morris' club won't lay down over the loss to Jonesville. You can rest assured that the Mountaineers will be ready for the show down come May 7th!

Thomas Walker Disposes Of Twin Springs Twice

Ron Skeens has his very young Pioneers playing fairly good baseball of late, as Thomas Walker took both ends of a doubleheader from Twin Springs on Monday of this week.

Although the Pioneers are only 6-6 overall and 4-6 in the district, they certainly are playing better, won and loss wise, than some of the other teams.

Thomas Walker got a brilliant pitching performance from Alden Payne in the first game against the Titans, as he tossed a one hitter. The only hit off of Payne was a single by Mike Brickey. The Pioneers also played good defense as they only made one error. Thomas Walker got the win by scoring in every inning with all the runs needed coming in the first when they scored four.

Johnny Edds and Mike Yeary both were 2 for 3 at the plate and did the scoring when it counted as both drove in runs.

Edds started and went the distance for Twin Springs, but took the loss. It allowed five runs on eight hits. Alden Payne was the route to raise his record to 3-2.

In the nightcap, Thomas Walker again shut out Twin Springs as the Titans could only get two hits off of Johnny Edds. The Pioneers rocked four Titan pitchers when they scored ten runs in the second inning. Darnell started for Twin Springs, but quickly gave way to Gillespie. Compton and first game loser Flanary. Darnell took the loss.

Edds who pitched a two hitter, also got two hits in four at bat. Mike Yeary also had two safeties in four trips. Alden Payne, playing first base in the second game hit a homerun with the bases empty.

Thomas Walker played errorless baseball in completing the doubleheader shutout.

The Pioneers will be home to entertain Dryden in another doubleheader tomorrow, while the Titans will be trying to stop Pennington in another twin set.

Flatwoods Comes From Behind, Beats Dryden

The Flatwoods Eagles and Dryden Crusaders played each other on a neutral field on Monday of this week, with the Eagles coming from a 5-4 deficit, with five runs in the seventh inning to get the win 9-7.

Max Chance sent Jeff Seabolt to the mound, who went the first six innings before giving way to Darrell Vanhuss who finished up by pitching the seventh inning.

Flatwoods who led 3-0 after three innings saw Dryden score twice in the fourth to make it 3-2. Then after the Eagles scored a single run in the fifth for a 4-2 margin, the Crusaders scored three in the sixth for a 5-4 Dryden lead. Doing the leading hitting for Dryden in the game was Ronnie Rhoten who went two for four at the plate, including a double. Rodney Orick was another Crusader driving in runs with a triple.

Tony Lawson was two for four at the plate for Flatwoods. Hounshell also chipped in with two hits in four trips. John Carter had one hit in the game for Flatwoods, but it was the big hit in the game, a home run to help bring Flatwoods from behind.

Flatwoods now 3-6 overall and in the district will be playing Keokee tomorrow, while Dryden will play a pair at Thomas Walker.

Pairings and sites for the district tournament will appear in the May 6th edition of the Powell Valley News. Pairings will be determined by a teams district record, with the sites being at the teams school with the best record.

(Game played at Pennington).

Keokee Mountaineers Rip Dryden 18 - 3

On Tuesday, April 21st, Keokee got back on the winning side by ripping Dryden 18-3.

Roger Morris saw his team smack the ball for 17 hits. Leading the way was Chig Davis who hit a home run with one aboard. Kip Phillips and Kevin Estep had two hits apiece, as did Davis.

This is the second time this year that Keokee has crushed Dryden. When they met the first time, it was 12-0.

The Mountaineers, although they had 17 hits were helped out somewhat by eleven errors committed by Dryden.

Kevin Pennington started for Keokee and got the win on the mound. He is 2-1 on the year. Pennington was the losing pitcher in Keokee's loss to Cumberland Kentucky a few days ago.

Dryden only got four hits in the game but managed to score three times with the help of six errors by Keokee.

The Mountaineers will be at Flatwoods tomorrow for their last road game of the season. Their next home game will be Monday, May 4th, against the Thomas Walker Pioneers.

Keokee will most likely have to be a heavy favorite to win the district as the season winds down, because of their pitching staff. The Mountaineers have one of the best pitching staffs in Southwest Virginia. You can bet that Roger Morris will have his club ready, and his pitching staff in the best shape possible, by the time the district tournament rolls around.

Dryden	0	0	0 1 0 2 0

Keokee 18 Runs, 17 Hits, 6 Errors

Dryden 3 Runs, 4 Hits, 11 Errors.

Pennington, Lee and Davis; Rhoten, Peters and Orick. WP Pennington (2-1). LP Rhoten. HRS. Davis (K).

Keokee Sweeps Two From Thomas Walker

The Keokee Mountaineers are tuning up for the upcoming tournament by taking a pair from the Thomas Walker Pioneers on Wednesday of last week.

In the first game, Kip Phillips, a tough left hander, went the distance on the mound to get the win. He gave up only one hit, while his teammates played errorless baseball, to help back his pitching effort.

Jeff Collins, Mickey Hubbard, and Phillips all garnered two hits each in the homerun by Kevin Estep with the bases full of Mountaineers.

Howard started for Thomas Walker, and was relieved by Jim Miracle, who finished up. Howard was the loser. He is 0-1 on the year.

In the nightcap, Roger Morris sent Mickey Hubbard to the hill. Hubbard responded by tossing a one hitter, while Keokee played errorless ball for the second straight game.

The Mountaineers put four runs across in the first inning, and then scored two more in the third. Although Keokee only had six hits in the game, they made them count by not committing any errors, coupled with walks from the Pioneer pitching staff and two errors. Keokee did get one big hit in the game, which was a two run homer off the bat of Tim McElyea.

The two victories gave Keokee a record of 10-1 overall. They are 9-0 in district play. Thomas Walker drops to 4-4 overall, while they are 2-4 in the district.

The Pioneers will be at home tomorrow for another doubleheader against Dryden. Keokee will be in action tomorrow also, but on the road, at Flatwoods.

Pennington Wins Eighth Straight, Beats Jonesville 9 - 1

The Pennington Bobcats won their eighth straight game on Tuesday of last week, by beating Jonesville 9-1 on the Bobcat's diamond.

The Bobcats who scored in every inning except the fourth, backed the four hit pitching of Gary Pendergraft, by banging out twelve hits enroute to the win.

The big scoring inning for the Bobcats was the fifth when they put their first two men on base. Pennington led 4-1 at this point. Jonesville elected to intentionally walk Bobby Ledbetter to load the bases, and take their chances with Mike Reynolds. Reynolds came through with a double to right field, scoring all three base runners. He scored the fourth run of the inning.

Pendergraft also helped his own cause with three hits in four trips. He fanned ten batters in winning his sixth game without a loss. He was replaced by Mike Jones who worked the seventh inning, striking out all three batters he faced. In the last six innings that Jones has pitched, the opposition has failed to reach him for a hit.

Bobby Ledbetter, also had three hits in the game, including a drive off the centerfield fence for a triple.

Pennington is now the Cumberland districts only unbeaten team. They stand 8-0 overall, while they are 7-0 in district play. The Bobcats will be at Twin Springs tomorrow for two games against the Titans. Then on the following Thursday, May 7th, the Bobcats will close out the regular season with a pair of games against Keokee at Keokee. All area Bobcat fans and Keokee fans should make plans to go to Keokee on May 7th, as the two teams will be playing for the district crown, and an automatic birth in the regionals.

Jonesville	0	0	1 0 0 0

Jonesville - 1 Run, 4 Hits, 4 Errors.

Pennington - 9 Runs, 12 Hits, 5 Errors.

Pennington Wins 11th Defeats Rye Cove 7 - 1

The Pennington Bobcats played only their second road game of the year on Monday of this week. They came back home with their eleventh straight victory, after beating Rye Cove 7-1.

Gary Pendergraft went the distance on the mound for the Bobcats, to gain his seventh win against no losses. He fanned 14 Eagles, and didn't issue a single walk. he was also a star at the plate too, as he cracked his team leading third homerun of the year.

The Bobcats had 12 hits and committed only two errors enroute to getting Pendergraft all the runs he needed. Pennington scored a single run in the first, and then scored a run in the second which proved to be all they needed, as Rye Cove could only gather three hits off of Pendergraft.

The win coupled with Keokee's loss to Jonesville gave the Bobcats sole possession of first place in the district. Pennington will travel to Twin Springs tomorrow hoping to keep their win skein alive. They have already assured themselves of the home site for their first district tournament game in May.

Bobby Ledbetter who has caught the entire season behind the plate, also had a big day as he went 4 for 4, and clubbed his second homerun of the year.

Mike Ervin of Rye Cove had two of the three hits that the Eagles managed to get. The Eagles will be at home tomorrow to face Jonesville, a team they beat earlier in the season at Jonesville.

Pennington	1	1	0 4 1 0 0

Pennington Wins Two From Thomas Walker

This past Friday, the Pennington Bobcats scored at will, as they beat the Pioneers twice in a doubleheader played at Pennington.

In the first game, Gary Collier was sent to the mound, and he responded by going the distance, allowing three runs on six hits. The Bobcats backed him by playing errorless ball.

Pennington got all the runs they needed in the first inning when they crossed the plate seven times. The Pioneers helped the Bobcats scoring by making three errors in the first inning when the ball was thrown by the first baseman, instead of recording the outs.

The Pioneers started Johnny Edds on the mound. He was hit hard by the Bobcats before being relieved by Jim Miracle who finished up. Edds suffered the loss to even his record at 2-2.

Scott Haynes and Gary Pendergraft both went 3 for 3 in the game. Pendergraft also reached base his fourth time at bat when he flied to left field, and the ball was dropped, for a two base error.

In the second game, Mike Jones went the route to gain his third win against no losses. He allowed the Pioneers six hits, and only one run which was scored in the first inning.

Pennington who scored seven times in the first inning of the first game, scored five times in the first inning, when they loaded the bases after taking a 1-0 lead. Jones, himself came to bat with the bases jammed, and drove the ball just over the fence in right field. Bobby Ledbetter who has caught every game for Pennington this year had three hits in the game, while Gary Pendergraft also had three more. Pendergraft is one of the districts best hitters, as he is on a hitting tear of late. He is certainly one of the best pitchers when he is on the mound. He is now 6-0 on the year and will be one of two probable pitchers in the Bobcats doubleheader tomorrow against Twin Springs.

Rye Cove And Twin Springs Split Doubleheader

On Tuesday of last week, the Rye Cove Eagles and the Twin Springs Titans met in a doubleheader on the Eagles diamond at Rye Cove. The decision was a split, as the Eagles took the first game 8 5, and the Titans coming back to win the nightcap 3 1.

In the first game, Rye Cove coach Jeff Jones sent Dennis Stanley to the mound. Rye Cove got nine hits off of Twin Springs starting pitcher, Mike Penley, who went the route, suffering the loss.

The Eagles, who scored in every inning of the five innings affair, except the second, hit three home runs in the game. The round trippers were hit by Mike Bowen, Mike Ervin and Terry Duncan.

Dennis Stanley got the win on the mound, with Scott Bowen getting the save in relief of Stanley. Both pitchers allowed a total of four hits.

In the second game Joe Salyers of Twin Springs tossed a four hitter in going the distance for a 3 1 Titan victory.

The Titans only got two hits off of the Eagles pitcher Rick Salling, but made them count. The Eagles errors and walks issued to Twin Springs let the Titans gain the split.

Rye Cove which got only four hits, saw Mike Bowen get two of the four. Mike had an offensive day in the doubleheader after getting a couple of hits in game one.

Twin Springs will be in another doubleheader tomorrow as they take on the districts only unbeaten team in Pennington. Rye Cove will be at home to face Jonesville.

Grave Markers

Families of veterans who select a burial site for a deceased veteran in a private cemetery have two options for Veterans Administration assistance in marking the grave, VA reminded today.

VA will provide a headstone or marker free of charge and ship it to the co-signee designated on the application. Cost of placing the marker in a private cemetery must be borne by the applicant, however.

A second option is that VA will reimburse part of the cost of a headstone or marker bought privately and placed on the grave of a veteran. The current amount is $59.00 which is the average cost of headstones purchased by VA.

Application for the VA headstone or marker should be addressed to Director, Monument Service (42), Department of Memorial Affairs, Veterans Administration, 810 Vermont Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20420.
